

SHIFTING GEARS

1985

Mustang

Dear Mustang Buyer:

Adaptation to change is job 1 at Grapevine High School. This isn't just a phrase. It's a commitment to a total shifting of gears for our 1985 Mustang.

Total change begins with the design and engineering of our Mustang as we find blueprints for future construction, a more "efficient" cafeteria, and a gym-floor mascot fighting for survival. We record the changes with a vision of the customer — of you — sitting behind the wheel of our new Mustang.

Total change will be apparent to you through functional performance, overall vehicle integrity, the "look and feel" of material, satisfying aesthetics, safety, serviceability, and cost of ownership.

Total change means continuous alterations in everything we do. Every student at GHS is involved in the changes, and it may be years before the changes are complete.

The '85 Mustang reflects the changes we're talking about.

You're invited to look over the '85 Mustang. Test drive it, and you'll see and understand all that's involved in the adaptation concept at GHS.

GHS Mustang for 1985

Grapevine High has a spirit about it. It travels a newly constructed obstacle course designed by House Bill 72 and a newly passed bond issue which promises parking lots, student lounges, and electronic communication systems. Our Mustang is shifting gears.

The new roads are harder to travel and the shifting gears may sometimes grind. The different challenges are set before us as we shift up to accommodate change and modification. While in overdrive, we've achieved higher goals and the satisfaction makes the hardships worthwhile.

The changes brought by the state affect every area of school. What we do with the changes is up to us. Hopefully our Mustang will choose to shift gears and adjust, instead of rejecting the change and coasting downhill.

If you drive it, the Mustang ride is a comfortable one. It is quick and with responsive and efficient power teams. The contemporary size and shape and comfortable interiors have many extra value features.

Take our Mustang for a drive, and get in the spirit.

Bus Breath. Greg Spivey and Helen Beck are unaware of what they will wake up to.

No more NO-DOZ! Ranny Scheps hits rock-bottom.

English; body frame for academics

In terms of application, English is probably the most important subject at our school. English requires the reading of such novels as Ten Little Indians, Travels with Charlie, The Scarlet Letter and Canterbury Tales. Other activities included short stories, essays, and the senior term paper.

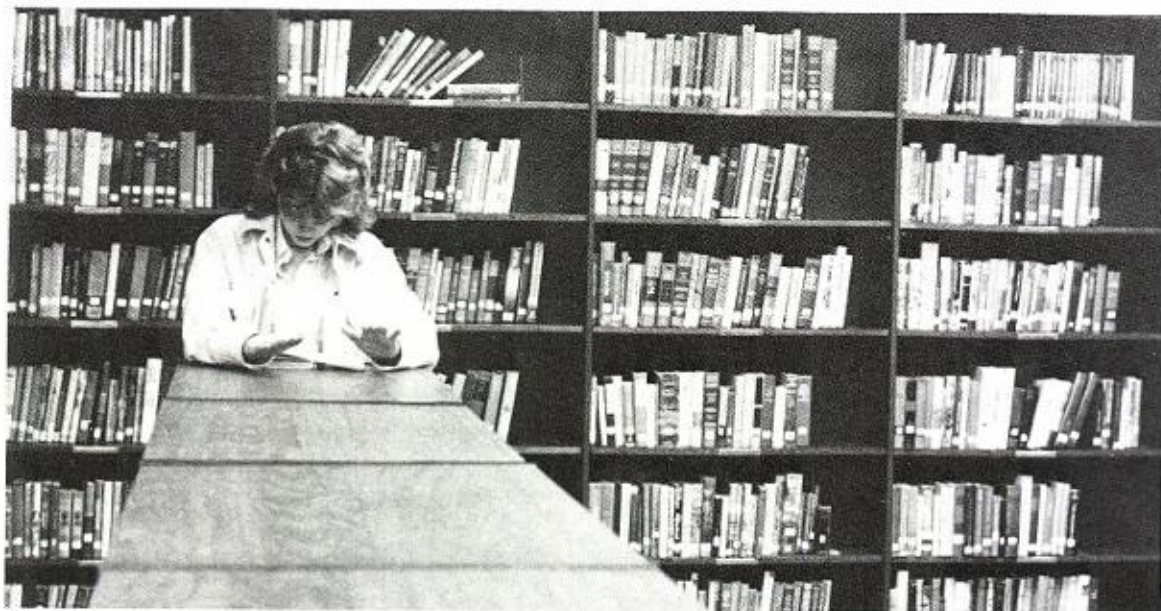

Randy Verran

Pick a topic, any topic . . . Pittman introduces the no-win term paper.

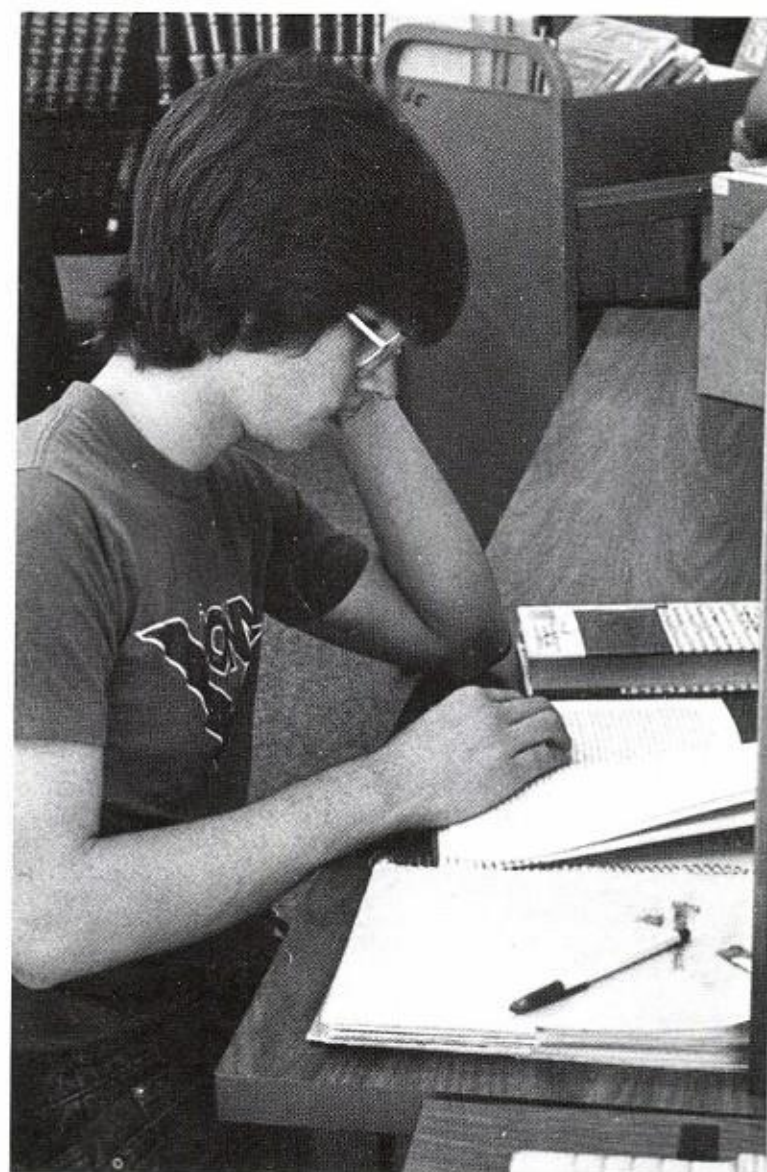

"Sunshine on my shoulders . . ." The sun sets on an English student.

Shu

"Umba Allah?" A student studies ancient religion in the world-renowned G.H.S. library.

"I could have had a V-8!" Jeff Crabtree needs energy to finish his reading.

"I swear there is a photographer out there" Pam Allen and Kevin Beck do not seem shy from the lens.

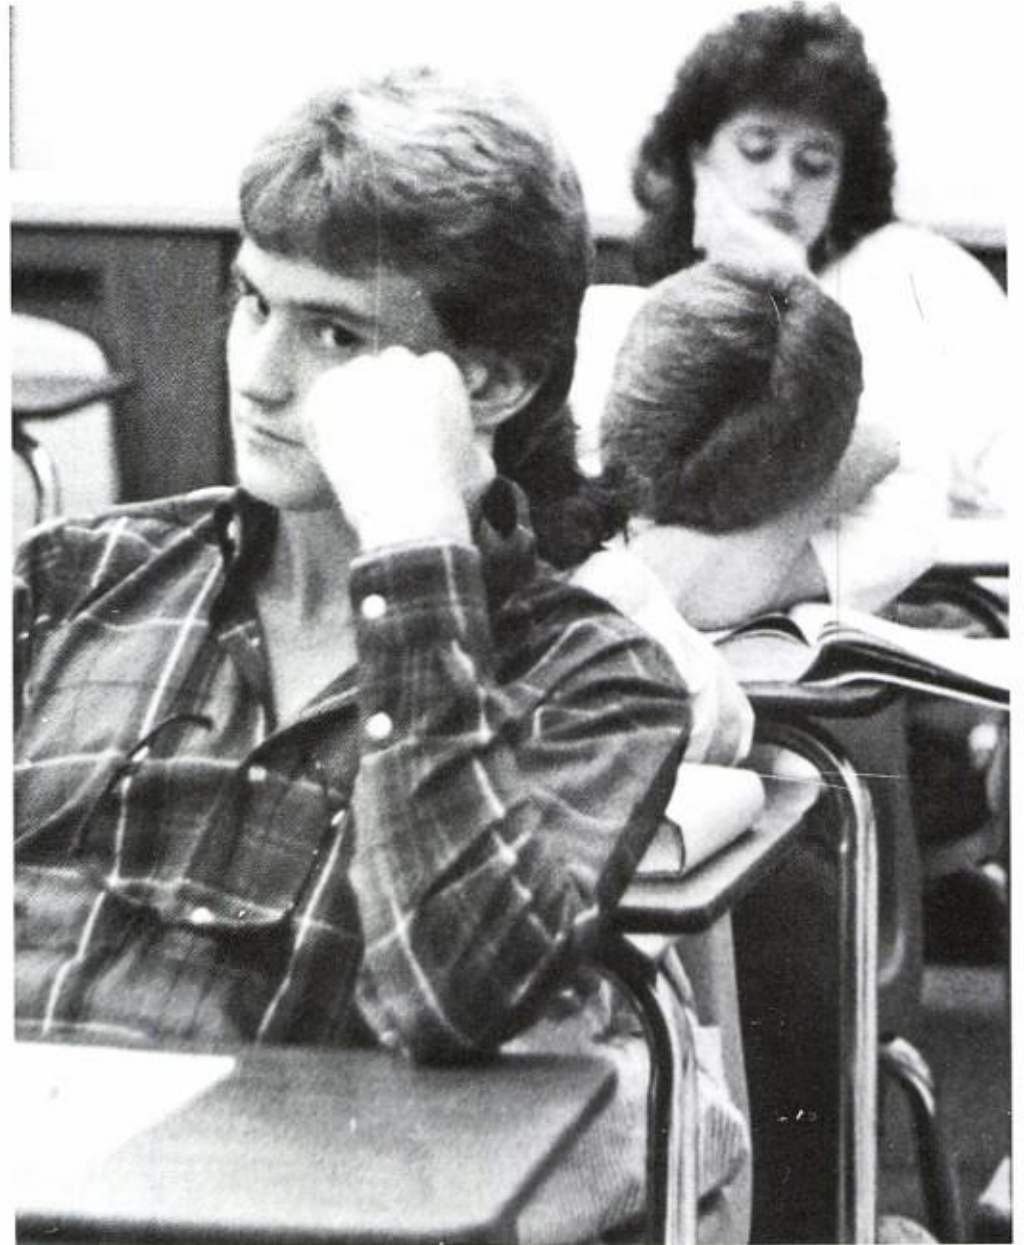

History repeated

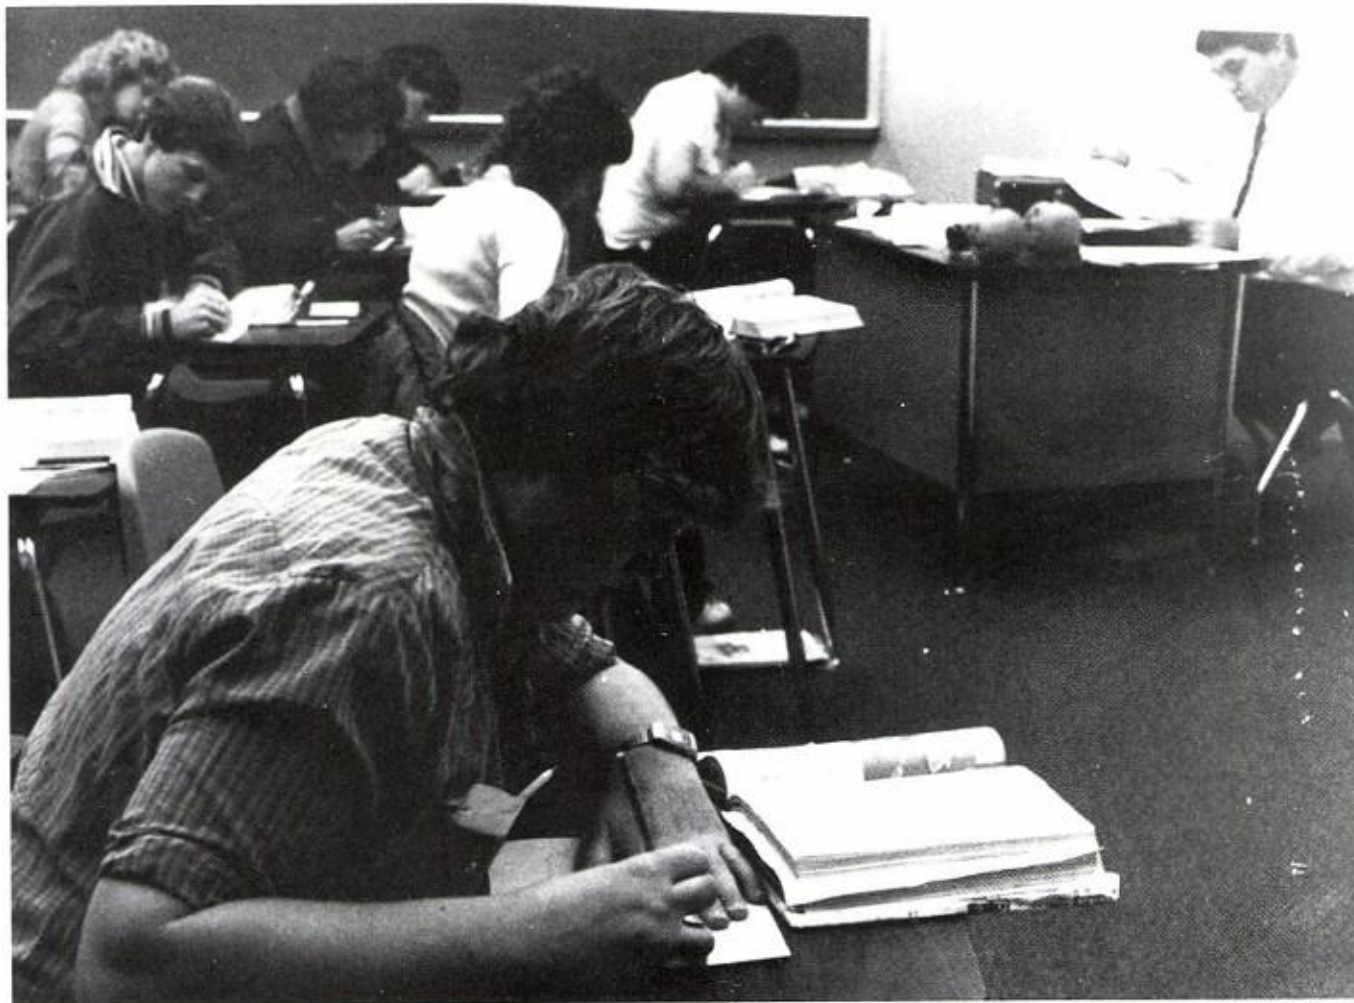

"Percent of what?" Mrs. Farris' economics class learns the secrets of a new world.

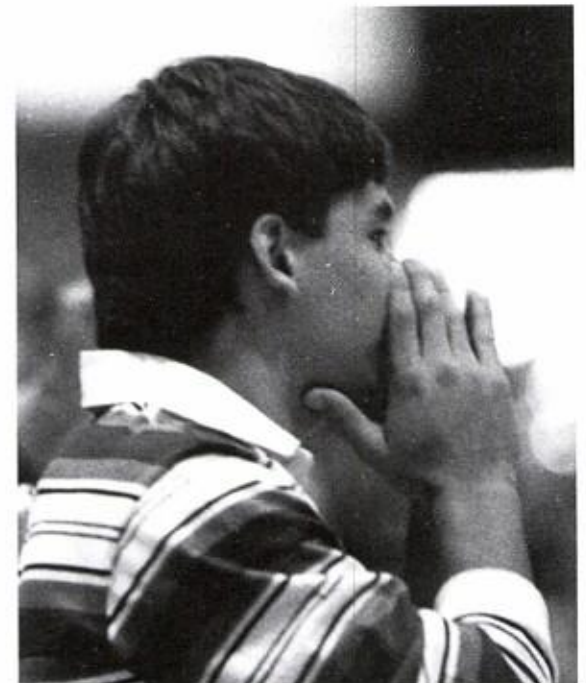

"Cro-Magnon Man, what a concept!" A world history student ponders his origin.

"I'm so excited . . ." Ray Tipton gets fired up about his history lecture.

Busy, busy! Study packets, the livelihood of a history student.

Terry Faulkner

"Ecce, ecce, ecce, arooahah!" Atilla demonstrates an ancient mating call in a history class.

Science provides a basic feature

Science plays a major role in the academic program at our school. Physical science, biology I and II, chemistry, physics, and anatomy are all basic features of the science program. The science classes' activities include experiments, labs, and the ever popular science fair projects for the honors classes.

Hands on experience. Students learn how to clean up messes.

Ouch, hot! Kim Lamar and Chris Nygard learn the properties of fire.

Elizabeth Ross

Notebook, notebook gimme a break! Carolyn Ravaoli tries to explain that a student should take notes in English.

Elizabeth Ross

Confidence. Raise your hand if you're sure.

Photojournalists try precision tuning

Photojournalism teaches the students to capture moments and moods on film. The class covers everything from focusing to developing. Many of the pictures in this yearbook have come from the hard work and dedication of the photojournalists.

"Look, aint it neat." Julie Nesbit displays her photogram to an apathetic class.

"I love the darkroom!" Kim Danko enjoys a relaxing break in the darkroom.

Run! Run! Run! Kerrie Spalding rushes to an exciting assignment.

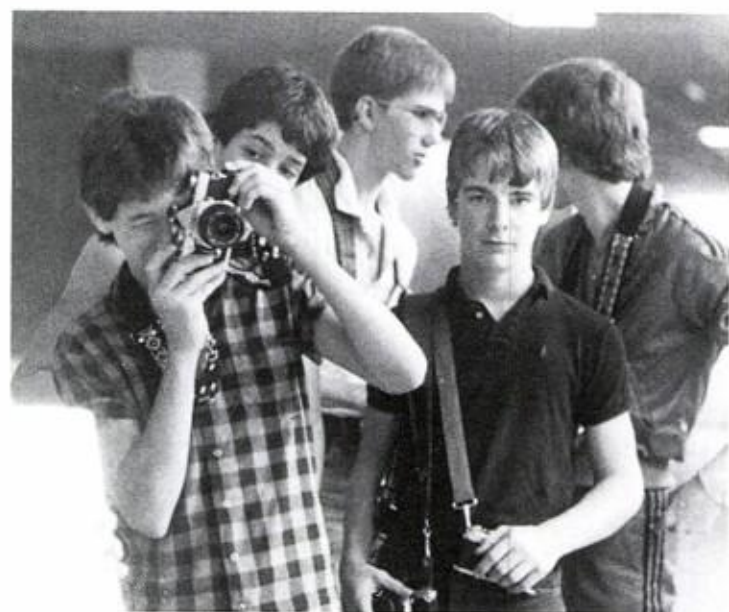

Shumate serves as head mechanic

Miss Shumate, Shu to her students, is the fearless leader of the photo, journalism, and yearbook classes. Shu is known for her outgoing personality, wit, and charm. She puts a large amount of her time into the Manestream and the Mustang.

"Suit up, tonight we fly!" Capt. Shu commands a squadron of photo students.

Drama shifts into overdrive

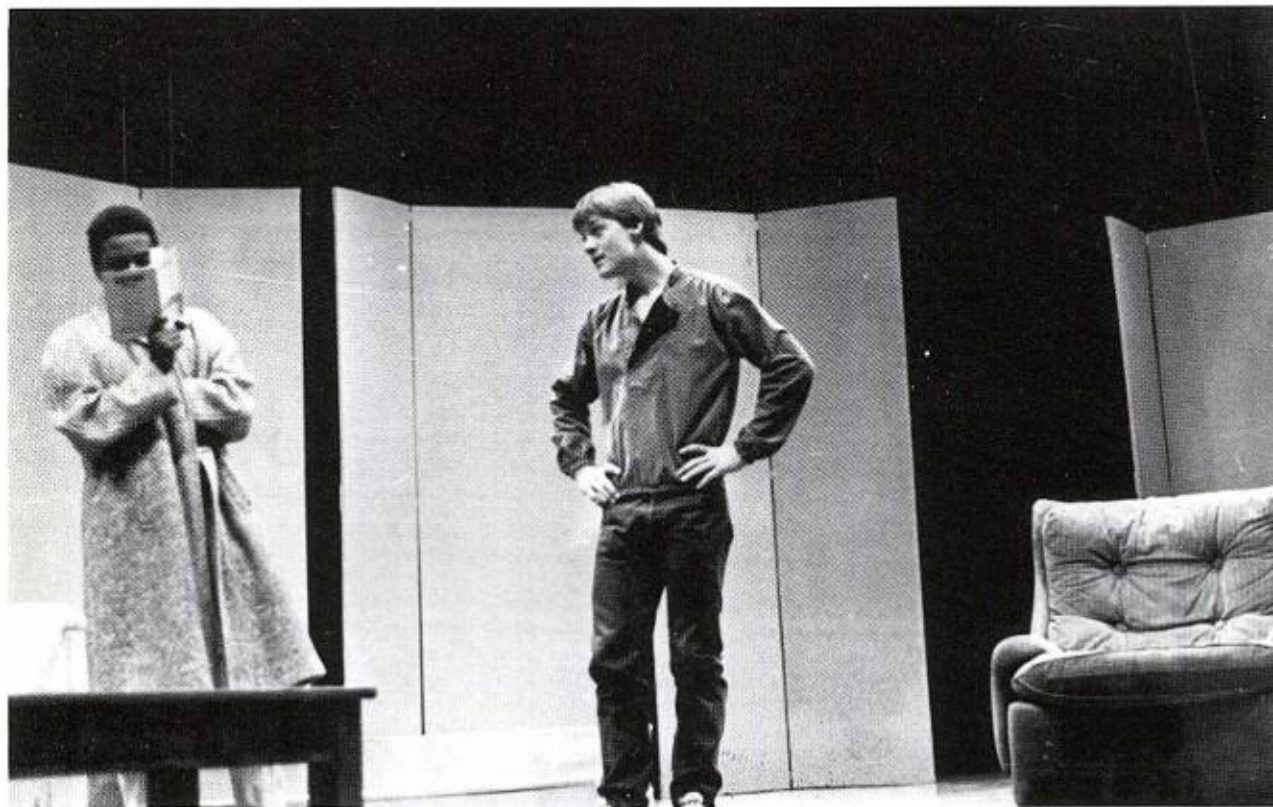

Drama had a busy schedule this year under the direction of Cheryl Hubenak. Their activities ranged from tournaments to performing for parents to preparing for the end-of-the-year finale, the one-act play.

The students worked hard all year in order to gain points toward their Thespian requirements.

In December, the students performed three one-act plays for the community's entertainment. The three plays were "Impromptu," "But Listen," and "The Patio."

In the spring, drama teamed up with choir to do "Lil' Abner." The students topped off the year with the performance of "Greater Tuna" at UIL.

Grapevine Gets a Taste of Broadway

Drama and choir with some outside help joined forces to put on the musical production of Lil Abner. The rehearsals started well before Christmas with the final production being held in mid May.

The musical centers around a little town called Dogpatch. The U.S. government wants to find a useless town to test a nuclear bomb. They happen to choose Dogpatch. The townspeople scramble to find something in their town that makes their town worth saving.

Lil' Abner runs approximately two hours with a cast of about thirty-four characters and extras. The entire cast worked hard to produce a "ready for Broadway" performance.

I HAVE SPOKEN!!! Mammy lays down the law.

KARI

The passage of House Bill 72 hit the senior class like a wet blanket. As a result of all the new rules, Kari Brekken found school to be less enjoyable. Like many others, she thought many of the rules were quite unfair. Nevertheless, with the leniency of the teachers and her sunny disposition, Kari faced the year with a smile and managed to have fun along the way.

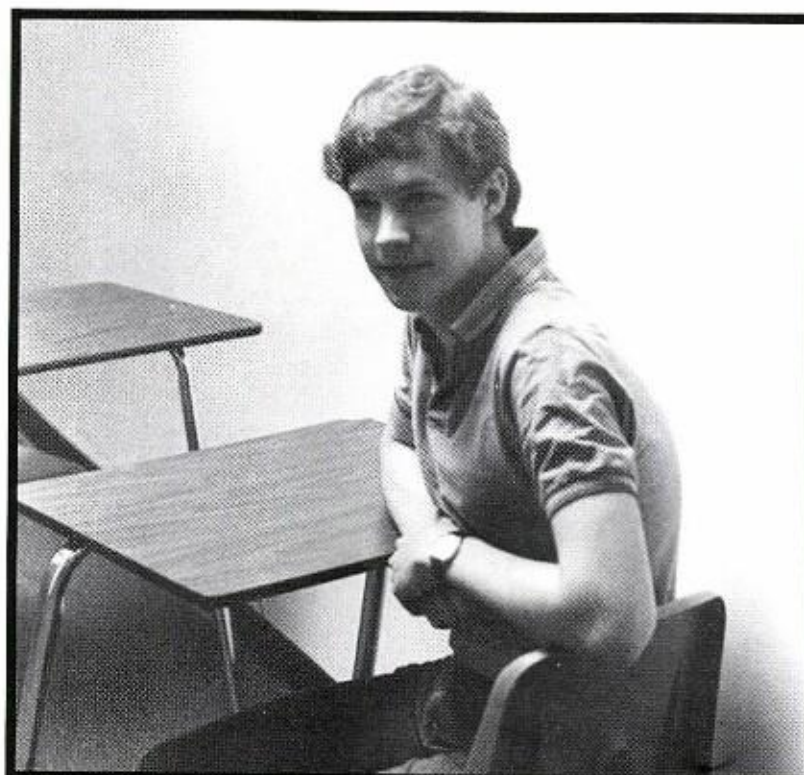

STEPHANIE

Although Steffanie Brock is ranked in this years Top-Twenty, she is not blinded by her scholastic success; she considers her class ranking to be a limited guarantee. Steffanie feels that ranking may help her to get into the college of her choice, but after school is over it does nothing for a person.

MARK

As many of his classmates well know, Mark Callahan is a diligent student who is concerned about attending a reputable college and majoring in a field that is best suited for him. Mark feels that his senior year and the faculty members he worked with helped him to make this very important decision.

BETTY

As most students know, senioritis is an age-old disease; however, a new one sprang up this year: grinding gears syndrome. Betty Churchill is afflicted with both maladies.

Betty thinks she has been suffering from senioritis since the first day of first grade, only then they called it spring fever.

As for grinding gears syndrome, Betty feels that anyone who has Mrs. LeBeau is susceptible to such a disease. Betty said, "I've just suffered twice as much since I have her twice a day."

JENNINGS

"Why is skiing (snow or water, it doesn't matter ...) such a big part of Grapevine High School life? Why is our school designed like a Holiday Inn? When will people stop dressing like they just got a charge card at Chess King? When will people realize that the closest thing to real life in high school is television? Why do people think that having a sense of humor is the same thing as the ability to make strange noises with their armpit? When will people discover that there really is a museum with all of the missing arms and legs from the famous statues? And, would I have been able to answer all of these questions if I had gone to a school other than Grapevine?"

MIKE

When Mike Darby was asked what he thought about the changes in the high school he responded with, "I've never really considered myself a reactionist and this question reminds me of when the bill that was to make school hours from 10:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. was rejected. Sure, I was mad. Maybe it wasn't that bill but the bill to make the hours from 3:00 a.m. until 12:00 noon. Oh, I can't remember now, but I was mad. What was the question? I'm mad."

Shu

BROOKS

Through his years here at Grapevine High School, both the faculty and the students have come to know Brooks Davis for his high-octane energy.

Brooks feels the secret behind his energy is the profound dedication to a long term goal. He also believes he can credit his energy to the ability to go through life with a sense of humor; Brooks believes in himself and his capabilities, but, he does not take himself too seriously.

If Brooks' energy is any indication of his dedication to success, he should definitely get somewhere.

Shu

LAURIE

With the passage of House Bill 72, some students were faced with damage to their academic exterior. Although Camille Davis' grades were not affected, she did find that the new bill made her work harder on her schoolwork. Even though she had gripes about the new rules as everyone else did, it encouraged Camille to perform with the intensity she always had.

Mike Skutchen

Shu

CAMILLE

Despite the drag presented to students with the passage of House Bill 72, Laurie James has faced the situation with great maturity. She has learned to accept the changes. Although setting down the rules all at once rather than slowly enforcing them as seemed quite harsh, Laurie feels as though the administrators are doing their best to make the system run smoothly. Laurie feels that through the whole experience she has learned the duties of a senior. "It is my responsibility as a senior to show some leadership and submit to their authority."

LIZ

If some students looked back and rated their personal performance in high school, they could barely scrape together enough points to make a failing grade. However, senior Liz Kennedy can look at her past record with a feeling of pride.

Giz, as she is referred to by her friends, feels her freshman and sophomore years were pretty good. But, when it came to her senior year, Giz found herself "spinning her wheels" waiting to graduate.

KIM

Some of the standard features of school are English class, cafeteria food, complaints, and mid-morning History naps. However, there are some extra features as well, and Kim Lamar can credit herself with quite a few of them.

As a senior, Kim has become a member of both Student Council and the National Honor Society. She is vice-president of F.C.A., which she has been a member of for three years. She is a three year member of the Fillies and served as a line officer this year.

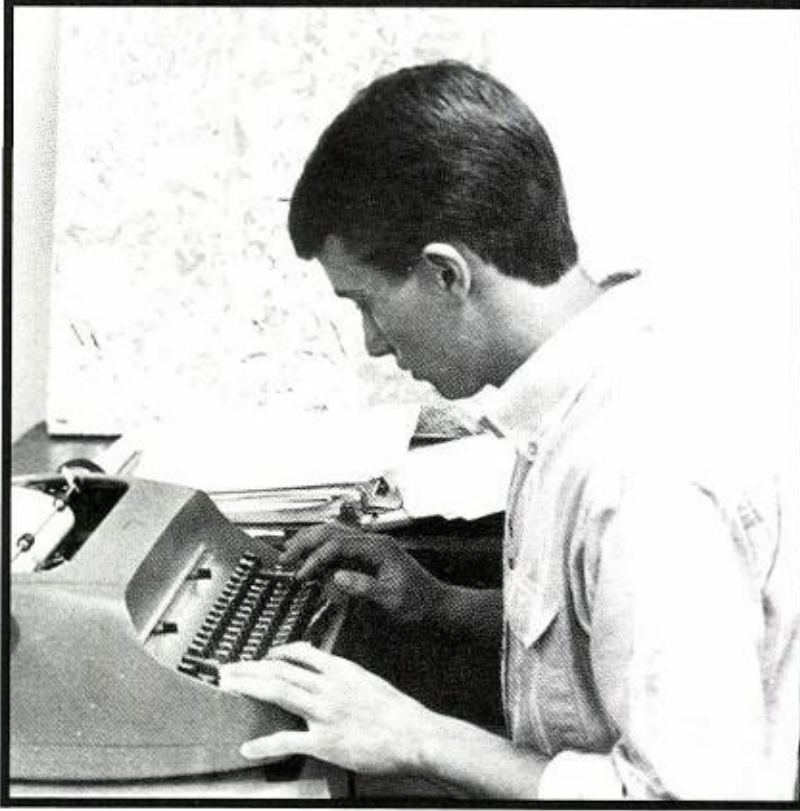

As a whole, Kim seems to enjoy taking part in many student activities.

THERESA

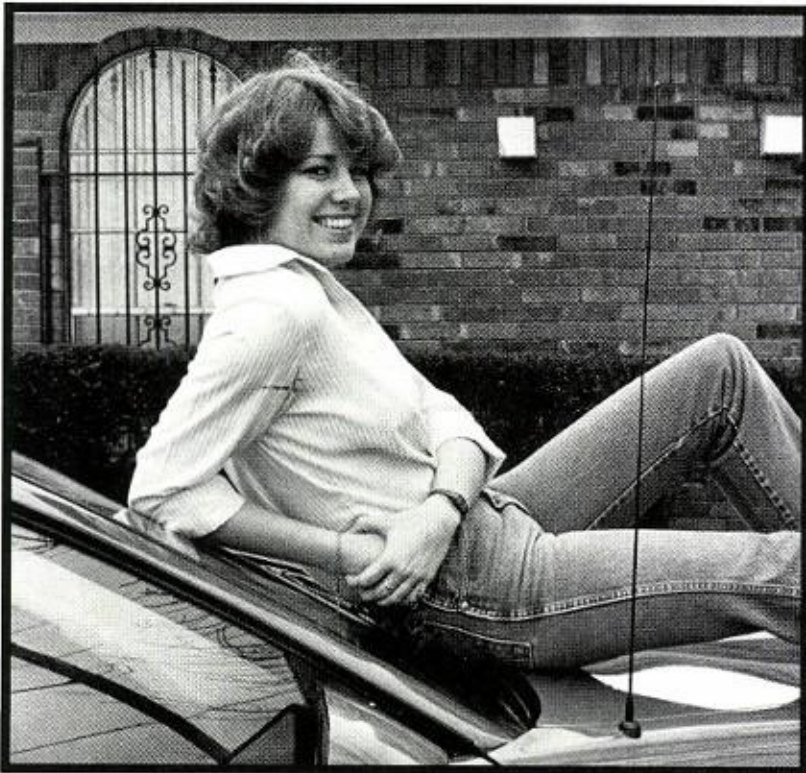

Despite how the school has changed in physical appearance, many standard features have remained. The pride in Grapevine High School is one feature Theresa Martin will miss most. The unity of the students and the intense feeling of school spirit helped make the changes bearable for Theresa. She summed up her feelings about Grapevine by saying, "The teachers and students work together to make Grapevine High School the best it can be and nothing less."

Shu

MATT

Matt McCullough was encouraged early on to do well in school by his parents. The encouragement given to him was always supportive, and the only pressure he received was that which he placed on himself. "I realized early that if I was going to make it to college and be successful, I would have to work hard for it." With the encouragement from his parents, college as an incentive, and Matt's strong competitive nature, success is guaranteed.

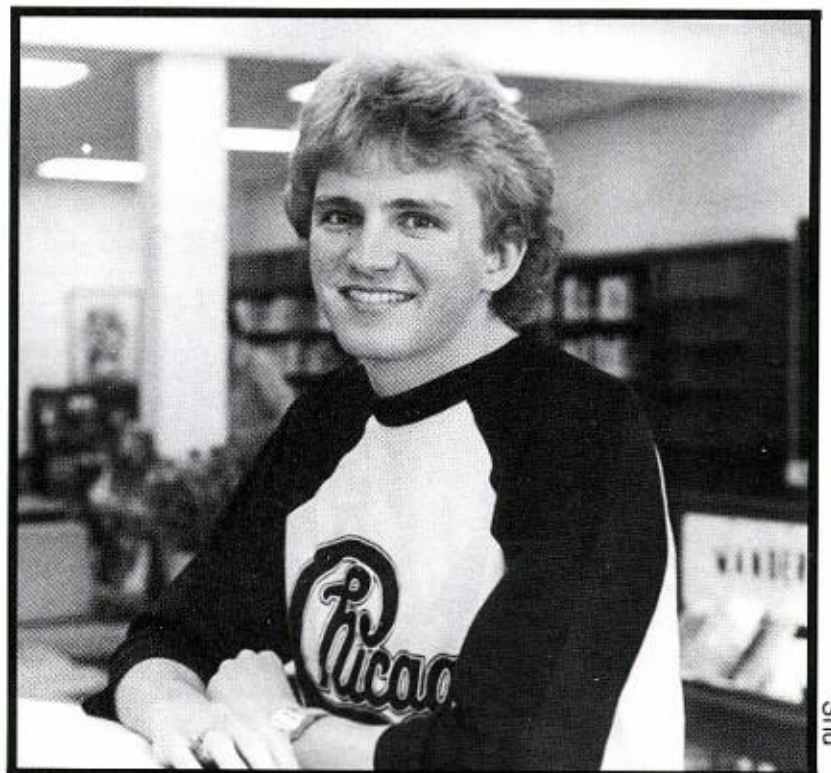

Mike Skutchen

RACHEL

During her four years in high school, Rachel Ray has witnessed many changes. She has seen a new principal and his staff come in and instill their philosophies. Rachel has watched social groups become more blended throughout the years.

The most drastic change has been that imparted by H. Ross Perot. House Bill 72 put a damper on many senior activities. Even though not all of the changes were liked, they did provide a varied scenery.

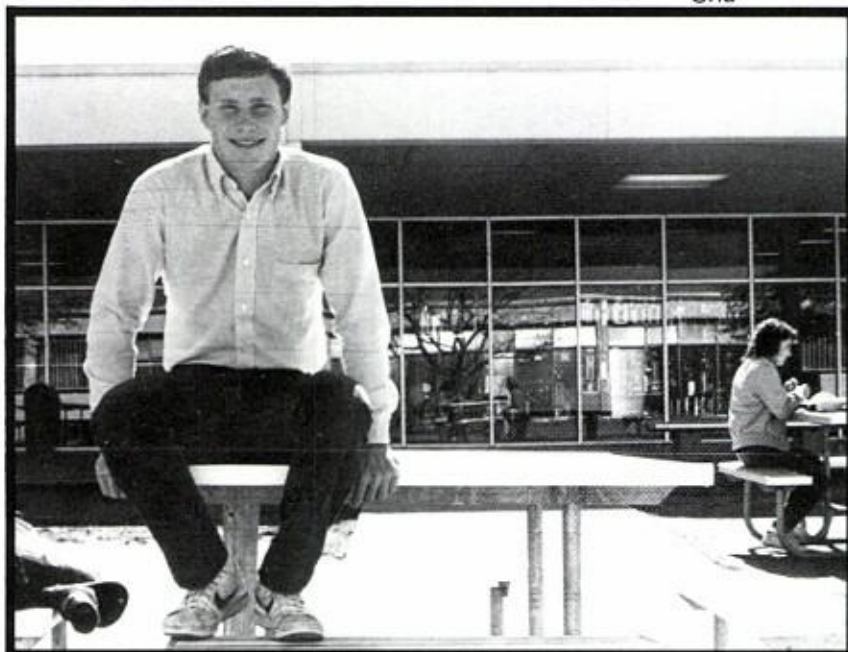

Shu

JERRY

The stereotyped Top-Twenty student is pictured as a bookworm whose overdriving transmission compels him to study 24 hours a day. Jerry Risser does not fit this image.

Jerry knows a Top-Twenty position was on the drawing board through his high school years; however, he hopes it was not his overdriving ambition. Jerry said, "Concentrating on nothing but class rank isn't cake — it's more like raw oysters." Jerry said that being in the Top-Twenty was an idea he thought would be the icing on the cake. He feels the total experience of his four years at Grapevine was the important thing.

Shu

SCOTT

Although many students speak against them, Scott Selzer believes that his teachers served as key components throughout his high school years. Scott has found that some of his teachers, his German teacher in particular, have taught him as much about life as the subject studied. He has also found his experience with Mrs. LeBeau to be valuable.

Though most of his high school years were spent in Yankeeeland, the time Scott has been at Grapevine High School has been rewarding.

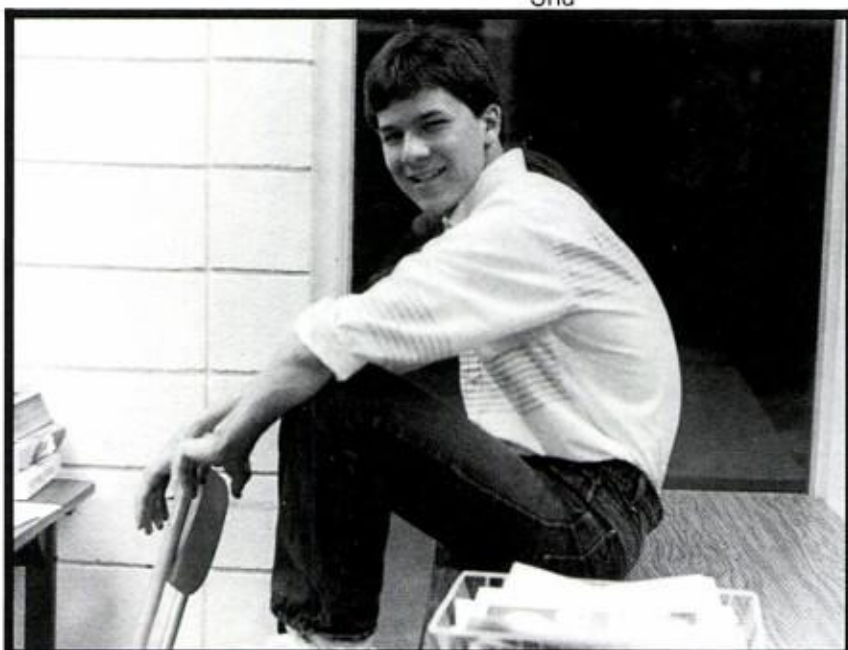

TOM

High school holds many memories for Tom Telford. He had good times which were fun and interesting. He also had bad times which were boring and, sometimes, sickening. Nevertheless, with his amiable personality, he managed to take it all in stride. Tom sums up life in high school as a "real experience."

Mike Skutchen

Shu

JEFF

For Jeff Watt, his senior year was the most fun of all of his years at G.H.S. Once he had decided on a college and had received his letter of acceptance, he felt he could relax and concentrate on having fun. "The worry was over and now the wait for September began."

Mike Skutchen

CODY

Anybody that knows Cody Atchley knows that she is intensely dedicated to her studies. However, this year her headlights strayed to the shoulder of the road, and she found herself wanting to socialize rather than study. Oddly enough, she seems to think most of her peers have this same desire (We do not believe that, do we?). Despite this, Cody kept her perspective and has earned her Top-Twenty position.

MICHELE

If you think that Michele Bodine is one to be procrastinating, think again. Michele is a very ambitious person and always takes the initiative. She takes an active voice in everything she participates in. She considers herself to be in the driver's seat and does not wait for others to do things for her.

Who are these people? the smart? the popular? or are they just lucky? Despite what the answer is, they are the workers — the power-houses!

"I pledge myself to uphold the high purpose of the National Honor Society to which I have been elected: I will be true to the principles for which it stands; I will be loyal to my school; and will maintain and encourage high standards of character, scholarship, leadership, and service."

To qualify, they must hold down a 3.5 grade point average or above and are evaluated by the teachers on scholarship, service, leadership and character. In addition to achieving these high standards, many are not solely devoted to classes. Holding down a job, participating in athletics, and being in clubs are just a few of the numerous extra activities that fill up the day.

They strive to find the best of their potential and achieve the most!

Fillies bring it all together

The Fillies were shifting gears from the very first of the year. Not only taking in new officers and members, but also a new director. The changes have not been easy but the Fillies still manage to delight the crowd. And delighting the crowd has almost become a regular responsibility for these girls. Their efforts to adjust to the changes have made it difficult to keep a feeling of team unity. But all of them clearly have that Fillie smile which reflects pride — Fillie Pride!

New model: Decathlon team arrives on the test track

Until this year, few students had even heard of Academic Decathlon; however, these quickly became household words.

Our decathlon team consisted of 17 members until they took an elimination exam which narrowed the team down to nine members at three levels: three Honors students, three Scholastic students, and three Varsity students. The Honors students were Wendy Nelson, Tom Telford, and alternate Susie Stadelmayer. The Scholastic students were Liz Kennedy, Rachel Ray, and alternate Debe Ashe. The Varsity students were Jeni Larkin, Mike Poth, and alternate Mark Corbelli.

These students were a special group of people; who else could have maneuvered a sofa, a chair, carpet, a refrigerator, and their very own room past the eyes of nearly 1300 students?

For the team, the room was a sight for sore eyes: for anyone else, it was a sight which caused sore eyes. (To say the least, the furnishings were not an Ethan Allan exclusive!) The sofa and chair upholstery was gold, green, and tan with extremely large daisies. The carpet looked like a dog had laid on it year round. And what could be said about the 1949 refrigerator? But the team did not complain. "The Room" quickly became a home away from home.

The decathlon team competed against teams from various schools in ten different academic fields, some of which were biology, mathematics, social sciences, fine arts, and literature.

The highlight of the year was the trip to the science museum at the State Fair and the Dallas Museum of Fine Arts. Among the "exhibits" were Ron Chapman, Susie Humphrey's transparent bodies, and the Sound System, which tested how loud a person's voice could get; Betty Churchill won with 100 decibels. Mrs. Thompson won the weight-on-the-moon game and struck oil; the video screen gave her statistics. Let us not leave out the brown-baggers, Fletcher's Corny Dogs, or the security guard who accused Betty Churchill of writing on a painting with a ball-point pen.

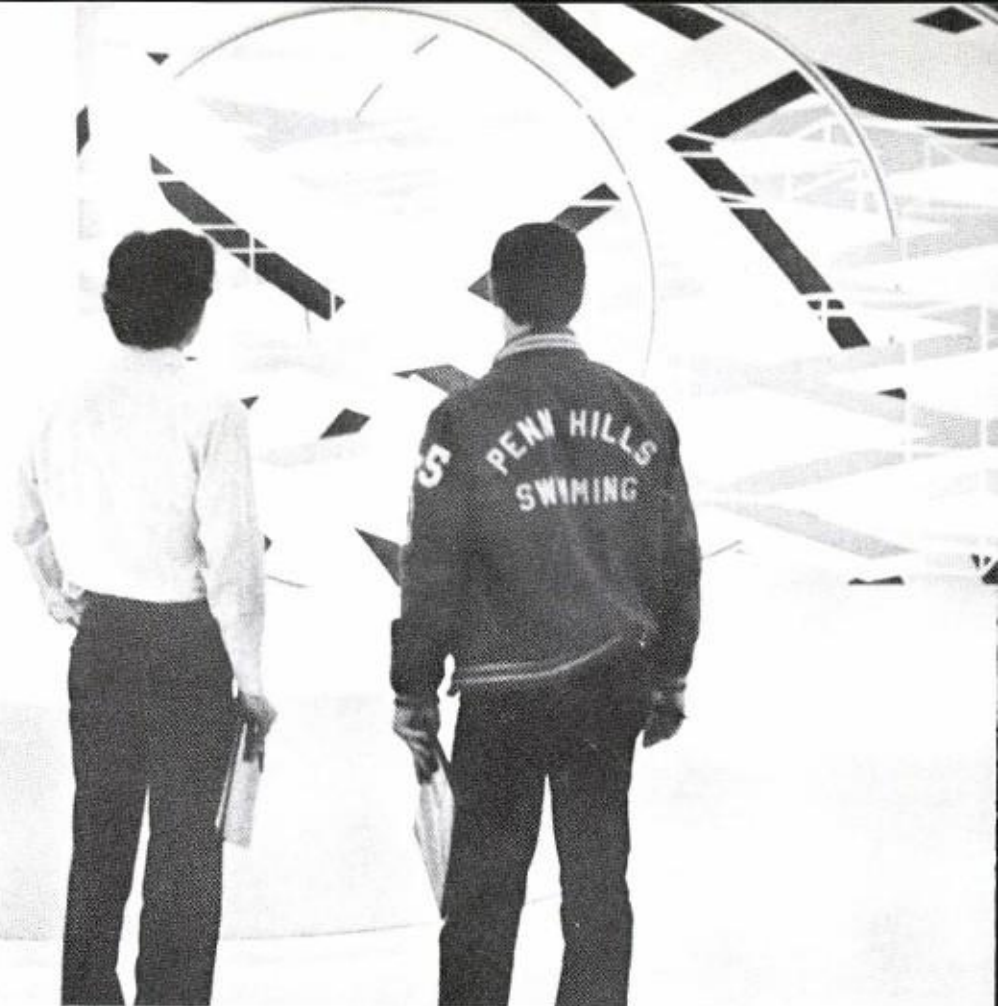

In the beginning, when Academic Decathlon got the green flag, the race may have come to a slow start, but the checkered flag closed a race full of flying colors.

Cheerleaders modify routines, schedules

Through pep rallies, football season, and basketball season, the cheerleaders' work was never done. They returned this year looking better than ever. The varsity went to competition early this year taking Lake Highlands by storm and advancing to Nationals. State playoffs for volleyball and football extended the season while basketball fell right in step.

All of this was not achieved without changes occurring. Cartwheels were replaced with backhand springs, run-through posters were replaced by Coach Saunders' players' orderly entry, and the pep rallies had to be arranged to accommodate the shortened schedule.

A chorus line, varsity rah-rahs pose pretty.

We're number 1. Senior Christi Hall shouts.

What can I say??! J.J. Looks at the scoreboard.

Nana-nana boo-boo! Piper salutes the opposing squad.

AAAUUUGGGHH!!

JV's

The 1984-85 junior varsity cheerleaders are Lynn Crumbaker, Stacie Miller, Christy Robson, Charla Gwinn, Renee Schollmeyer, and Michelle Russell. Stacie as head rah led the squad to State competition but an injury kept the girls from advancing. The girls cheered through football then basketball finding their first break in spring.

"I just don't understand!" Lynn Crumbaker announces.

"Look mom a blue ribbon!" JV ray-rahs display their award.

"You want us to do what?!" Lynn and Stacie look puzzled.

Freshmen

The freshman rah-rahs for 1985-86 are Denise Ferguson, Ginger Moore, Cristin Parker, Sheila Bright, Tina Dees, and Gloria Girdler. Camp initiations were their usual sticky experience, and the 6 girls (five from GMS and 1 from CMS) got to know each other better in that rough week. The girls cheered the freshman football team to a winning season and made an occasional appearance in the pep rallies.

"On the threshold of tomorrow . . ."; freshmen cheerleaders Denise and Ginger show their spirit.

Sheila Bright

Tina and Cristin perfect their form."

Denise Ferguson preps for a jump.

"A cheerleader camera shy?!!", Gloria hides her face.

Scientists explode under pressure

The science club took their show on the road this year. Changes in the state's rules and regulations caused the club's annual "Mad Scientist" show to be transported to the nearby "Haunted Mausaleum." The haunted house served over twice as many goblins and witches as the year before.

The club is also involved in the yearly crazy Goblin day festivities. A wedding for 50¢, the cheapest price found anywhere in the United States.

Leo Club Rates High in Service Department

Testing his nose. Scott Selzer checks his balance.

The Leo club is a student service organization branching from the Lions club. The members are led by Didi Duffy — president, Monica Poedevin — vice-president, Tonya Walker — secretary, and Traci Tice and Matt McCullough — treasurers. In its second year, the club took cookies to nursing homes and adopted little brothers and sisters. A cartoon on drug and alcohol abuse was presented to the elementaries and junior high schools. Their main fund raiser was raffling a car. They also made plans to assist at a special olympics camp this summer.

STUDENT COUNCIL

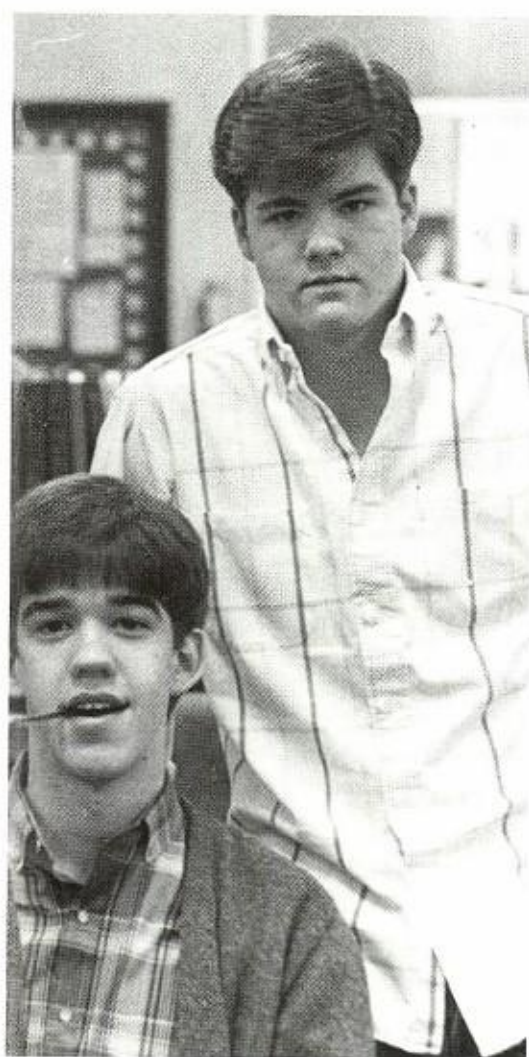

KEEPS LOW PROFILE

Student council like everything else has had its changes. For the better . . . or for worse?

The student council brings it all together. Goblin day, concession stands, and general elections are just a few of the jobs that they organize each and every year. They keep on their toes trying to satisfy their customers, which is not as easy as it sounds. Trying to please the community, the students, the administration, and on top of it all, this year, Ross Perot at the same time makes change inevitable.

Español Survives, Thrives on Changes

The 84-85 Spanish Club is once again one of the most active organizations on campus. The sponsors are Mrs. Nesralla and Miss Hall and officers are: president — Martin Vasquez, vice-president — Sammy Walrath, secretary — Michelle Pringle, and treasurer — Tammy Chambliss. Nelson Pinero holds the position of PASF representative (Pan American Student Forum). The activities this year, although they have been cut back as a result of H. Ross, have included Christmas party, trips to Joe T.'s, fund raisers, a trip to San Antonio to compete, Six Flags, and a "camp-out."

French club

Including their fund-raising events (like candy sales), French club members participate in many fun activities. Led by Mrs. Corder, the club's officers are Jerry Risser — president, Michelle Knight — vice-president, Didi Duffy — secretary, Debe Ashe — treasurer, and Renae Barrow and Gwen Thompson — project chairmen. The members attended many competitions and came away winners. Their fund-raising activities will hopefully contribute to a Europe trip this summer.

Farmers excel once again

These are the people of the future. The Future Farmers of America is a group organized in most every school in the United States. It creates a close knit group of commonly interested students which are preparing to pursue a career in agriculture or just have an interest in this field.

A tradition held in FFA is the election of the sweetheart. Tamara Joyce, this year's choice, is an all around contributor to the school. Other than her activities in ag, she is also an honor student, a band manager, and soccer player. In the past this position has traditionally been held by a student which concentrates almost solely on ag. work, but this like so many other things it has changed.

Rodeo team returns to old sport

Our purpose is to further and develop the sport of high school rodeoing as a primary means of wholesome family recreation. We promote the sport of high school rodeoing through organized group interest and activities also engaging in specialized studies aimed at broadening participation in the sport.

Members may participate in as many as 30 rodeos a year, these are sanctioned by the North Texas High School Rodeo Association. These rodeos begin in September and end in May. The finals, held in June, consist of top cowboys and cowgirls who have won or placed in previous sanctioned rodeos. The events consist of bareback bronc riding — calf roping — saddle bronc — steer undecorating — breakaway roping — steer wrestling — goat tying — ribbon roping — team roping — barrel racing — chute dogging — pole bending and bull riding.

Homemakers learn the basics of life

The Future Homemakers of America group helps students learn some of the basics in life. They consist mostly of cooking and sewing groups. Also, among other things, they participate in cooking treats for Goblin Day and selling flowers for special occasions. The group succeeds in spreading cheer for any occasion.

FHA, through homemaking classes, greatly benefits many people in years to come. Some students that enroll in these classes begin not knowing anything about even the basics of cooking or sewing. "So, what is a strainer?" is not atypical. "Does this thread go through here? Or in Here?" The class and the organization is appreciated and needed by everyone.

When in Rome . . .

Led by Mrs. Le Beau, Latin Club has been involved in many activities. The officers for this year are: Mike Darby — Consul, Liz Kennedy — Pro Consul, Bryan Shoemaker — Aedile, Betty Churchill — Censor. At Latin Competition on Feb. 9 The Romans came home victorious. Mike Darby placed 1st in art, Bryan Shoemaker — 2nd in song, Karen Shaffer — cumlaude translation, and Bobby Lamkin got 1st in the Chariot races. Their fund raisers vary from selling mums at Homecoming, to selling sausage on Goblin Day. For fun the Romans held their 5th annual "Great Pumpkin Race," St. Valentine's Day celebration, and Maypole wrap.

Voct completes satisfaction guarantee

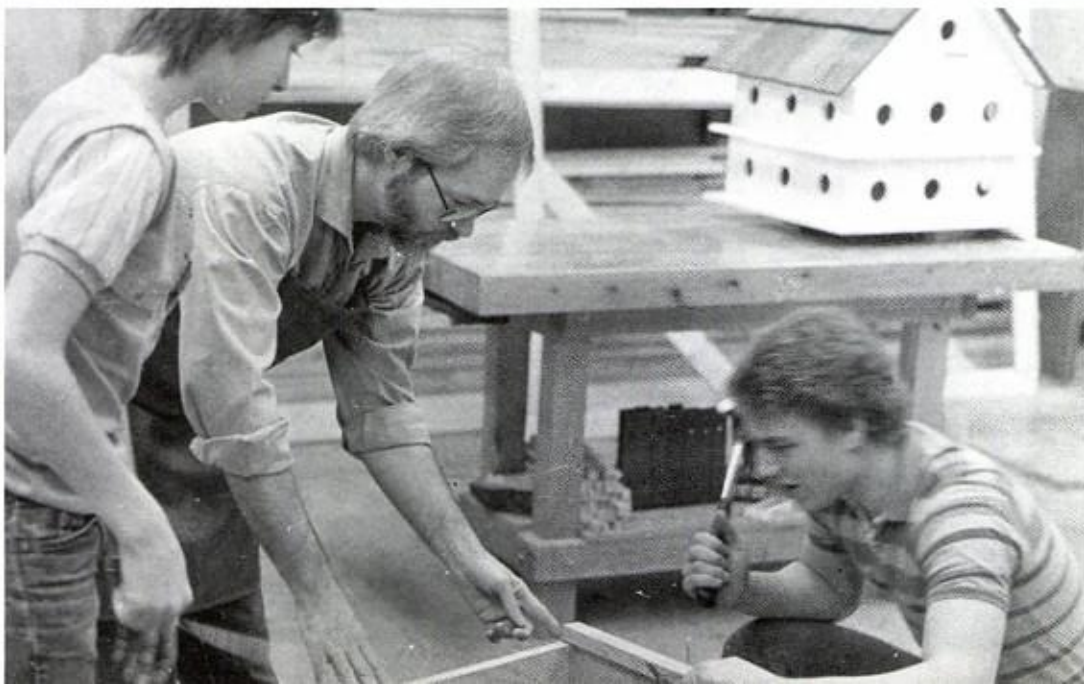

Vocational Opportunities Clubs of Texas are lifetime service guarantees to complete performance, accomplishment, and satisfaction.

As part of the Grapevine High School's Company's commitment to total satisfaction, participating VOCT members stand behind their masonry, carpentry, cabinetry, and framing. VOCT members believe in the worthiness of work, and try their best to become expert workers. They are committed to the American way of life and believe in being fair and honest. The members depend on education and try to establish the best use of the knowledge and skills in which they have learned. VOCT is guaranteed satisfaction that is gained from good, hard, honest work. by Cody Atchley

DECA PREPARES FOR FUTURE

Distributive Education prepares students for an office atmosphere as well as an office attitude. The teaching of management skills and business affairs allows the students to experience the joy of the working world in a classroom.

Vice Pres. Janet Chapman
Treas. Shelby Lacey
Sec. Dee Janice
Sponsor Bobbie Kimbrough

Consider the alternatives. Office Education Association. More skills. More knowledges. More abilities. That's what we wanted, the development of these occupational items to the highest level of proficiency. And now we will get leadership in the field of office education as well as to develop a sense of individual responsibility. With planning a party for the children's home, being candy strippers for area hospitals, and raising revenue for various projects can get carried out by only one group, OEA.

Most likely to traverse any terrain because of their senses of humor; they are most likely to roll with the punches because they don't take themselves too seriously.

Aaron Muehlstein, Christi Hall: Best design

Michele Bodine, Jennings Crawford

Most likely to always land on their feet, those most likely to experience success at whatever they try.

Steve Taber, Liz Kennedy most loyal, the best buddies to a great number of people, the people most likely to lend a helping hand.

Class of '85
Here we are Looking back
Have we come far?

Our Freshman Year
Seems ages ago.
We were "just kids" then.
Seed of the future we sowed.

"Wipe 'Em Out"
Was our winning homecoming float's
theme.
Did we win or lose the game?
It doesn't matter, it seems.

Our Sophomore Year
Upper-Classmen, at last!
I don't remember much;
It went by so fast.

Our Junior Year
Some spirit was found.
We yelled in the pep rallies
And even jumped around.

So now we're Seniors!
It's been a quick three years.
Some may find regrets.
Some may find tears.

Regrets are realizing
The things that kept us apart.
The cliques that divided us
And took away our heart.

We each have our labels
We give to each other:
Cowboys, Jocks, or Socials.
No longer are we all brothers.

Graduation is waiting.
Our whole life's ahead.
What have we done with today?
Grapevine . . . enough said!

The time will come to leave
And go our separate ways.
But that time is tomorrow;
We've still got today.

DONNA McDOUGAL

We Brake for Spring

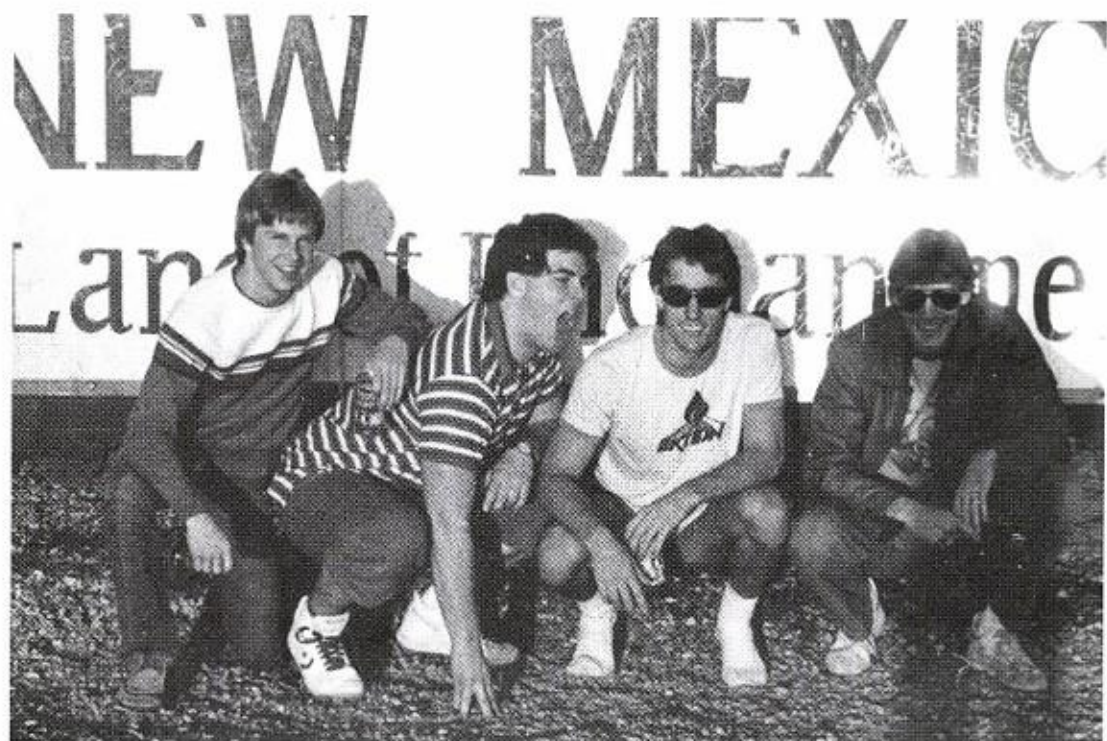

Once again Spring Break arrived at GHS and students packed their bags for the annual road trips. Others made the most of their vacations in Grapevine. GHS experienced a continental divide as half of the student body journeyed to the beach, and the remainder "hit the slopes." United with thousands of other spring-breakers, they endured a week of unrelenting fun in the sun (and/or snow). The halls were filled with "well I can top that!" stories on Monday. Bringing back stories from Copper Mountain to Padre, students competed as to who could attain the ultimate tale of adventure from their vacation.

Make my day. Rick gets a little anxious for New Mexico.

Gives us the black diamond or gives us death. Pam, Julie, Cindy, Trish, and Kelli dare to conquer Copper Mountain.

Deported from Texas. Brett, H.J., Keith, and Rick cross state lines.

The famous "Beaker" face. Mike, Rob, and Daren take a break from the moguls.

"Are we having fun yet??!!" Dianne and Tammy (and friends) are a little anxious for the beach.

Kim Presley

"Excellent rays!" Andy and Billy stand by to offer solareaine service to Traci.

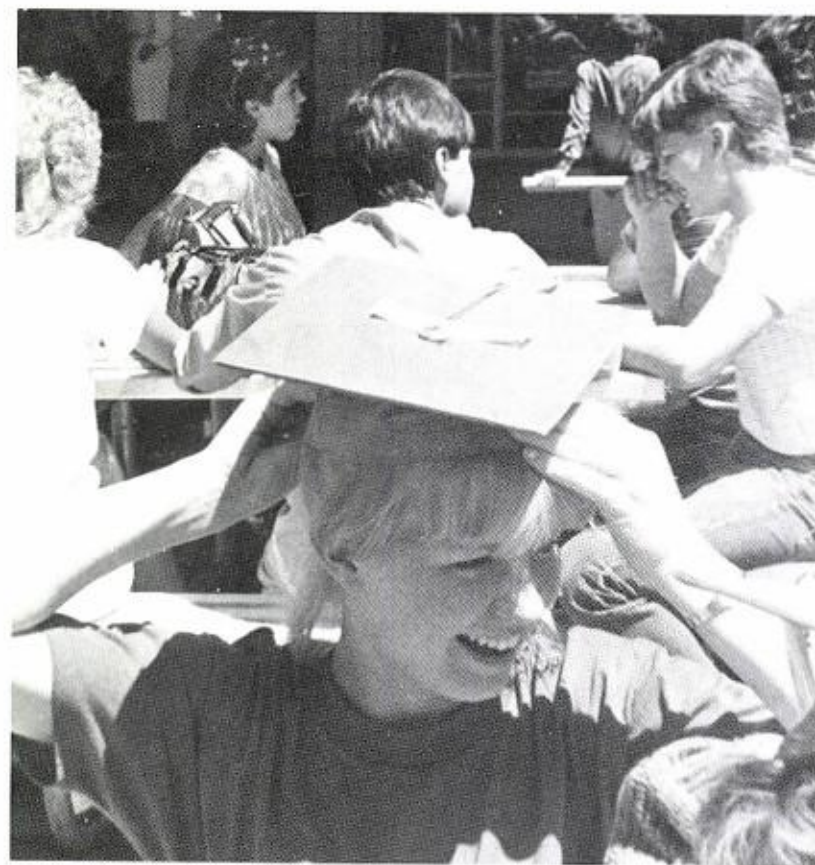

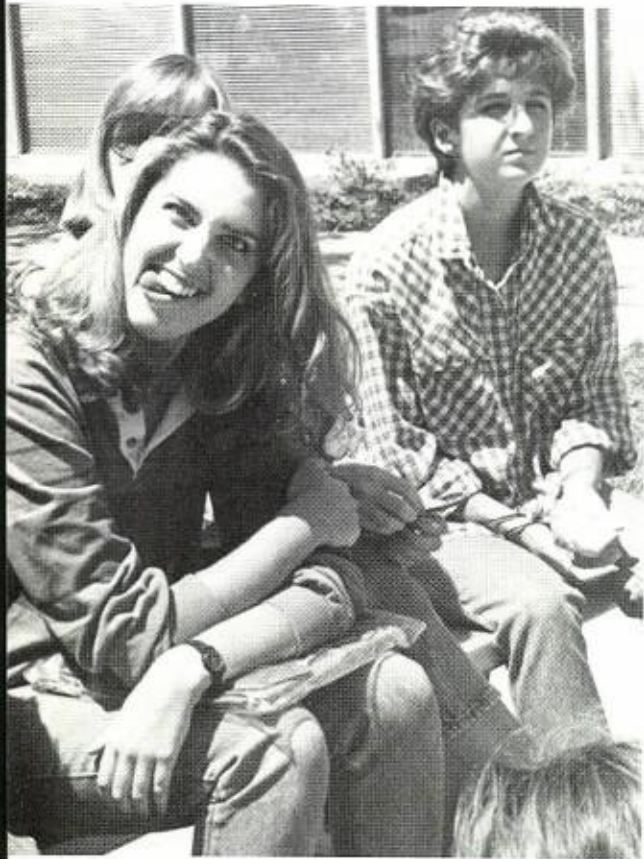

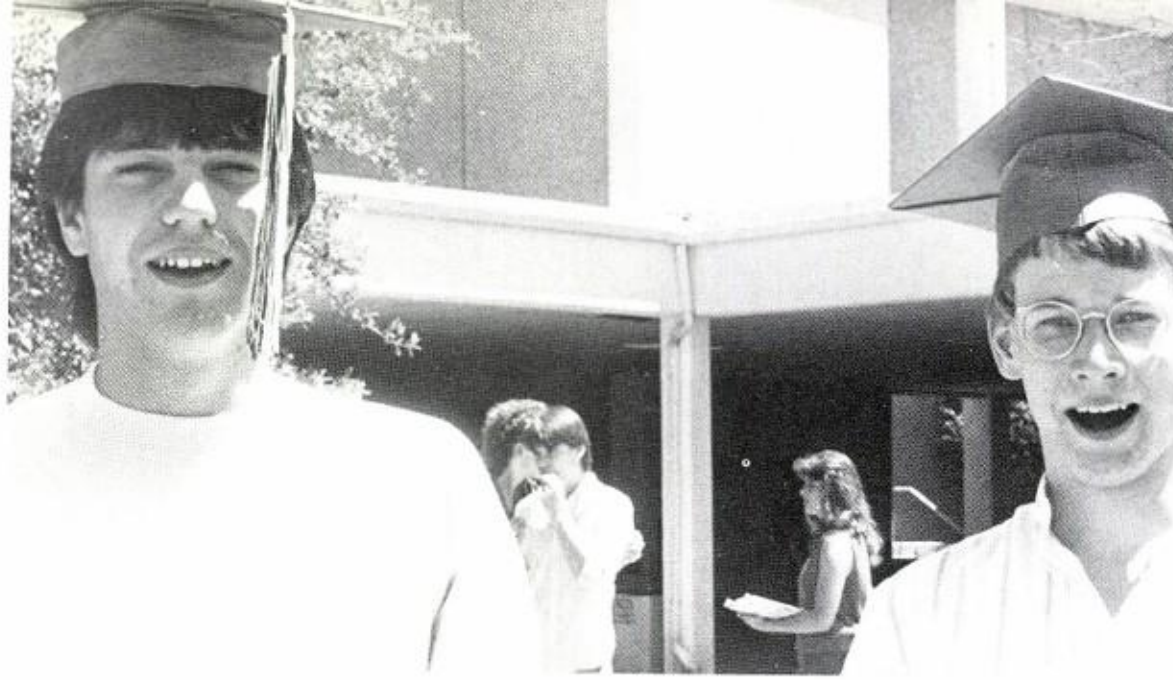

Students economize. Who needs Holiday Inn when you have the party mobile?

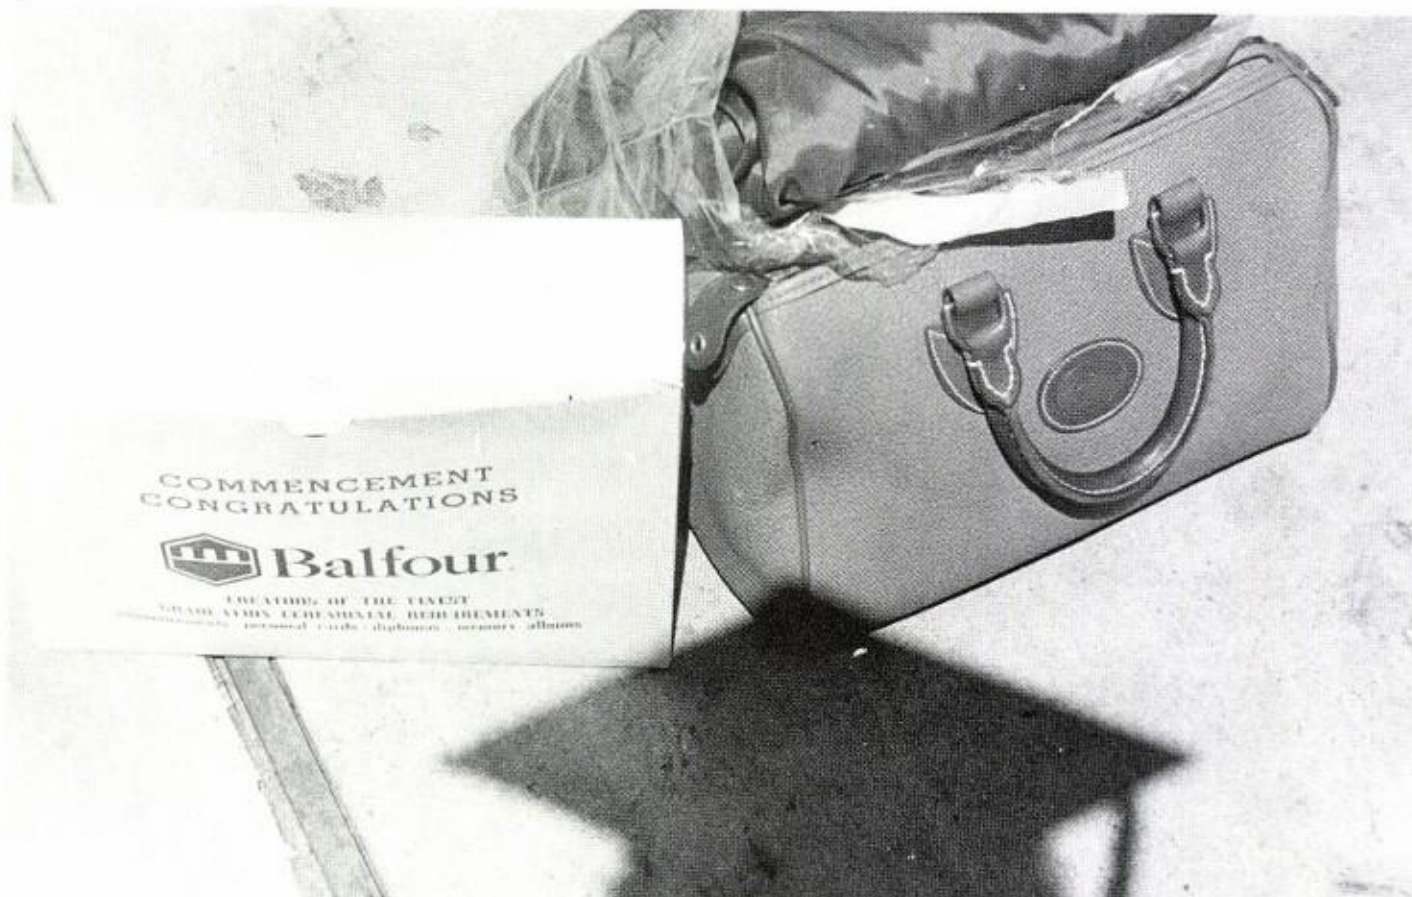

Nuke the fat chicks!! This was the famous slogan at the beach.

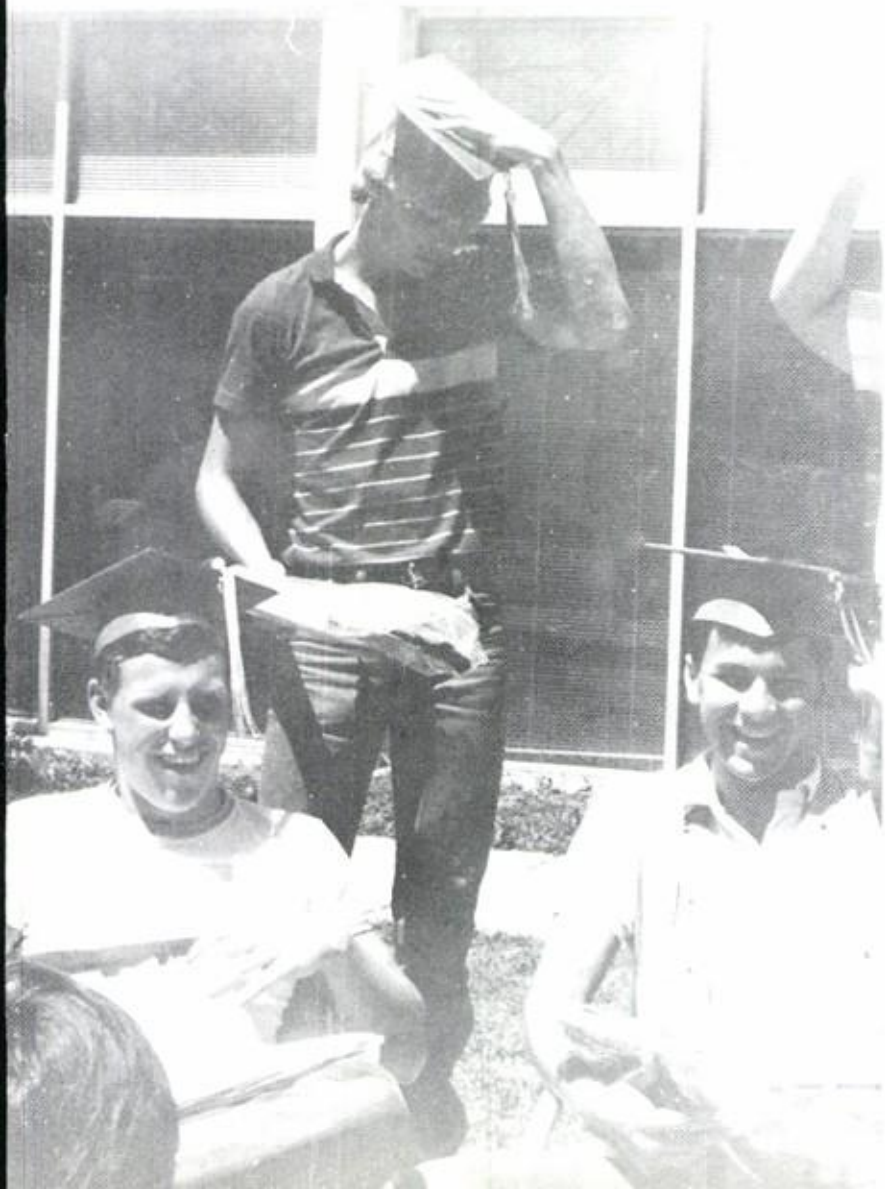

Club Med?!! No it's Parr park. Those who were home made the best of it.

Mustangs win 30-0 Mustangs

The varsity baseball team went into its season with expectations of continuing the winning tradition of the year's athletic competition. The Mustangs came through by getting into the playoffs for the first time since 1975 and earning a spot in the top ten for the first time in the history of Grapevine baseball. "In baseball at Grapevine we have seen many changes as far as attitudes and feelings for each other. The work has been hard but worth it. And now as we enter the playoffs, it is time to have fun and relax as far as pressure on ourselves," said Coach Benefield. One reason for the team's success is that they work together as a team. Coach Benefield commented on this by saying, "The players have made the action happen their way and good things have come from it. It shows that good things come to those who work."

In the past Grapevine has not been known as a school for baseball, but now we are. "We've done pretty good for a team that we were told would not have much pitching. If we were to compare the batting at the beginning of the season to the way we're hitting the ball now, there would be a tremendous difference. The thing that has gotten us this far is the fundamentals of technique and mechanics. The team that will go the farthest in the playoffs is the team that will stick to the fundamentals," said Coach Sneed.

As the years pass, the 1985 baseball team can look back and know that they were the best team Grapevine High School has ever seen.

Freshmen earn license to win

After a disappointing start, the freshman volleyball team was able to pull off a winning record.

They finished the season with a 5-5 record in district and an 8-7 record overall which puts them in the winning season category.

"The freshmen have had what I call a learning season," Coach Thompson said. "We have lots of talent and potential, and they should be well prepared for the next few years."

Despite their being able to attend only one tournament this year, the volleyball coaching staff has high hopes for the freshman netters in the years to come. Although the freshmen may not have had the best year possible, all the young ladies gave a super effort overall, and have everything in the world to look forward to.

After all, they have an even bigger reputation to uphold than ever before thanks to the varsity. It will soon be up to them to uphold the, now, winning tradition at Grapevine High School!!

J.V. volleyballers prepare for outstanding future

The junior varsity volleyball team had a successful season this year. The JV volleyballers ended the season with a loss to Diamond Hill, but they still came out on top with a 9-8 overall record and a 6-4 record in district competition.

At the beginning of the season, the girls were hoping for a good year, but with all the new players they weren't that certain of what the outcome might be. At the outset of the season a few goals were set. The main goal was to win more games than they lost. The girls accomplished this and were very pleased. Their second goal, winning the district, was their long term goal, which they fell just short of.

Although the girls wanted to win badly, getting experience was the most important thing for the girls this year. "We had 19 players on the team and the thing we tried to do most was play as many people as possible in order to get as much playing experience as possible for the girls," Johansen commented.

Varsity v'ballers break playoff barrier

This year the varsity volleyball team did something that has not been done at GHS since 1978, they earned the title of district champs. They finished their regular season play with a victory over Diamond Hill, leaving their district record at 9-1, beaten only by Castleberry.

At the beginning of the season there were thirty varsity prospects. Only ten would wear a varsity uniform when the games started. There are three main qualifications that these ten girls must meet. One of these is being able to hit the ball well. Another is quickness. Quickness is a must in volleyball. A player must be able to react to those unexpected spikes. The third qualification is experience. Experience is a big plus, especially in pressure situations.

Before the games started, the girls set some goals to work for. The main goal was to be district champs. The long term goal was to be state champs. The Mustang volleyballers were very optimistic in reaching these goals. After earning the title of district champs, the goal of state champs became very realistic.

In their efforts of chasing down the title of state champs, they were met by Mansfield in a bi-district game. The Grapevine volleyballers represented Grapevine well by winning two games of three. By winning this game it enabled the girls to play Pecos in San Angelo to determine who would win the area.

After intense preparation for this game, the girls won it with no problem by defeating Pecos in two games.

After more practice the girls went to Abilene to play Monahans for the regional game. Monahans had been to the state playoffs the last seven years out of eight. After a great season the girls were finally eliminated by Monahans in two games.

Coach Thompson summing up the year said, "We are very satisfied with our season, but we are disappointed that we didn't win state. We have nothing to be sad about because this is the best that Grapevine's volleyball team has ever done. The team we got beat by is ranked second in state, and they will do very well in the state playoffs. When we lost we knew we played our best because they beat us; we didn't beat ourselves. I am very proud of the girls for their efforts on a great season."

Cross country girls remain in high gear

While other G.H.S. teams tasted post season success for the first time in several years, the girls' cross country continued to add to their winning tradition.

Led by Coach Sue Garl, the varsity girls won district for the fourth time in four years, placed first at regionals, and finished the season ninth in the state.

The junior varsity, who pushed the varsity all year, also ran away with the roses at district.

JV prepares to drive varsity road

The junior varsity football team had a successful season this year. Their district record was 8-1, losing only to Boswell. The JV are in preparation for becoming varsity prospects for next year. Coach Stephens commented on the year by saying, "We were one of the smallest teams in size in the district, but because they played with a lot of intensity and intestinal fortitude, our young men won all but one game. One thing is for sure, we were never out hit."

Red romps to record wins; earns playoff victory laps

by Robby Hinson

It all started out in April of '84 as a mere vision, a dream, as a red dot to be exact. No, the dot did not get us this far, but the idea behind it did.

We were introduced to Coach Saunders, the former head coach of San Angelo State University. "Pretty impressive!" I thought along with the rest of the guys, "We've got a college coach for a head coach."

It really looked like we were going to win a few games. With that thought in mind, we pushed ourselves through off-season in preparation for what we had hopes of being a successful season. Little did we know what was in store for the "Rompin' Red."

Two-a-days came about soon with great anticipation in both the coaches and the players. We all realized there was a great deal of work to be done in a very short time. Along with the new coaches, we also had a new offense and a new defense to learn. We had never run anything like them before, and we had only two weeks to learn them before our first scrimmage.

The two weeks passed quickly, and the eve of the traditional Red-White scrimmage was upon us. There wasn't just a whole lot of action out on the practice field. In fact, there was more action on the sidelines with the second and third stringers battling over water in the 100 degree heat. After a few hours had passed and the coaches decided they had seen enough, the whistle blew. "Everybody up," Coach Saunders shouted. We weren't really sure about his tone of voice. We all sat in one big sweaty circle around him and waited for his next words. He lifted his eyes from the ground, and with an unsure tone in his voice, said, "Men, we have lots of work to do and a little time to do it!" "We all had the feeling that wasn't all he wanted to say. We were expecting something along the lines of "You guys stink!" We took it to the house then, and waited for our next scrimmage.

The two scrimmages passed quickly against De Soto and Mineral Wells. There were a few good things and a lot of bad. Our defense had shown well but our offense hadn't shown at all. "We looked like Ned in the first reader," Coach Warren so bluntly put it. And we really couldn't argue with him. We stunk, enough said!

We made it to our first game against Joshua. We were picked to win by 13, but with 2 fumbles and 0 passing yards, we were only able to pull off a 7-6 victory. It might have been a tie but we had a blocked extra point by number 55, but I forget his name.

Our next two games were against McKinney and Everman, both teams ranked in the top 20 in the state. Both games were heartbreakers for both of us. At McKinney, we were behind by only 7 points until the fourth quarter. For some reason, about half the team got muscle cramps.

At the Everman game, we made an even greater showing. We scored first and were ahead 6-0 at the end of the first quarter. But Everman answered quickly with a touchdown and a missed extra point. We held them up the rest of the game to finish 6-13. After the game, the coaches were very optimistic! After all, we almost beat the 15th ranked team in the state.

The excitement from the victory held over for the next two games. We pulled off an easy 27-7 homecoming victory over Castleberry and an explosive 35-00 victory over traditional rival Keller.

All our fans in the stands were very supportive at all the games but we wondered how long they would stay loyal.

We hadn't really had a true challenge in the last two weeks, but Hirschi was next. We were all in the right frame of mind for the game, but we just couldn't seem to relax for the game. We went in at half-time behind 0-27.

"They ain't even 7 points better than we are!" Coach

Saunders screamed at half-time.

Well, we sure thought they were, but we were determined to come back. We scored two touchdowns in the second half, but it wasn't enough to keep the Rompin' Red in first place. We finished up 34-13, which put us into second place in the district.

The next week was Poly, but there was hardly any competition with a 30-0 win. For the most part, we had our minds on the next week's game: Boswell.

The weeks practice before the game was probably the most intense of the whole year.

"It comes down to this," Coach Saunders explained, "If we win, we go to the playoffs; if we lose, we have two games left to play for pride."

As far as I was concerned, I had enough pride last year with a 4-6 record. I was ready to win! The coaches were almost more intense than the players at practice. Every coach drilled his players to perfection. Coach Snead made the defensive line hit that tight end, and Coach Stephens drilled the linebackers to stop up the hole and skate outside. It finally came to game time and the coaches weren't through yet.

"I need all the seniors outside," Coach Saunders said.

We all lined up as the underclassmen came down the line one by one and shook our hands. To hype up things even more, the coaches had all the seniors be captains. With tears in all our eyes and inches of mud covering our feet, Jason Howes kicked the ball into the misty air. It was all just too easy it seemed. By the end of the first half, we were ahead by 23 points. We went in the locker room elated and covered with mud. As we walked in the locker room we found new jerseys and half-shirts for everyone. Needless to say, we were even more fired up after that. We went out and trounced Boswell 30-6, guaranteeing a playoff spot.

The next two games were merely red tape against Azle and Diamond Hill. It was merely a cake walk with the offensive line creating gaping holes so Mike Poth could chew up 248 yards and Aaron Muehlstein could score on quarterback sneaks. The Diamond Hill game was just as exciting with Frank Harris scoring on the first play of the game with an Aaron Muehlstein pass.

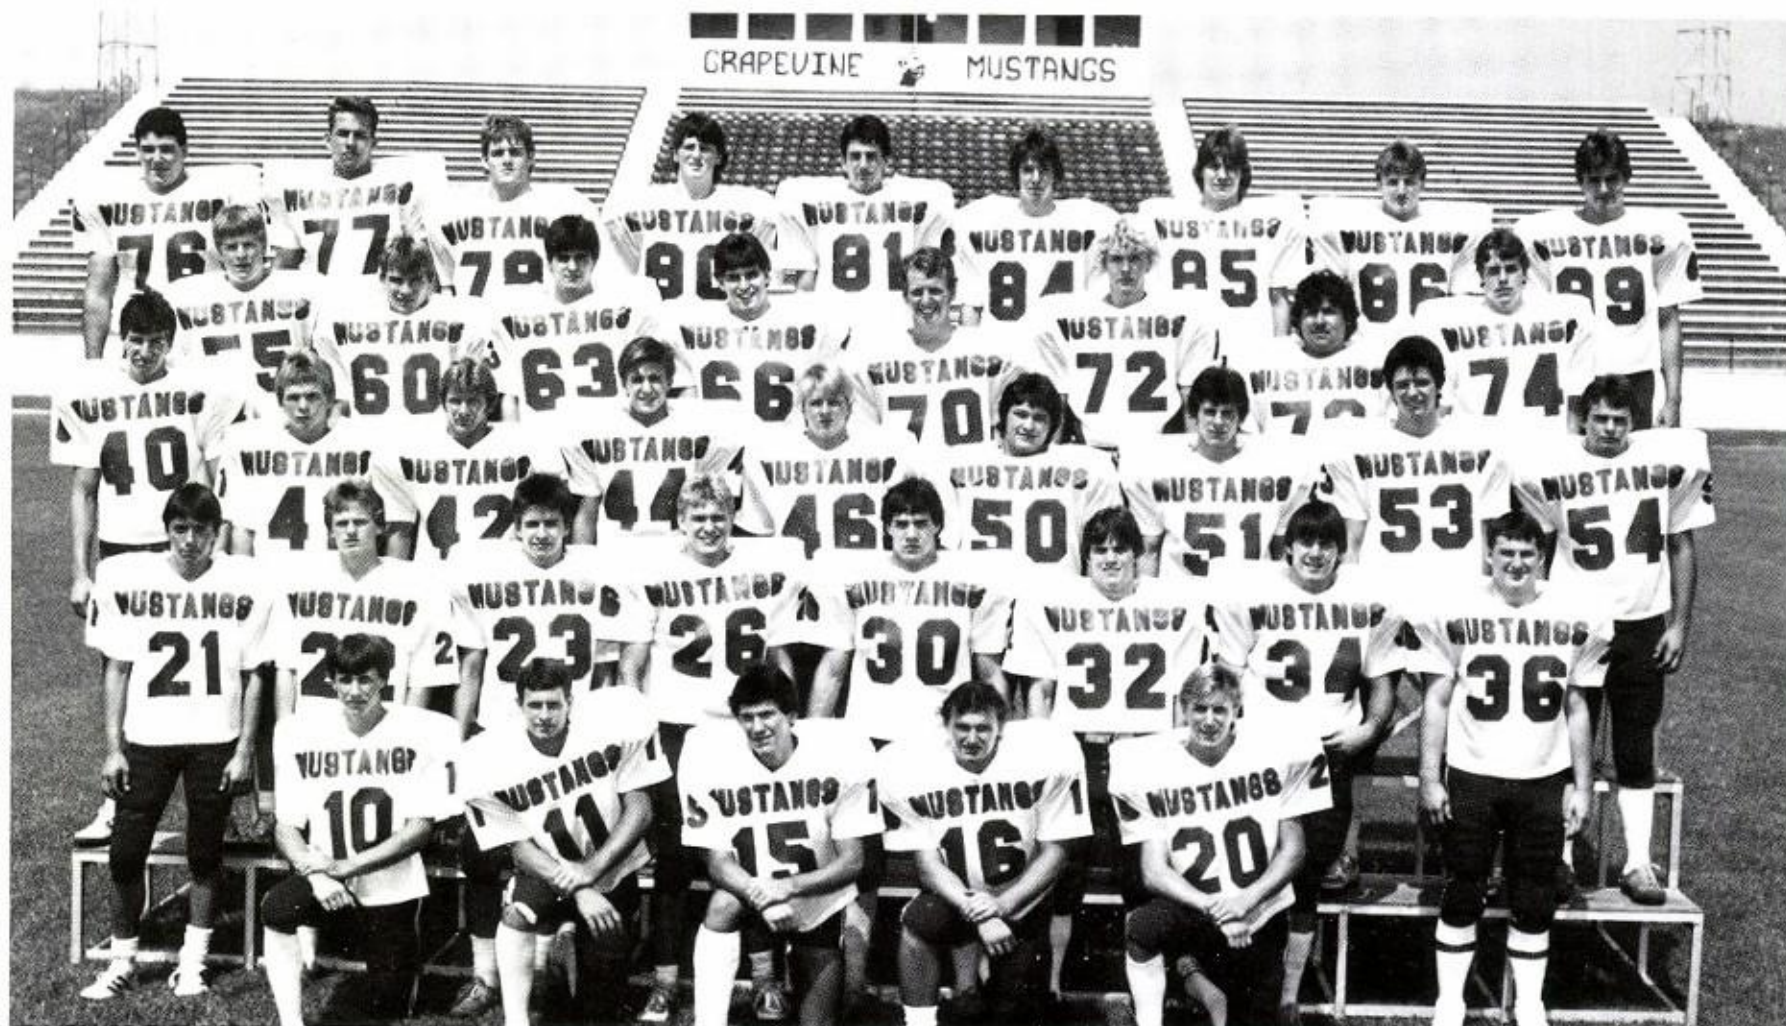

It finally came down to the zone playoffs. As Coach Warren put it, "The reason the team made it so far for the first time in 9 years was because of hard work and dedication. They all played hard each and every game and nobody will ever be able to take that feeling away from them!"

We weren't about to let Brewer take it away from us. We played harder as a team than any of the players thought possible, gaining extra yards, and getting that extra block. We scored first and by half-time we were ahead 7-6. We came out of the dressing room equally fired up. With three minutes left in the fourth quarter, we were still ahead 7-6. However, Brewer came back with a three shot passing drive that ate up 60 yards. There was only about a minute left in the game and Brewer had the ball on the 10 yard line. We didn't think we could blow a whole season in one play, but we did. It took a short pass across the middle of the field and then it was over. Brewer won 13-7.

There would be plenty of consolation for each player after the game, of course, hugs and kisses from parents, girlfriends and fillies. But nothing could make up for the loss.

I heard the father of a friend sum it up for us. He said, "Don't hold your head down for a second, son. You boys had one hell of a year," which we did! That was enough to keep us going.

I really owe a lot to our team. We've done something that hasn't been done in a long time. In fact, we were probably the best team there's ever been. Thanks for keeping us together as a team. I love you guys.

Runnin' Red Regional Finalists

RANDY: "I think that our season was a success. We had a great time on the court because of the fan support. It also would not have been as fun without the coaches keeping the pressure off of us. We had only set out to win district, but we went past our expectations and claimed the BI-DISTRICT championship and were regional runners up. Many thanks again to our students, faculty, and the coaches, Lappa and Scullaw." "

RICKY: "I also believe that our season was a success largely because of our fans. This season had the best turnout of fans that I can remember. The season, the fans, and the coaching staff were the best that Grapevine has ever had. If we had not have got Coach Lappa at the first there would be no telling where we would have ended up. I think I can speak for the whole team when I say IT WAS A KILLER!!!" "

BUILT FOR SPEED

Coaches Warren and Hargrave give their track secrets.

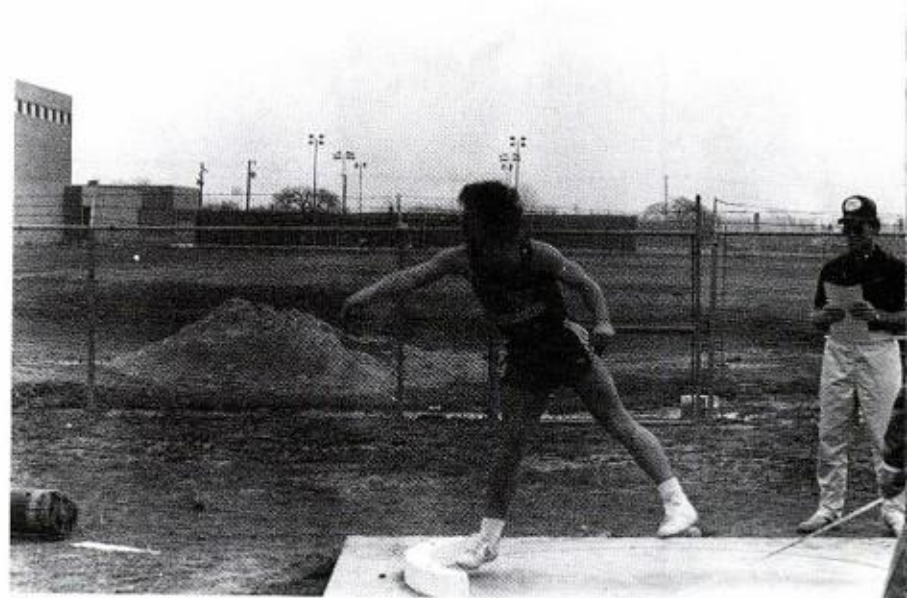

Coach Hargrave: "I'm tellin ya Warren, the secret to all this track stuff is all in the arch of the foot!"

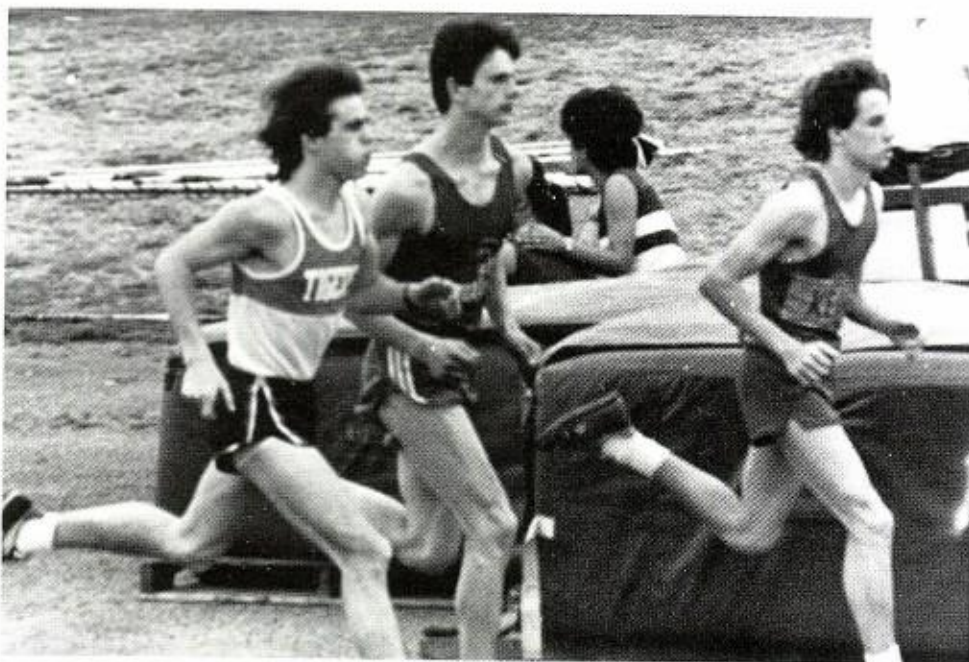

Coach Warren: "Aw I hate to differ with ya there Bob, but it's really in the form of the athlete!"

Hargrave: "Nonsense; ya see there how Sully has his foot well arched as the shot put leaves his hand."

Warren: "Yea sure Bobby, but here ya see how Dempsey's form helps him throw that extra few inches."

Hargrave: "Now quit bein difficult Warren, Waschka here has a superior arch here which is gonna enable him ta win it all!"

Warren: "I'm really sorry, Bob, but ole Yarrish here has the perfect form which is dominant in the end!"

JV netters prepare for future

J.V. Tennis Team

Netters build speed on temporary track

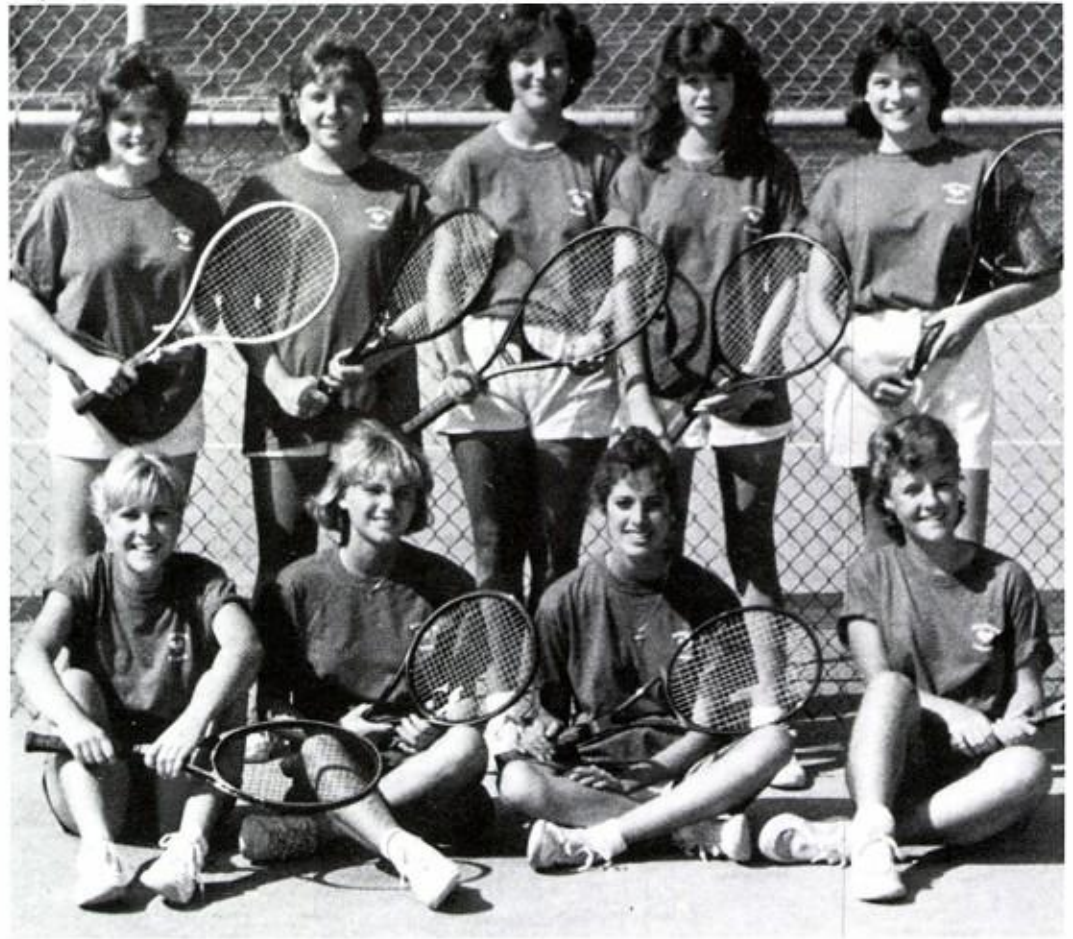

The varsity tennis team picks up the pace as matches continue throughout the year.

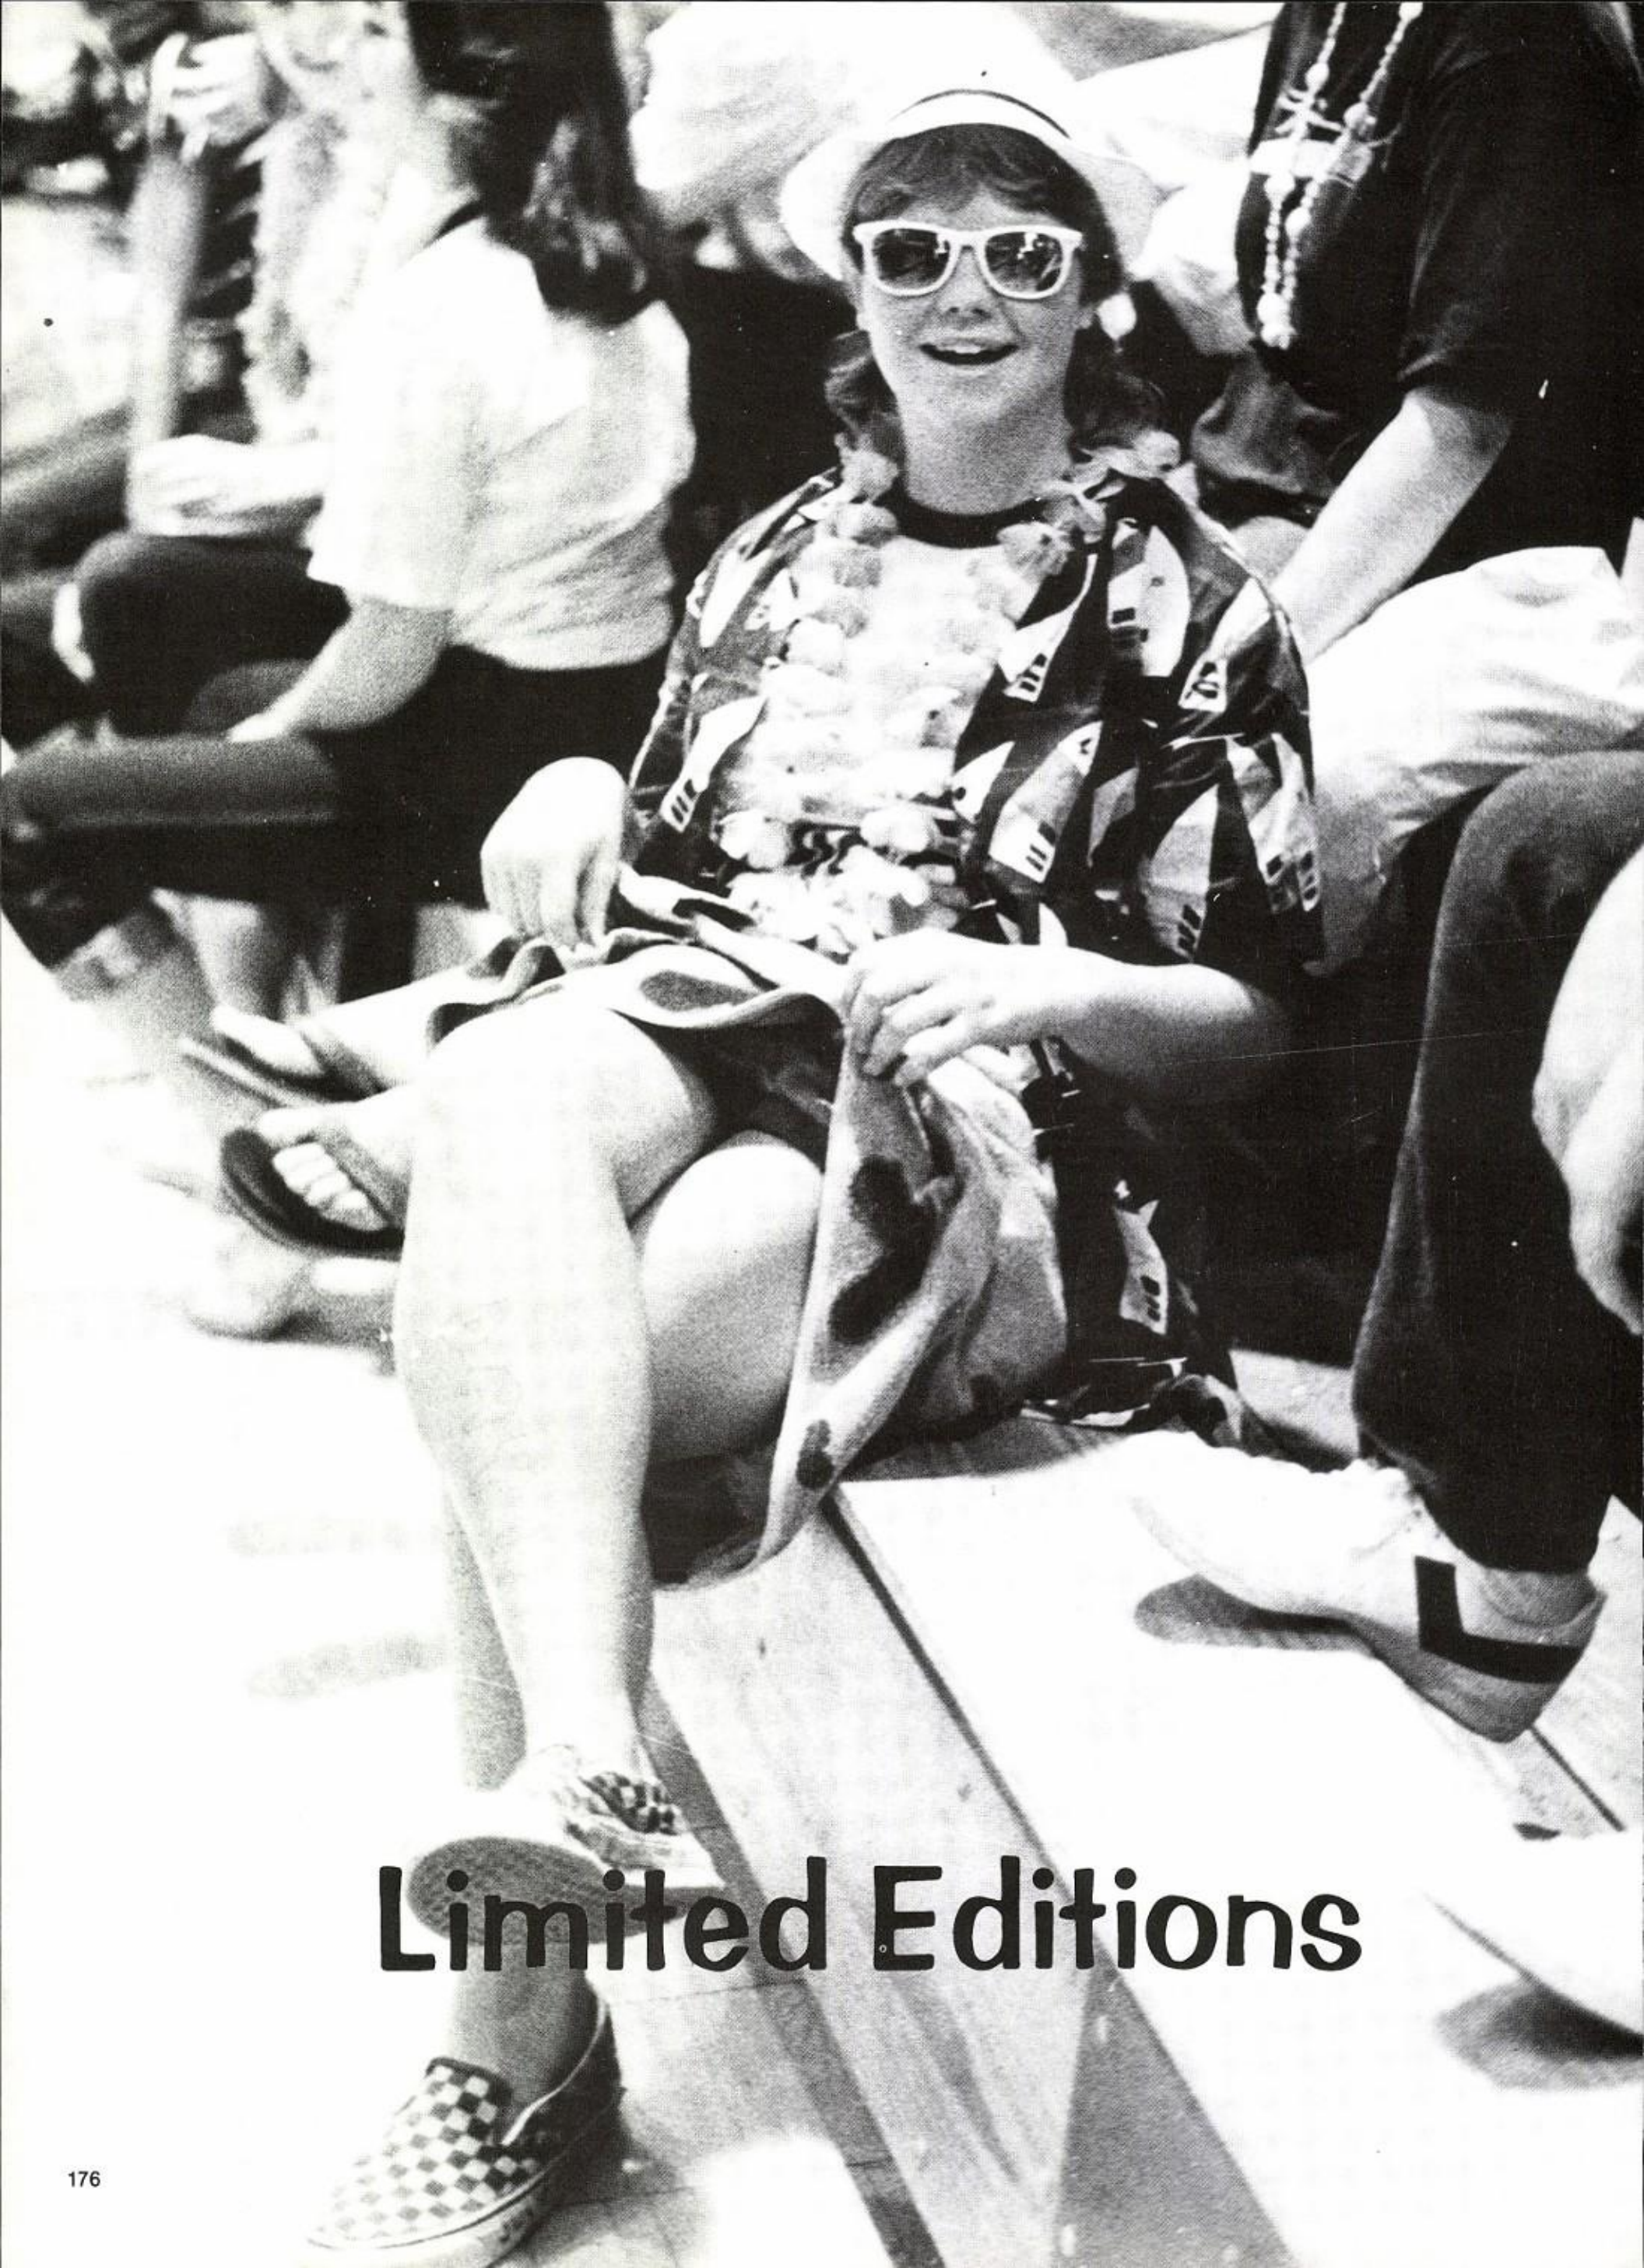

The changes of Ross Perot resulted in fewer tournaments. Therefore competition was tougher from the increasing of schools participating.

As the team progressed the new tennis courts did not. The tennis courts that were to be finished after Spring Break gave motivation for districts. A week before districts the courts were still not completed, leaving slight concern over the success of district matches. With time running out, Coach Atkins set up a way for the team to compete on better courts at the D.F.W. Hilton Hotel.

As districts close Jerry Tinkis and Ashley Davis make it to regionals.

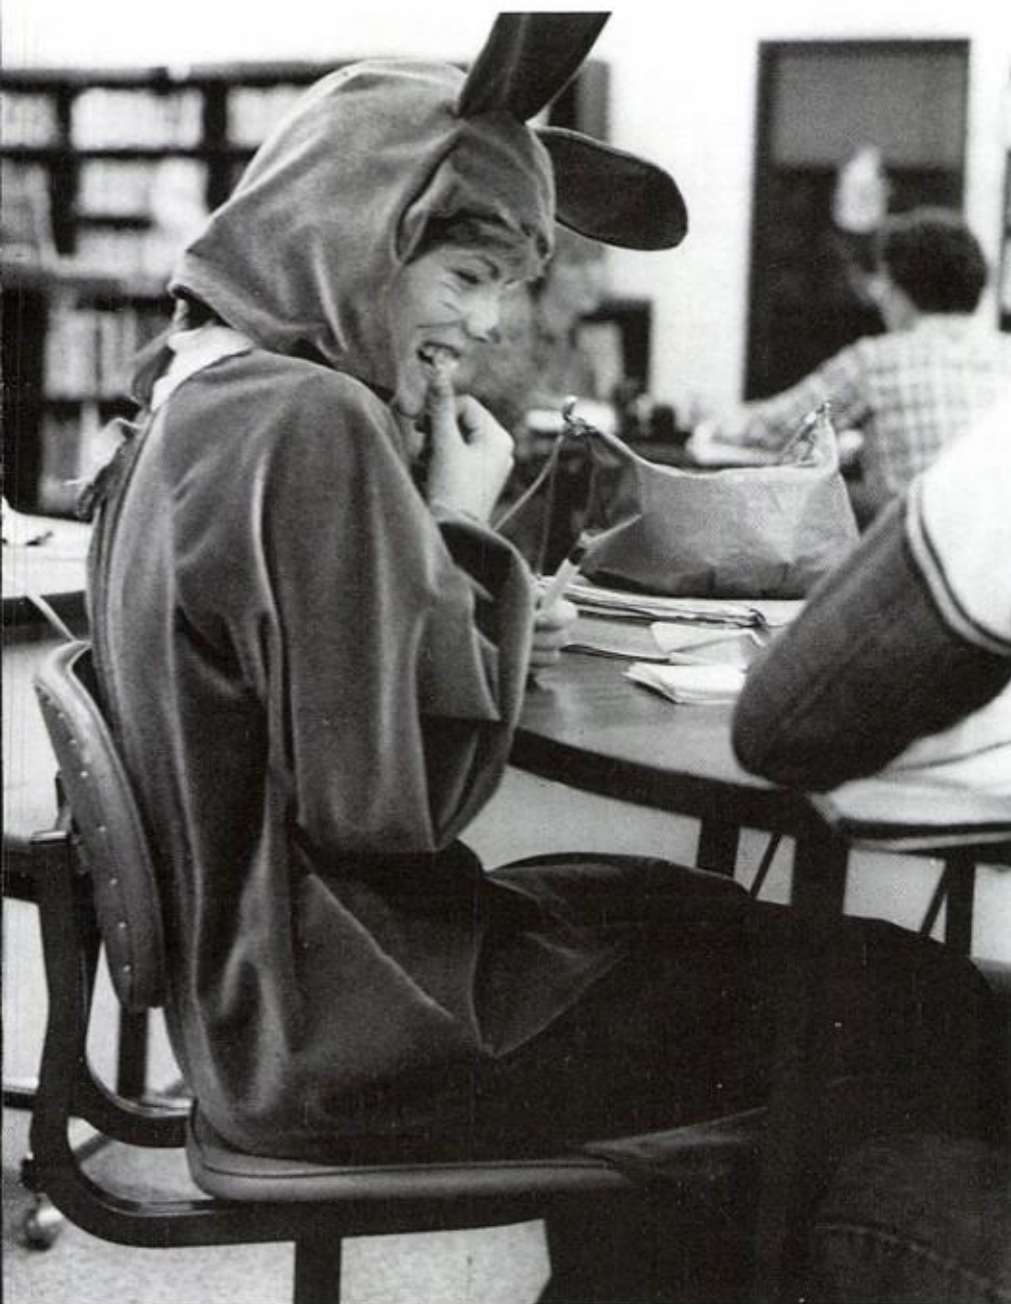

Grapevine's growing tennis team goes along with the growth of harder competition.

Roommate

"What's up Doc?" Bonnie "Bunny" Koopman mistakes her pencil for a carrot.

The custom accessories of our Mustang came in the shape of rules and regulations as the state limited extra-curricular activities.

The changes didn't take the good times away — they just made them a little harder to find. Those new rules shortened Goblin Day, pep rallies, and brought about an all time high attendance on homecoming Friday.

Although extra-curricular activities were shortened and some cut-out all together the fun times we had seemed to add a little excitement to an otherwise hum-drum work-a-day schedule. These activities provide those memories which make high school years special.

Football season means pep rallies. Although they were shortened this year, they still gave the students the opportunity to get "a little bit rowdy" and express their creativity in dressing to fit the pep rally themes.

Homecoming is usually the busiest event of the year. The whole week is crammed with float parties, luncheons, teas, parade preparations, the pep rally, the bonfire, court nominations, mum purchases, and the Big Game. Although the students weren't allowed as much time to cheer on the football team, they managed to rile them enough to go out and win the game.

Goblin Day is the next anticipated event at GHS. The costume contest, as usual, brought out the general bizarreness of the students.

Christmas brings the Christmas parade and Valentine's Day usually brings a flood of flowers and other money making opportunities for clubs, but the new rules limited those activities, too.

With spring comes Cinderella, one assembly the Seniors managed to keep. The gentlemen, dressed for a beauty pageant, always seem to provide more than ample entertainment for one year.

As the school year gets closer to its end, activities such as beauty-handsome ceremonies, banquets, UIL competitions, the journalism picnic, and of course the long awaited senior prom seem to make the long weeks bearable.

All of these activities are just as much, if not more, a part of high school life as academics.

Although the new regulations seemed to make the fun times a little harder to find, they also seemed to make the times we did have all the more special.

Homecoming Sports Standard Features

Donna Woolsey

"Help! We're drowning." Juniors, Susie Stadelmayer and Dawn Holden are consumed by a car full of napkins.

Even the classic homecoming lost some of its sheen this year. The traditional homecoming Friday seemed to be almost an ordinary day with an all time high attendance.

No longer was school dismissed at 2:00 to join in parade activities. Instead, the parade started at 4:00 and students had all of 35 minutes to prepare.

The morning pep rally, although long protested for, seemed to lack some luster in the 30 minutes that it lasted. The general deadness about the rally may have possibly had something to do with the traditional all-night float parties the night before.

Everyone seemed to get their float finished in time this year, for a change. The juniors managed to win with their rendition of Magic Kingdom.

Another twist for the better was that we won the game. GHS-25 Castleberry-7.

The weather was even cold for the first time in years, but of course the girls with dates managed to keep warm under the even larger and gaudier mums.

The ex-students association sponsored a catered schoolwide luncheon in honor of the newly inducted Hall of Fame members.

The bonfire was a big success. There was the traditional toilet and obscene signs on top. Mr. Burton with diesel oil, and the loving couples who dared not venture into the light of the fire. This year senior guys Kevin Beck, Frank Harris, Robby Hinson, Darren Pardue and Mike Poth were in charge of building it. Of course, it was a little easier in that they basically just put a match to the pile of uprooted trees on the west-parking-lot-to-be off of Pool Road.

After all was said and done, though this year's homecoming lost a little of its traditional luster, it seemed to, like many other parts of our Mustang, gain a little different type shine.

Students take slow warm-up to red dot

The changes in school activities were difficult to accept. Not only were the pep rallies shortened, but a new coach altered the traditional procedure as well. There was no spirit line, fewer band and drill team performances, and no skits. Students protested all the changes, especially the new red dot. Cries of "jot the dot," and "Seniors mourn the Mustang," echoed through the first pep rally.

The Mustang really never was threatened and all the changes were obviously what was needed. They all brought us a season like none before. Our Rompin' Red Mustangs took us to the playoffs for the first time in eight years — and they did it with twenty-five minute pep rallies!

Each week gave us a different theme from "Nerds" to "Ghostbusters," when Sharon got pegged with a marshmallow. We left Western Day and Kid Day behind and went on to Brewer for Zone playoffs.

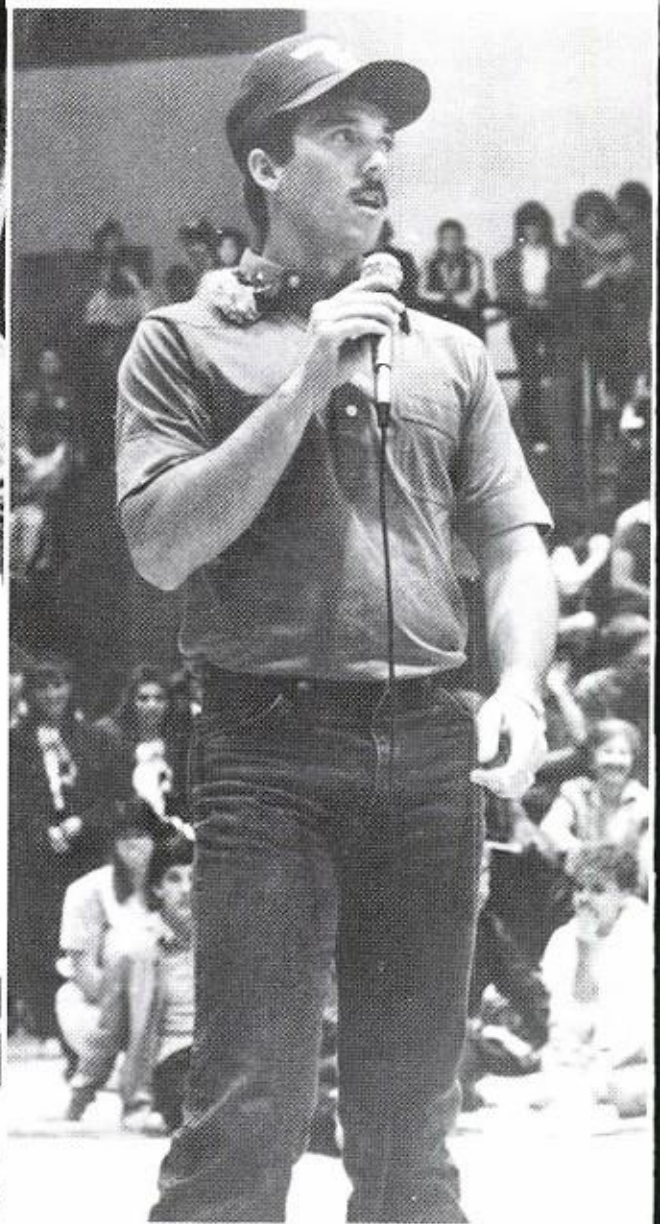

Our fun was had; the games were won; the Mustang lived; and we did it all with 55-minutes of uninterrupted class time.

Goblin day offers loaded options

The tradition of celebrating Halloween is to have a fun filled day of Goblins. One great thing about Goblin day is to get away from those scary books for about 45 minutes to an hour.

Another terrific thing that is only natural for this occasion is to get scared while stuffing our faces.

The senior class tried desperately to have food to be stuffed with. The Latin Club helpers got along smoothly with their soda pops and ceaser burgers. Meanwhile the pumpkin seed spitters were too busy putting out instead of intaking. Standing close by, the Spanish Club has another success with their traditional nachos. The drill team had the yearly junk food of cakes and brownies. The closet cases come out to face this short day. Mike Miether who won the winning prize with the costume of Mary who had a little lamb showed his full participation by bringing a lamb along with him. Jerry Tinkis showed his spirit for Halloween by trying to make himself look like a pretty young girl that had an outdated dress. Betty Churchill and Kim Presely in their tourist garb had little success of finding their way around school with the map of the Holyland. Altogether the cast of characters seemed to construct a living story book. Most of the students who participated with their own original costumes added another success fo G.H.S.' Goblin Day.

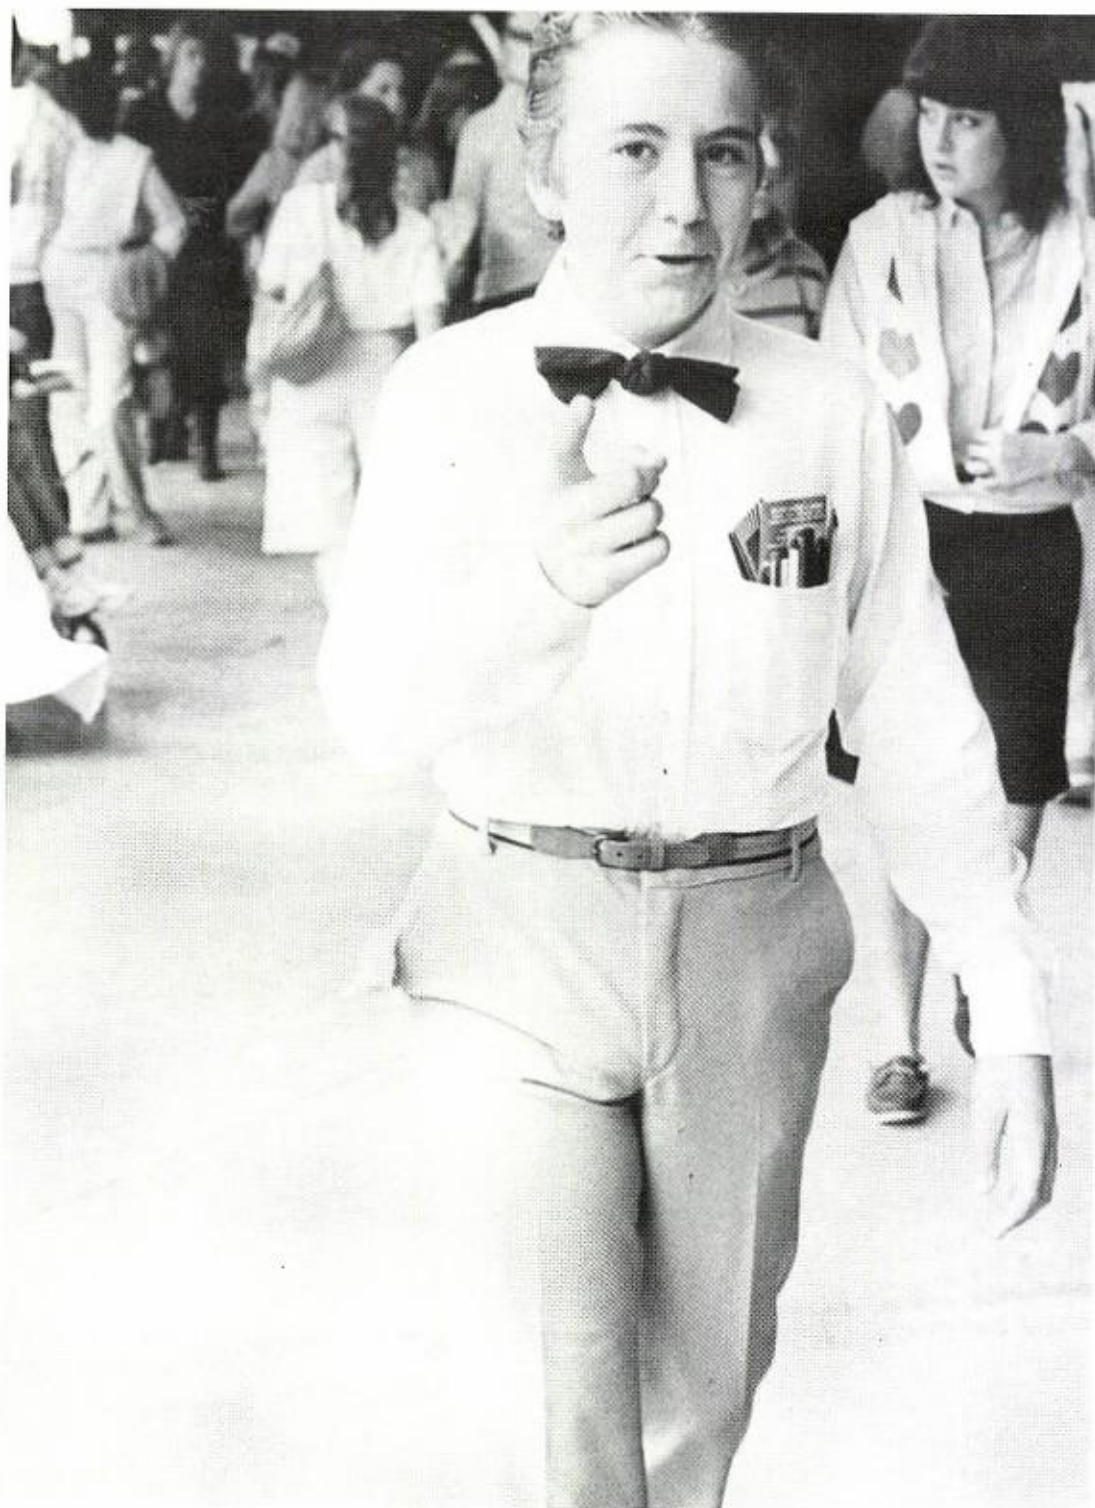

... O, U, and sometimes Y. The roving vowels Gretta Thurston, Dwight West, and Jeff Herd enjoy a snack at Goblin day.

Christmas Reduces Academic Drag

The standard features of Christmas managed to escape too much renovation. The annual Christmas parade started off the festivities. The Fillies participated in their traditional Christmas uniforms, but the student council did not have a float this year. Lots of students were found shivering while viewing the parade from the curb, though.

When December 15th finally arrived the air was filled with Christmas spirit. Between the exchanging of cards and gifts and the unofficial Christmas parties, narry a word of reading, writing, or 'rithmetic was spoken, except, of course, for Ms. Laux's 6th period calculus class which was forced to take an exam on this day.

The finale of the day was the annual NHS-faculty volleyball game and as usual the teachers managed to pull off another victory although it was a close score. It might have possibly been due to the cheering of the official faculty cheerleaders led by Mrs. Lee. NHS members wished the students a merry Christmas and sent them home with a candy cane.

The excitement of these Christmas festivities provided a welcome respite from the "blahs" of academics.

Valentine's Day Massacred

For me?! Susy Stadelmeyer gets excited over her Latin Valentine.

Valentine Day traditions fell to the ax of the administration this year. No more were the showers of flowers or the flooding of sentiment. Gone were the days of singing telegrams, watergun assassinations, and kiss-o-grams. The necessity of smuggling in flowers reared its ugly head. Parties were even outlawed, although, there were rumors of illegal party sounds coming from somewhere in the vicinity of the Roman forum. Fortunately, these illegal sounds did not penetrate office walls, else they, too, would have surely fallen victim. Joy was no longer found in a dozen roses but rather a simple Donald Duck Valentine brought tears to the fortunate recipients eyes. The most trivial of gifts were so greatly cherished because they were so few and far between. The thoughts of loved ones were lost in the hustle and bustle of academics. The loss of our traditional Valentine's Day was another tragedy at the hands of Ross Perot.

SMACK! Valentine, Jay Oglesby, gives the famous Latin Lover, Maureen LeBeau, a big wet one on the cheek.

Shu

"I'm so moved!" Mrs. Pittman is moved to tears by the carnations presented to her by her class.

Betty Churchill

Where did you get those flowers? Theresa Baker and friend are overwhelmed with their Valentine flowers.

Betty Churchill

How quaint! Seniors, Donna, Tracy, and Kimberly Sue get excited over their Valentines.

Seniors cater for cash

Bon appetit! Gwen Suess and Denice Randall give an international aire to the spaghetti dinner.

Mo' tea? Matt offers his talent to provide for the thirsty.

Profit!?! Bonnie, Diane, and Stephanie are amazed with the outcome of the money making.

The senior class made a success out of the annual fund raising dinner. The seniors of 1985 had a slow start getting involved in money raising activities. The profits from the dinner helped considerably. All the seniors volunteered their time for the sake of the prom. Working together continued to put an impact of maturity on the underclassman.

Admiring the goodies. Amy Legrand, Michelle Harris, and Marla Morris make their big sales with nice smiles.

Oh, so full! A group of satisfied customers continue to pig out.

Such madness! Mrs. Lebeau is in awe that the senior class actually accomplished something.

What can we say? Senior class parents do their part at the spaghetti dinner.

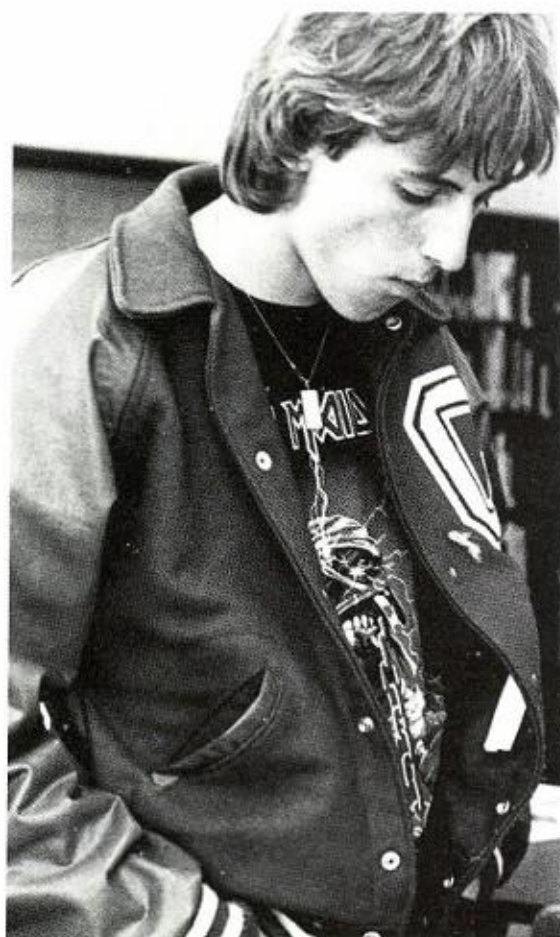

Yum spaghetti! Liz shows her culinary expertise.

Getting it together. Mike, Dirk, and Scott prepare for the big feast.

NHS Introduces New Models

How did he get in? Seniors Mike Darby, Sherolene Dodd, and Liz Kennedy chose those whom they wish to pin.

Enough to bring tears to your eyes. Liz Kennedy pins her little sister Susie.

You're sticking me! Kim Lamar attempts to pin Ashley Davis.

Such pride! Mrs. LeBeau's 2nd period Latin class had the most new inductees.

What? She didn't get in again? NHS officers look through the list of inductees.

OUCH! Matt McCullough attempts to pin Karen Shaffer.

One of the most exciting events of the year is the pinning of the new National Honor Society members. As usual there were thrills and disappointments. Those chosen few seem to be those whom the faculty sees as displaying most of those qualities of leadership, scholarship, service, and character. This year, for the first time, those eligible had the opportunity of proving themselves worthy of the Honor Society by filling out applications in which they listed their school, church, and community activities. Although not every applicant was accepted, there was a large group of inductees. This year's new members were: Seniors; Dianne Booth, Pam Greenwood, Theresa Martin, Dianne McClellan, Kim Paris, Scott Selzer. Juniors: David Alford, Debe Ash, Amy Cekander, Jeffrey Chadwick, Gina Colbenson, Ashley Davis, Didi Duffy, Sharon Feller, Doug Flanders, Teri Goodgame, Dawn Holden, Kevin Jewell, Susie Kennedy, Nancy McQueen, Alan Meyer, Todd Myers, Judy Neely, Wendy Nelson, Jay Oglesby, Michelle Prokuski, Jason Riddle, Bret Ridgeway, Michelle Rutter, Greg Selzer, Karen Shafer, Kristi Shoemaker, Jared Shope, Susan Stadelmeyer, Jon Swift, Matt Tate, Robert Thibodeaux, Nicole Trewitt, Michael Trotter, and Dan Yarrish.

Horatio Alger Day Honors Lisa Lovell

Put 'em up! Mr. Morrison horses around with George Foreman.

Proud parents! Lisa introduces her parents to Mr. Foreman.

Congratulations!! Mrs. Fuller give Lisa a hug.

What to eat?! Mr. Payne enjoys the DECA sponsored reception.

A little nervous. Lisa visits with Mr. Oldfield.

The second annual Horatio Alger day was held on March 15. This year's five thousand dollar scholarship was awarded to Lisa Lovell. She is one of twenty national recipients who attended the Horatio Alger banquet and formal presentation in New York. This award is traditionally given to some individual who has overcome some obstacle to achieve recognition in his or her field. This year's guest speaker at the DECA sponsored assembly and reception was olympic boxer, George Foreman and his associate Barney Oldfield.

May I have your attention please. Mr. Foreman tells of his rough childhood.

Give a rotary hello. Doug Flanders and Jay Oglesby give greeting.

Journalism Genius! John risser tries to get it together.

Hecklers to the front! Grapevine makes impression on competition officials.

GHS leaves skid marks in UIL fast lane

In the past, the UIL district meet, consisting of typing, reading, writing, newswriting, prose, poetry, number sense, etc., was a chance for Grapevine to shine.

We made impressions with our personalities and our medals. But this year with the district changes, the competition stiffened, but our spirits did not! Hirschi and Boswell took many of our first place medals (except in the drama division, where Grapevine swept), but they did not spoil our good times.

The opening assembly began with a scolding as Mike Poth was repremanded for strumming his guitar. The new Keller High School had no place to legally throw frisbees and a nervous Mr. Hollaway phoned Mr. Jacoby.

The fun was had and the prizes were won: Dianne Boothe — 3rd Lincoln/Douglas debate, Melanie Gillespie — 1st Prose Interpretation, Leigh Davis — 2nd Extemp Speaking, Wendy Nelson — 2nd, Ruth Bebko — alt. Spelling, Jeff Watt — 1st, Laurie James — 2nd Typing, Mike Darby — 1st Editor Writing, Jerry Risser — 1st, Jennings Crawford — a Newswriting, Academic Decathlon — 3rd place team Super Quiz.

Elvis eat your heart out! Mike Poth swoons Mrs. Pittman.

Where is your hall pass? Grapevine students try to stay out of trouble.

English 10 honors: hysterical GHS history

Once again the Sophomore Honors English class put on a production which was truly "authentic"?! Every year Mrs. Pittman requires her students to interview ex-students and reenact the old days at GHS. Dennis Hranitzky was the star of the show with his portrayal of Big Red and the bicycle nerd. This year the project was done by assigning each group a decade. The students looked through old annuals and hunted fashions of the past in mom and dad's closets.

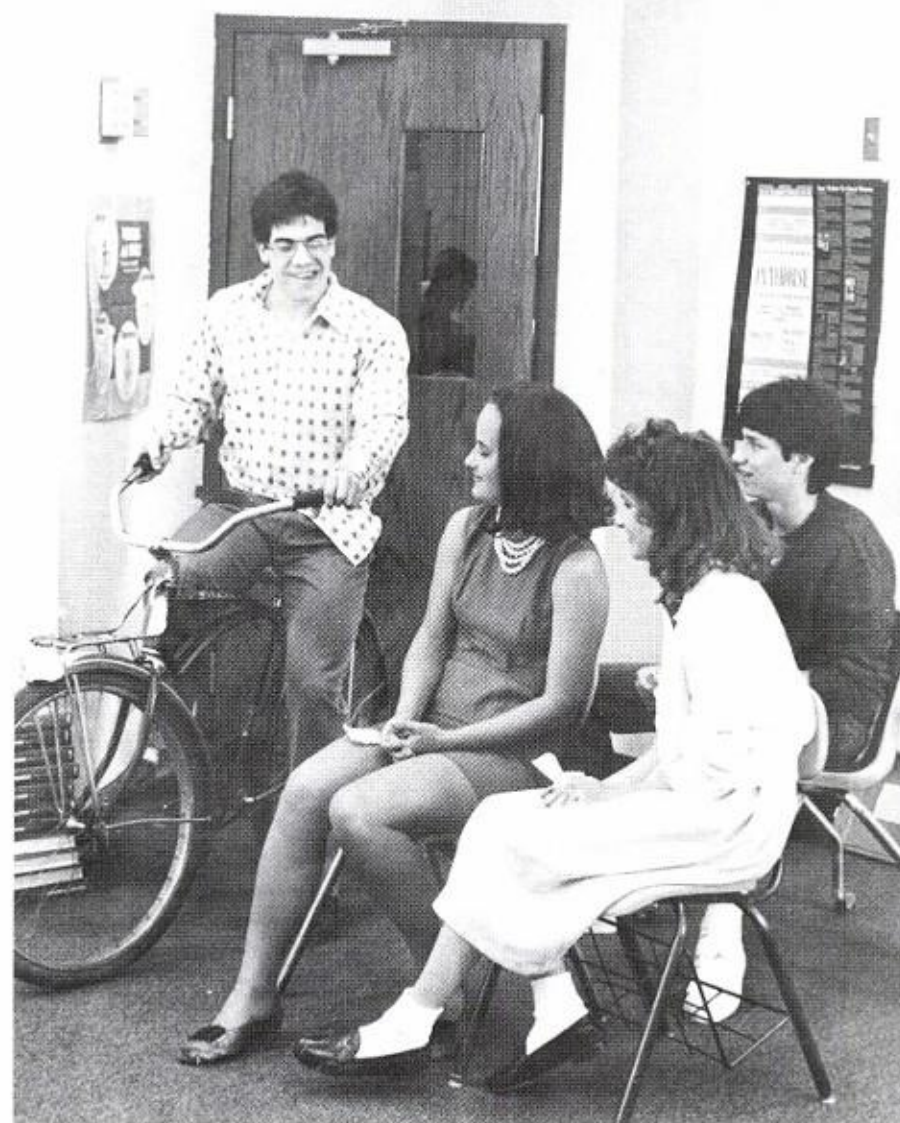

"Big Red" Hranitzky. Dennis models the mod fashions of the sixties.

Bon Fire? Lee Davis, Donald Doepke, Buff Weise attempt to be as daring as the seniors by reenact a real bonfire of the fifties.

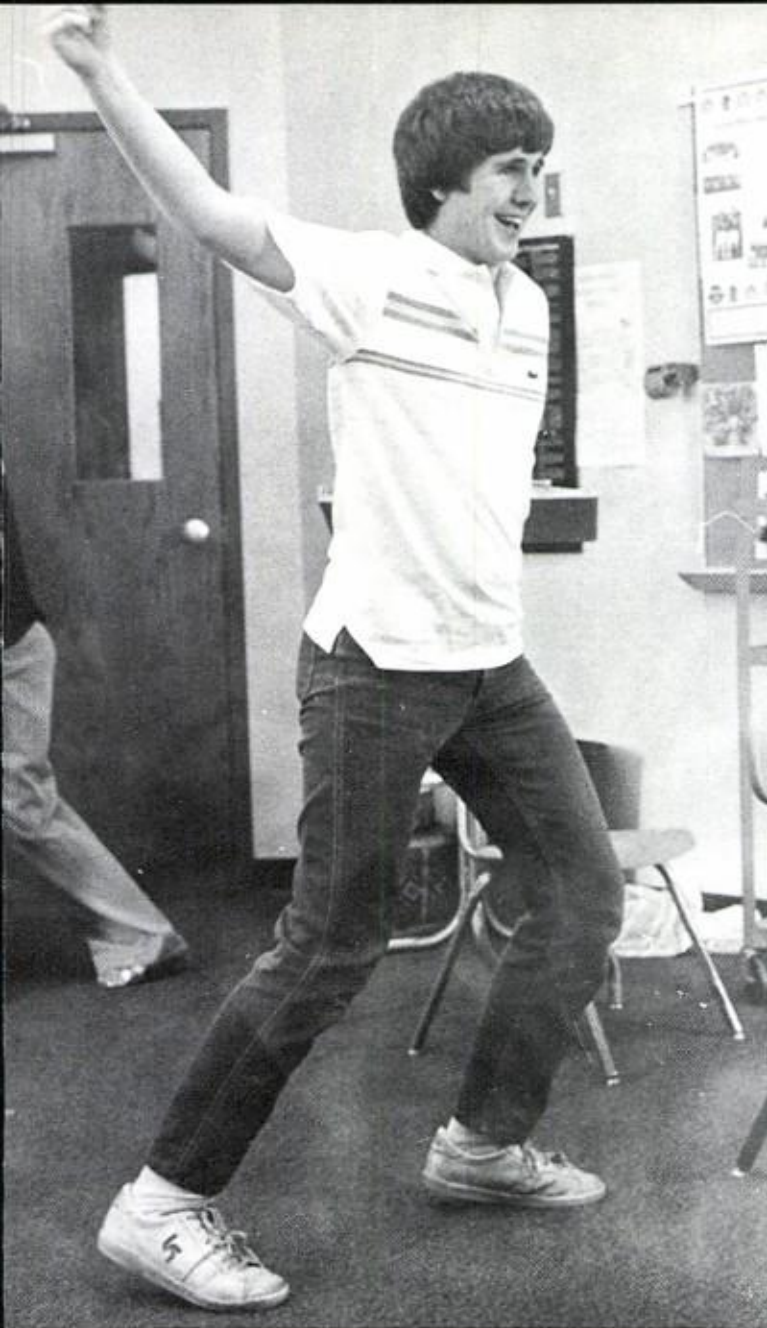

Excuse me, Mrs. Bickers, your slip is showing. Rachel Stowe, Traci Marlow, Mike Mozings, and Julie Jenner relive the reign of Mrs. Bickers.

Propositioned by a nerd. Zelda, the nerd magnet turns down yet another ride on Dennis' bicycle.

Mousse of the eighties to get the dippity-do look of the fifties. Rachel gives Buff a do.

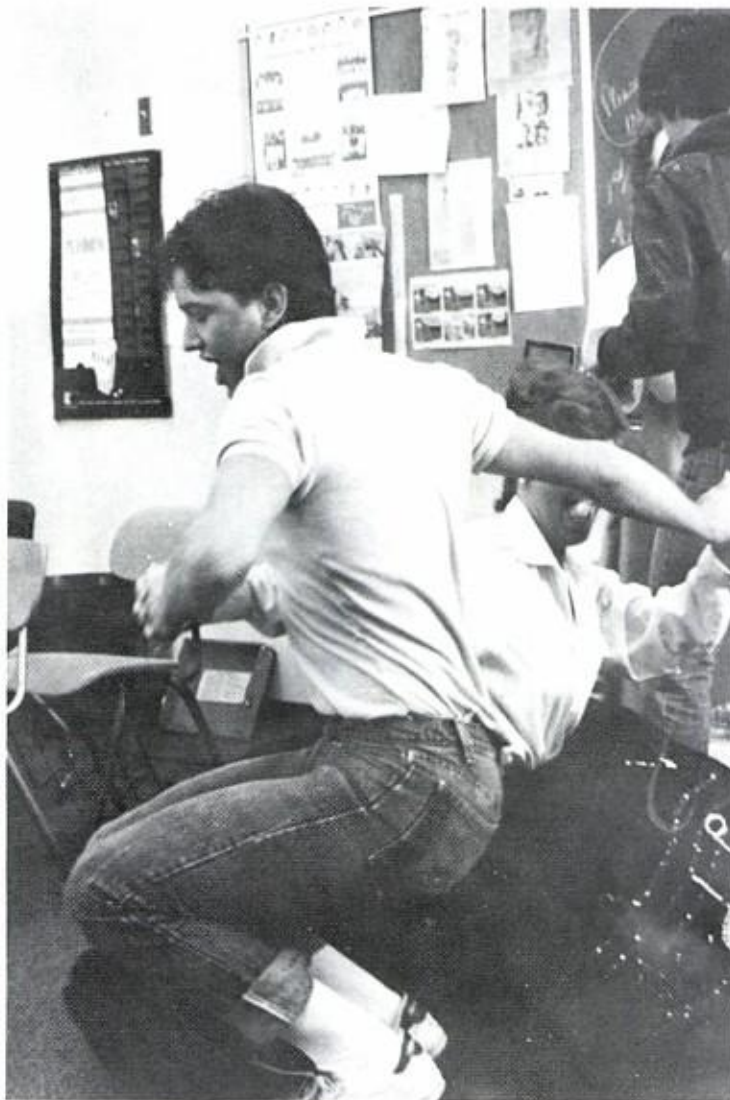

Dance Fever. Andy Ross relives the 70's as a disco ditty.

Bell bottoms? Tess Votto and Susy Schepps discuss 70's fashion.

thirties version of Taco Bueno. Students Amy Pittard, Kelly, John Risser pack a picnic lunch.

American Bandstand. Marc Swinney and Robin Davis do a little twisting for a grade.

There's a dog on your skirt! Robin and Diane sing along with Jimmy Dean.

People in the drivers' seats

The folks in this section of the yearbook have made the freeways a bit smoother. Through their individual efforts and interests, they have helped us shift gears and avoid the hazards of Hwy. 1985.

Brenda French

Students face many obstacles, victories, and defeats while traveling through "the best years of their lives." This year has left even the best and strongest of students pinned in the corner. Some do not recover and go down for the count, yet there are those who "strive to seek, find, and not to yield." Brenda French is definitely one of those strivers. Despite all of her obstacles she has made the very best of her life, and possibly more. She competes in horseback riding competitions and is a member of a bowling league. Later this year she will represent Texas at the National games. She is a lover of animals and has quite a collection. Her dog is entered in obedience shows around the area. Also, she is served as a cheerleader for a wheelchair basketball game. Her father races cars, and she even has her own mini race car. As well as these vigorous activities, she is very active in her church youth group. Recently, due to knee problems, she has been more restricted to her wheelchair than usual until she has recovered. Brenda is an extraordinary person. Most people have not done as much with their life, at this point and time, as Brenda has. She is to be commended for her hard work, determination, and perseverance, which she pursues, despite all of the road blocks which stand in her way.

Aaron Muehlstein

Just an all around kind of guy right? Well, not quite. There is much more to Aaron than just being a jock who can run fast, pass the ball with complete accuracy, take home a beauty-handsome title, and countless other honors and awards. He is the kind of person who is driven by the rewards of competition and dedication. When asked what he enjoys doing the most, Aaron replied, "probably competing with the best and celebrating with my buds afterwards." He enjoys football the most, but he says that the relays in track are the most awesome of all the events.

"It's probably because you got three other guys on your team working as one to help you out."

Aaron credits his success to his working hard, listening to coaches advice, dedication to what he's doing, and wanting to win.

After school Aaron plans to attend East Texas State University where he will continue his athletic career in both football and track.

"I'm not going to say I will, but I'd like to play pro ball sometime in the future," Aaron says.

The possibility of Aaron going further than college with his athletics is not that far out of line, since he already has one of the best times in the state in the 100m.

"It made me sick when I went to the state meet and watched guys that I've already beaten run my race."

Aaron's best 100m time of 10.35 would have placed him third in the state track meet.

"I guess I'll just have to work harder," Aaron replied in frustration.

Aaron spends most of his leisure time not unlike any other teenager.

"If I'm not working out with weights I'm either working with the cows or feeding them."

Aaron has many idols, like Doug Flutie, Dan Marino, Bernie Kosar (who he says is the best quarterback in the N.F.L. now), and Roy Martin who currently holds the new national record in the 100m.

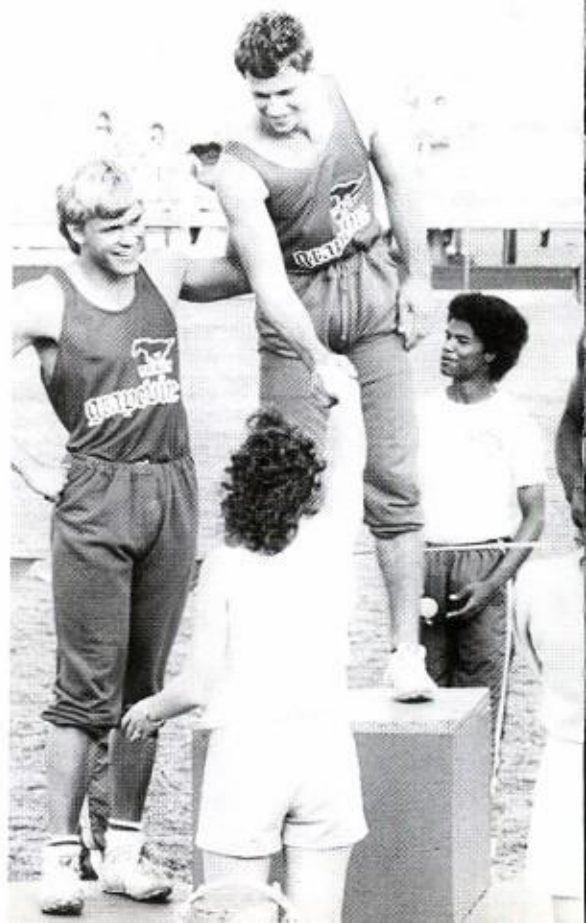

"He's awesome," Aaron exclaimed as he watched Roy run in the state meet. "I don't really know what I'm going to do with my chores when I go off to college. I guess I'll just hand them over to Dad," Aaron said without remorse.

"I've had lots of people who have influenced me really, but the biggest has probably been my dad because he never seems to be satisfied with what I do."

"I can tell him that I set a national record and he would just say, . . . so, someone has done better."

Some of the other people who have had an influence on Aaron are most of his coaches.

"Coach Saunders, Olivo, Hargraves, and most of all Coach Stevens, who taught me the importance of leg weights."

Sue Garl

Sue Garl, coach and driver's ed teacher, has contributed many things to Grapevine High: a sense of humor, compassion, understanding, and deep caring.

As she says, "I care about everyone, not just the athletes."

Sue Garl says that GHS has done a lot for her also. At Grapevine, she has been able to develop into her own person and express herself. "Grapevine gives me the freedom to do what I do best! It allows me to be me!"

Coach Garl has strong likes and dislikes about GHS also. She loves the mixture and variety of students, their sophistication, their ability to communicate well with others, and, most of all, their spirit.

On the other hand, she dislikes the students' lack of concern for Grapevine High and the grounds themselves.

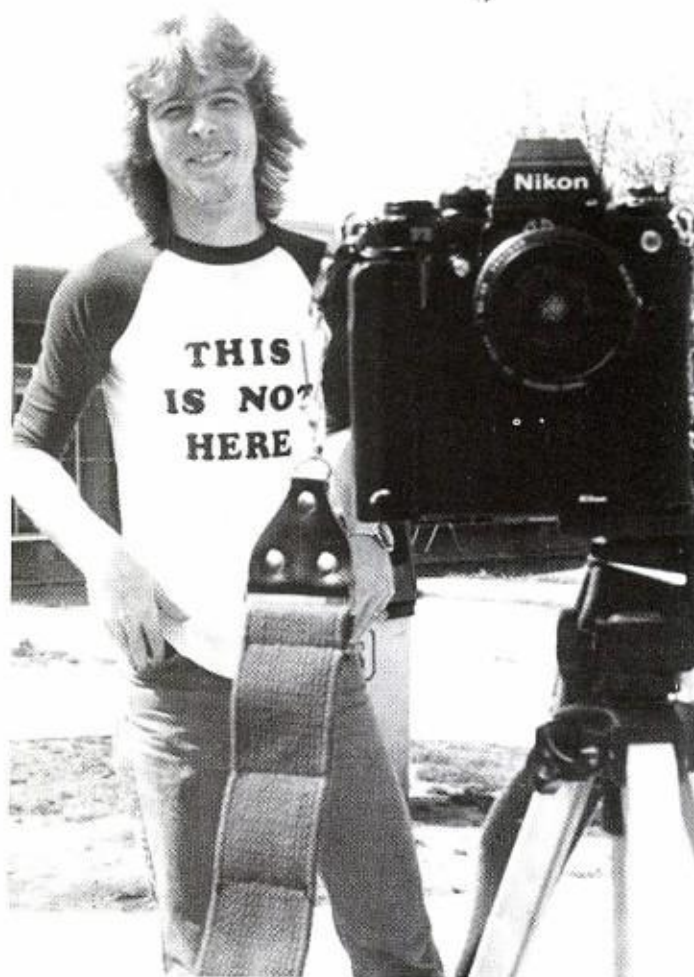

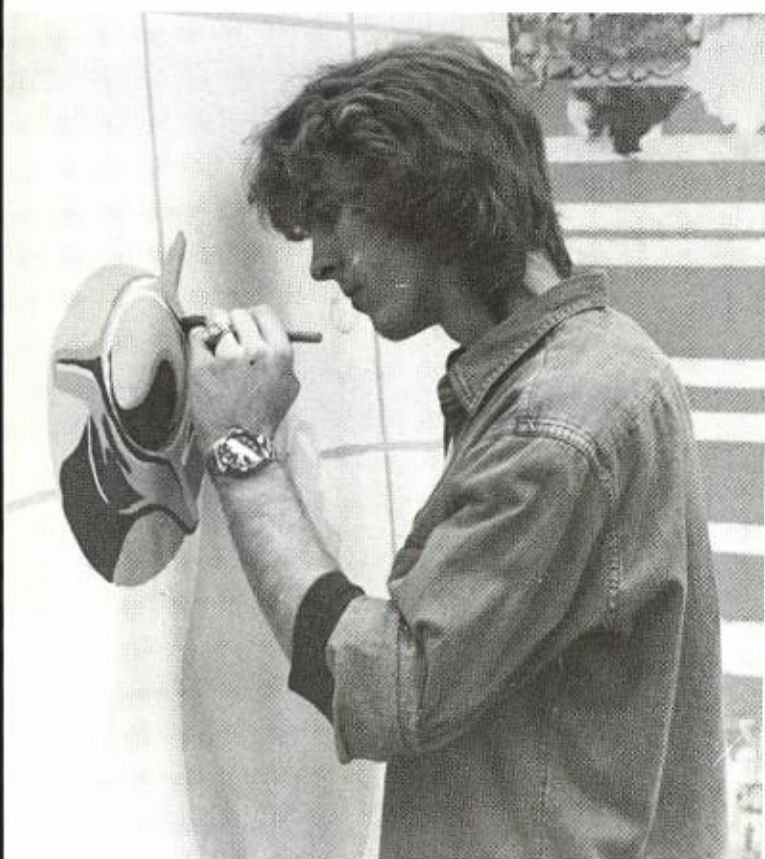

As for the teaching staff, Garl admires those who are willing to stay late and help those who need it. She also admires those who support the students in all of their activities and endeavors, those who give up their favorite T.V. show to go to a track meet or UIL. She dislikes those teachers who are in a big hurry to leave everyday and constantly complain about school conditions and policies. "I don't like negative people and don't get along with them."

Though Coach Garl has been here for ten years, she has two memorable experiences that really stand out. The first is when cross country won regionals this year. The second, but most important, was when the girls' track team won district for the first time in the history of GHS.

Coach Garl's pride in her students and the school is evident. She has contributed a lot, making this school a funner, livelier school and always cheering people up with her great personality.

Mike Skutchan

If GHS has eyes, they belong to Mike Skutchan. The perspective is always through a viewfinder.

More often than not, the vision is wide angle and includes the artist.

But sometimes the vision is through a telephoto lens, and the angle of view is narrow and excluding.

Always, the final prints are black and white and in sharp focus.

Maurine LeBeau

Every school needs a legend, someone who strikes fear in the hearts of those who have never had her. Maurine LeBeau is our legend.

She is known by many names to many people. To Ms. Frank she is "Twinkie" due to her twinkling personality. To some she's known as the woman who knows nothing about the Snickers in her closet or "Queen of the candy ring."

She is Caesar to her Latin students and the dreaded mentor of English history to her English students.

The true Mrs. LeBeau can only be seen through her own immortal words and the words of those who know her best.

Immortal words of wisdom: "I find it simply amazing!"

"This digression is almost more than I can handle."

"Curses"

"How dare they interrupt my class with a fire drill."

"Feel free to start your homework at any time."

"Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof"

"Such madness"

"You have the intelligence of a gnat!"

"You're like little chickens with no priority."

"You will know he lived, you will know how he thought.

You will be the Renaissance man."

"In a woman's prison I could get extra crackers, yet in Grapevine High School I can get no extra crackers."

"You people are not accustomed to thinking and that worries me!"

"I've got a tremendous headache. You must go away."

"I want you to be so ignorant that when you walk down the street people will laugh at your ignorance."

"I've never lost a paper!"

"This is my favorite time period!"

"Do you not just love the military mentality?"

"That Hobie is marvelous!"

... written on the top of an "honors" student's semester exam "what is this?"

... addressing a delinquent 4th period student, the following tirade ensued: "If you don't stop rattling that wrapper I am going to come back there, flay the skin from your body, and leave you lying in a pool of blood."

"Would you like to buy some peanuts, sausage, or light bulbs?"

"No, Elvis and I were never great friends."

"I never jest."

"Open the door, I'm perishing!"

What others have to say:

"She makes me feel good because she's the only one with a messier desk than mine." Ms. Shumate

"There are no words for the woman." Traci Thompson

"She's a cool lady, yet slightly eccentric." Doug Flanders

"She's omniscient, omnipotent, and all-hearing." Kari Breken and Kareem Iliya

"She is the Roman senator, the Anglo Saxon warrior, the medieval philosopher, and the Renaissance man. She is the satirist of the Enlightenment, the Romantic poet, the Victorian novelist, and the twentieth-century educator. She is Maurine LeBeau, a woman of many ages." Betty Churchill

"Mrs. LeBeau is one of those rare people who has the ability to open your mind and pull from it things you never knew existed. Learning in her class is not just limited to Latin or English, but life itself." Liz Kennedy

"Mrs. LeBeau is really a war machine against hypocrisy. Be yourself and you will be a second son to her. Play a role and you're as good as a rotting conglomeration of dead grass, leaves, dirt and canine residue in her eyes. She's awesome." Mike Darby

"Her class is a living Hell . . . I wouldn't have missed it for the world!" Scott Selzer

"She is the ultimate salesperson. Not only will she sell you sausage or candy, but she can sell you Latin." Eric Booth

"Never be her aide!" Rick Bragg

Mike Darby

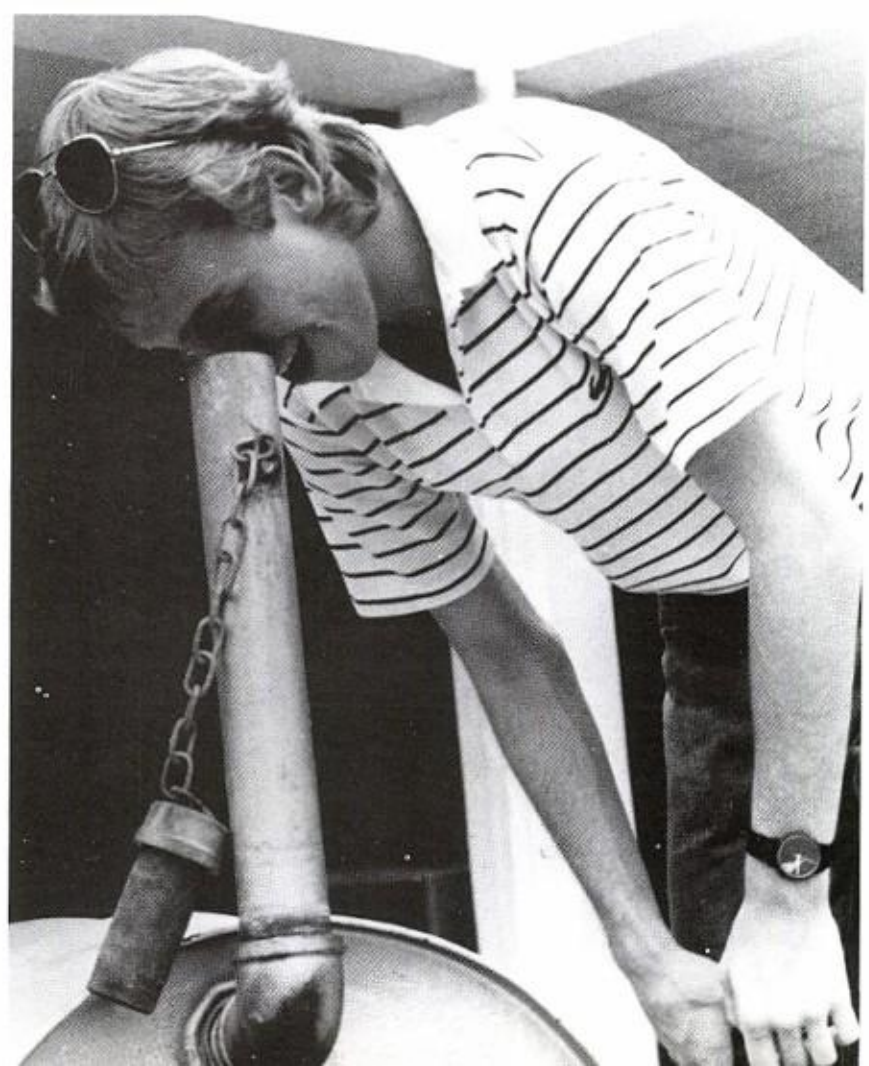

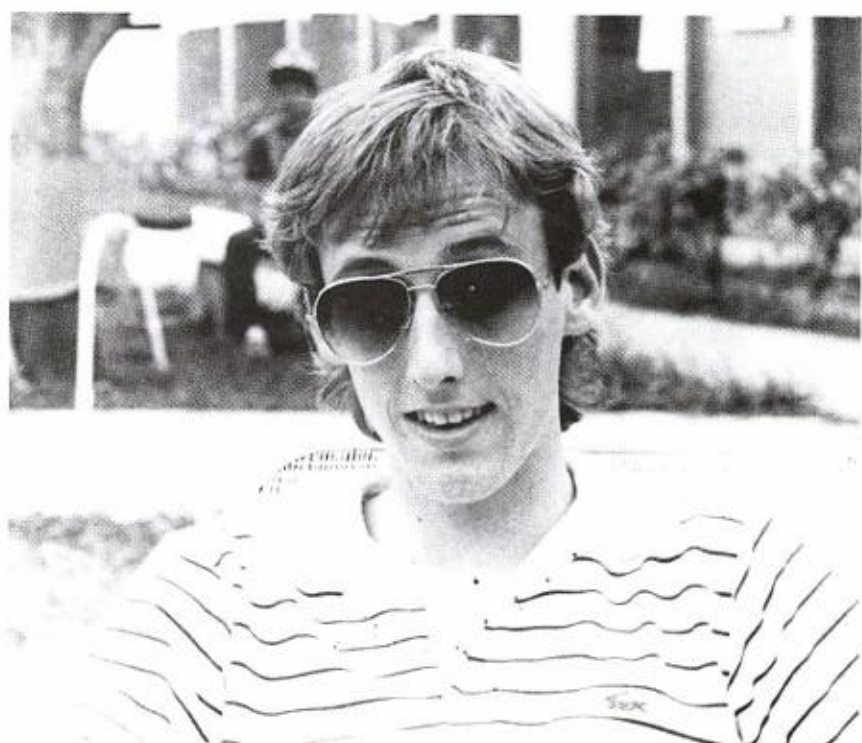

By Wendy Nelson

Grapevine is a "carnival of human characters," said Mike Darby.

Mike, a senior, feels that Grapevine has given him an analysis of human nature. He appreciates the wide variety of people at Grapevine. "I'm an observer," he announced. Mike likes the spirit, pride and easy acceptance of others the students exhibit. However, he dislikes it when the students are too serious. "I don't like it when other people are too serious for their age! Adolescence is funny; it's not a serious age."

Mike likes the friendly attitude of the teachers. "The teachers here are rarely hypocritical. They're themselves, more like friends." On the other hand, he disapproves of House Bill 72 and the way it limits flexibility. "Teachers are now too IBM, by the book!"

Mike Darby has contributed a great sense of humor to Grapevine. With his Monty Python style, Mike likes to think of himself as a "humor injection," so people will not be so hard-nosed, critical and serious. "I want to bring in a new attitude, one of having fun in high school, free from worries."

Susan Pittman

There are teachers that do their jobs well. They grade all the papers, give all the tests, finish the textbook at the end of the year, and do all the things that teachers are supposed to do.

And then there are the teachers who live their job; they don't do just what is required. The kind of teacher that seems as much a friend as an instructor, one that cares enough to overlook the system when necessary without breaking the rules. Students don't mind learning from these teachers; they make it worth fighting for the grade.

Susan Pittman is that kind of teacher and friend.

Mrs. Pittman is involved in many student related activities. She is the Academic Decathlon coach and UIL chairperson. She was the student council sponsor for four years.

The key to Mrs. Pittman is her intense competitiveness. She expects students to do their best, and she is sometimes disappointed when they don't meet her expectations.

Students and teachers respect her for all her hard work and contributions to GHS and her students.

Bonnie Koopman

Bonnie Koopman is a special individual who achieves her goals. She starts with a high mental attitude along with positive thinking. Bonnie goes to each track meet with motivation what will not quit.

Bonnie's high school achievements will never leave her memory. She has set new records in the 800 M, 400 M, and 2 mile which have led her to state four times. In less than 2 years, she has received 26 medals in both cross country and track, along with the All-Star award, and the prestigious Cindy Tirk Scholarship. Bonnie plans to attend SWT on scholarship, where she will run track and cross country.

Bonnie's experiences and success have had an impact on her future. She plans to be successful in reaching her goals at college. Bonnie is continually on the go and is determined to be a winner.

Ann Doach

Eat your heart out H. Ross! Student can excel in extracurriculars without compromising academics. Ann Doach is a prime example. In her 4 years at Grapevine, she has amounted a list of awards a mile high. These awards are largely drill team oriented, as she was a member of the Fillies for 1 year; lieutenant for 1 yr.; and captain her senior year. Some of the honors she has received include:

- (1) Who's Who Among American Drillteams
- (2) Top 20 - Individual Competition at Dallas — 2 yrs.
- (3) Honor Roll at NTSU Camp
- (4) Superstar Girl Nominee — SMU
- (5) All Star Dancer Award (NTSU and SMU)
- (6) 3rd runner up — Individual Competition Showtime camp
- (7) 4th runner up — Individual Comp. at San Antonio — Marching Auxiliaries
- (8) 4th runner up — Individual comp. at NTSU camp
- (9) 1st runner up — Grand Prairie Individual
- (10) Chosen to perform at Bluebonnet Bowl
- (11) Chosen to teach Marching Auxiliaries Camps during the summer

Ann's academic awards include:

- (1) Who's Who Among American High School students
- (2) A-Honor roll
- (3) U.S. Achievement Academy
- (4) Academic All-American

Grapevine Nightingale Scores Big at Home and In State

Michelle, junior, represents one of the best at G.H.S. She is an outstanding student in the choral department. Having been in choir for some six years, she received the honor of being a member of the Texas All-State Choir.

Michelle is a well-rounded student. Besides being on the state choir she was also appointed to the National Honor Society earlier this year. She considers her best subjects to be math and science, while history and English are her worst. After graduation, Michelle plans to study music and elementary education to become a concert pianist or choir director.

Although she has accomplished much in her school career, she regrets having to drop-out of the Fillies before her junior year to spend more time with other projects. Michelle has made personal sacrifices but has reaped the benefits of school as well.

Michelle Rutter

Nicole Trewitt

Nicole Trewitt is a junior, she moved to Grapevine during her sophomore year. She is a member of Texas Academy of Gymnastics. This is a private gymnastics club that competes year-round. A typical week of workouts during school would be Monday through Thursday 4:30-9:30 pm, Saturday 11:30-5:30 pm, and Sunday 1:30-6:30 pm.

Though there's not time for much else, Nicole manages her school work — she's a member of the National Honor Society. Her busy schedule does not allow her to be involved in other extra curricular club and activities besides NHS. Her hard work is worth her while, as she has won the following titles: Junior championships of USA — 3rd place — National Team '83, Junior Championships of USA — 13th place '84, Peachtree Invitational '85 — 3rd place (just to name the major titles!).

She's an all-around gymnast involved in vault, bars, beam, and floor. Though she does get to come home for Christmas, the summer schedule will give her only three free days with practices Monday through Saturday 8:30 am-1 pm and competitions all summer long.

Nicole and her manager, Chad Milsap.

Ramona Duell

"Whenever it is a damp, drizzly November in our souls . . ." a lady by the name of Ramona Duall sweeps away the chill with poignant, purple prose.

The lady is fictional — no, rather more mythical — since she sprang full blown from the foreheads of whimsical, restless faculty members. And at first she bolstered only their spirits. Now she sustains us all.

Each year some senior boy is privileged to assume her persona in the faculty section. Each year the publication staffs wait eagerly for her letters of encouragement.

This year the lady posed for her own page. This special year the lady wrote her own copy:

Dear Ones,

What a high honor you have bestowed upon me! Imagine — my own page in the yearbook. I ride on heights of keep ardor. And how long since I've moved in such rarefied atmosphere!

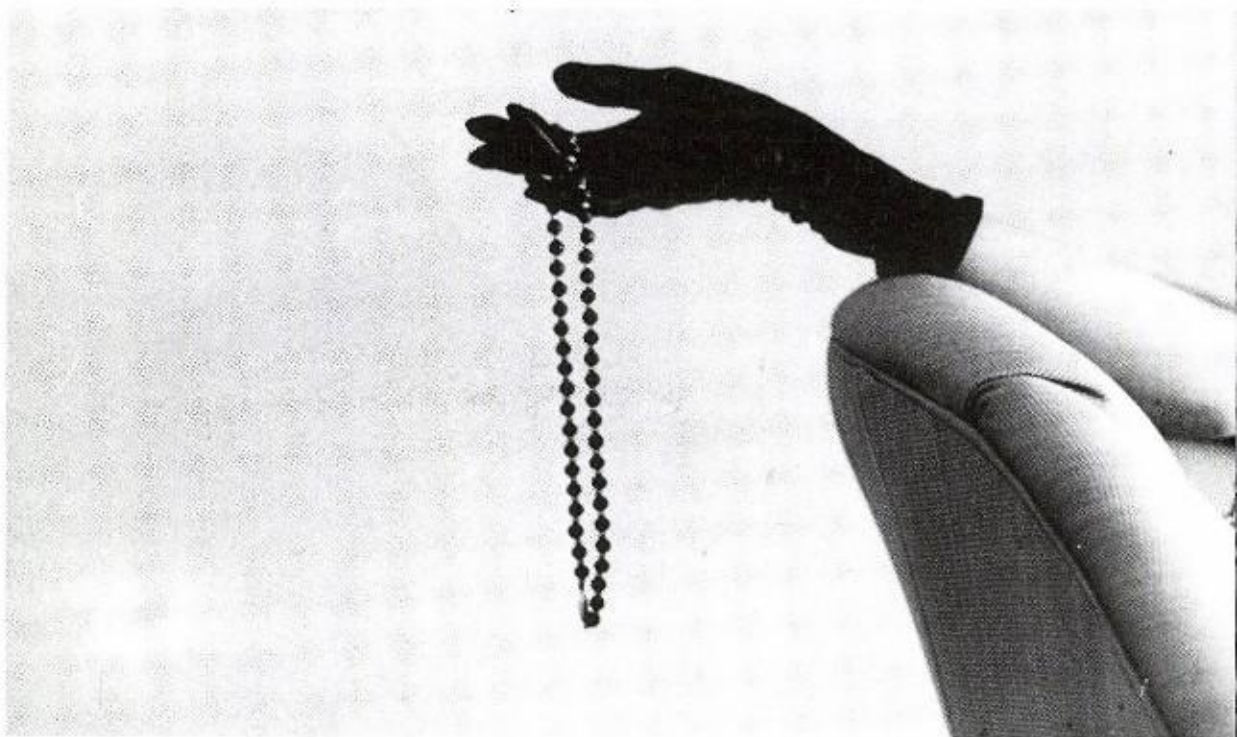

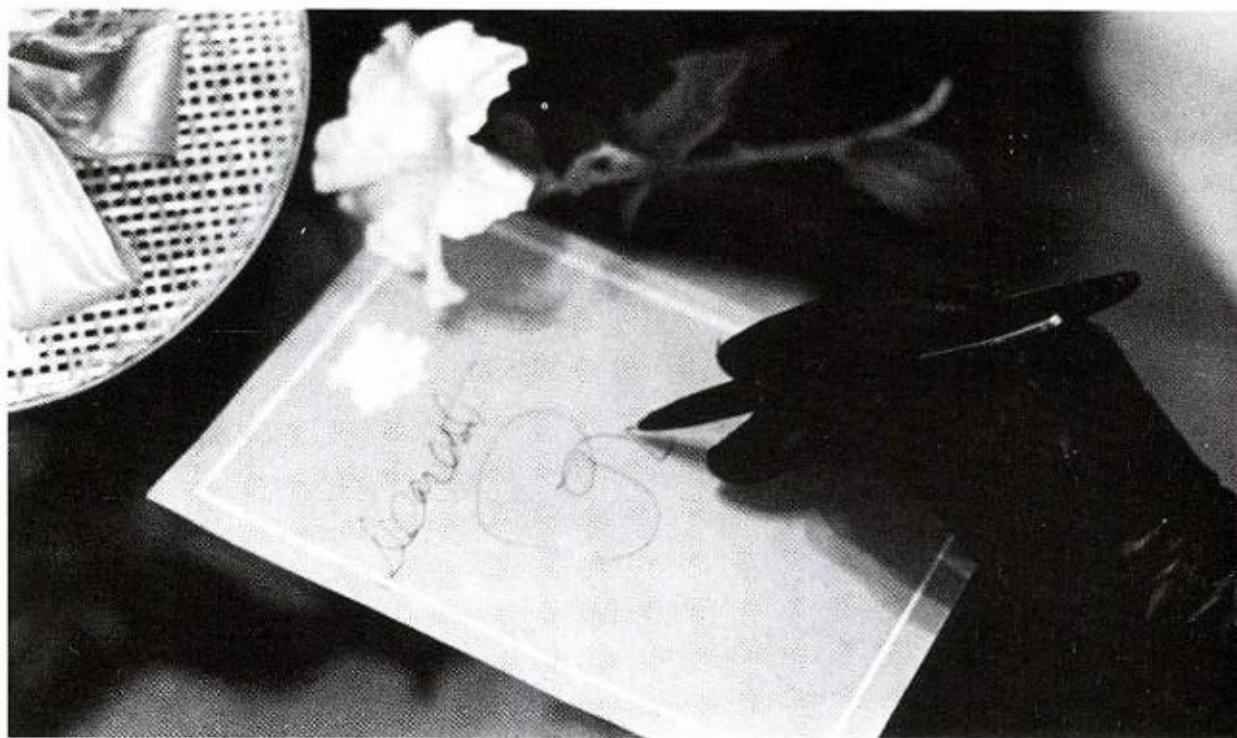

May I take the occasion of my being an honored member of the student body to offer a memento from my heart? Just this —

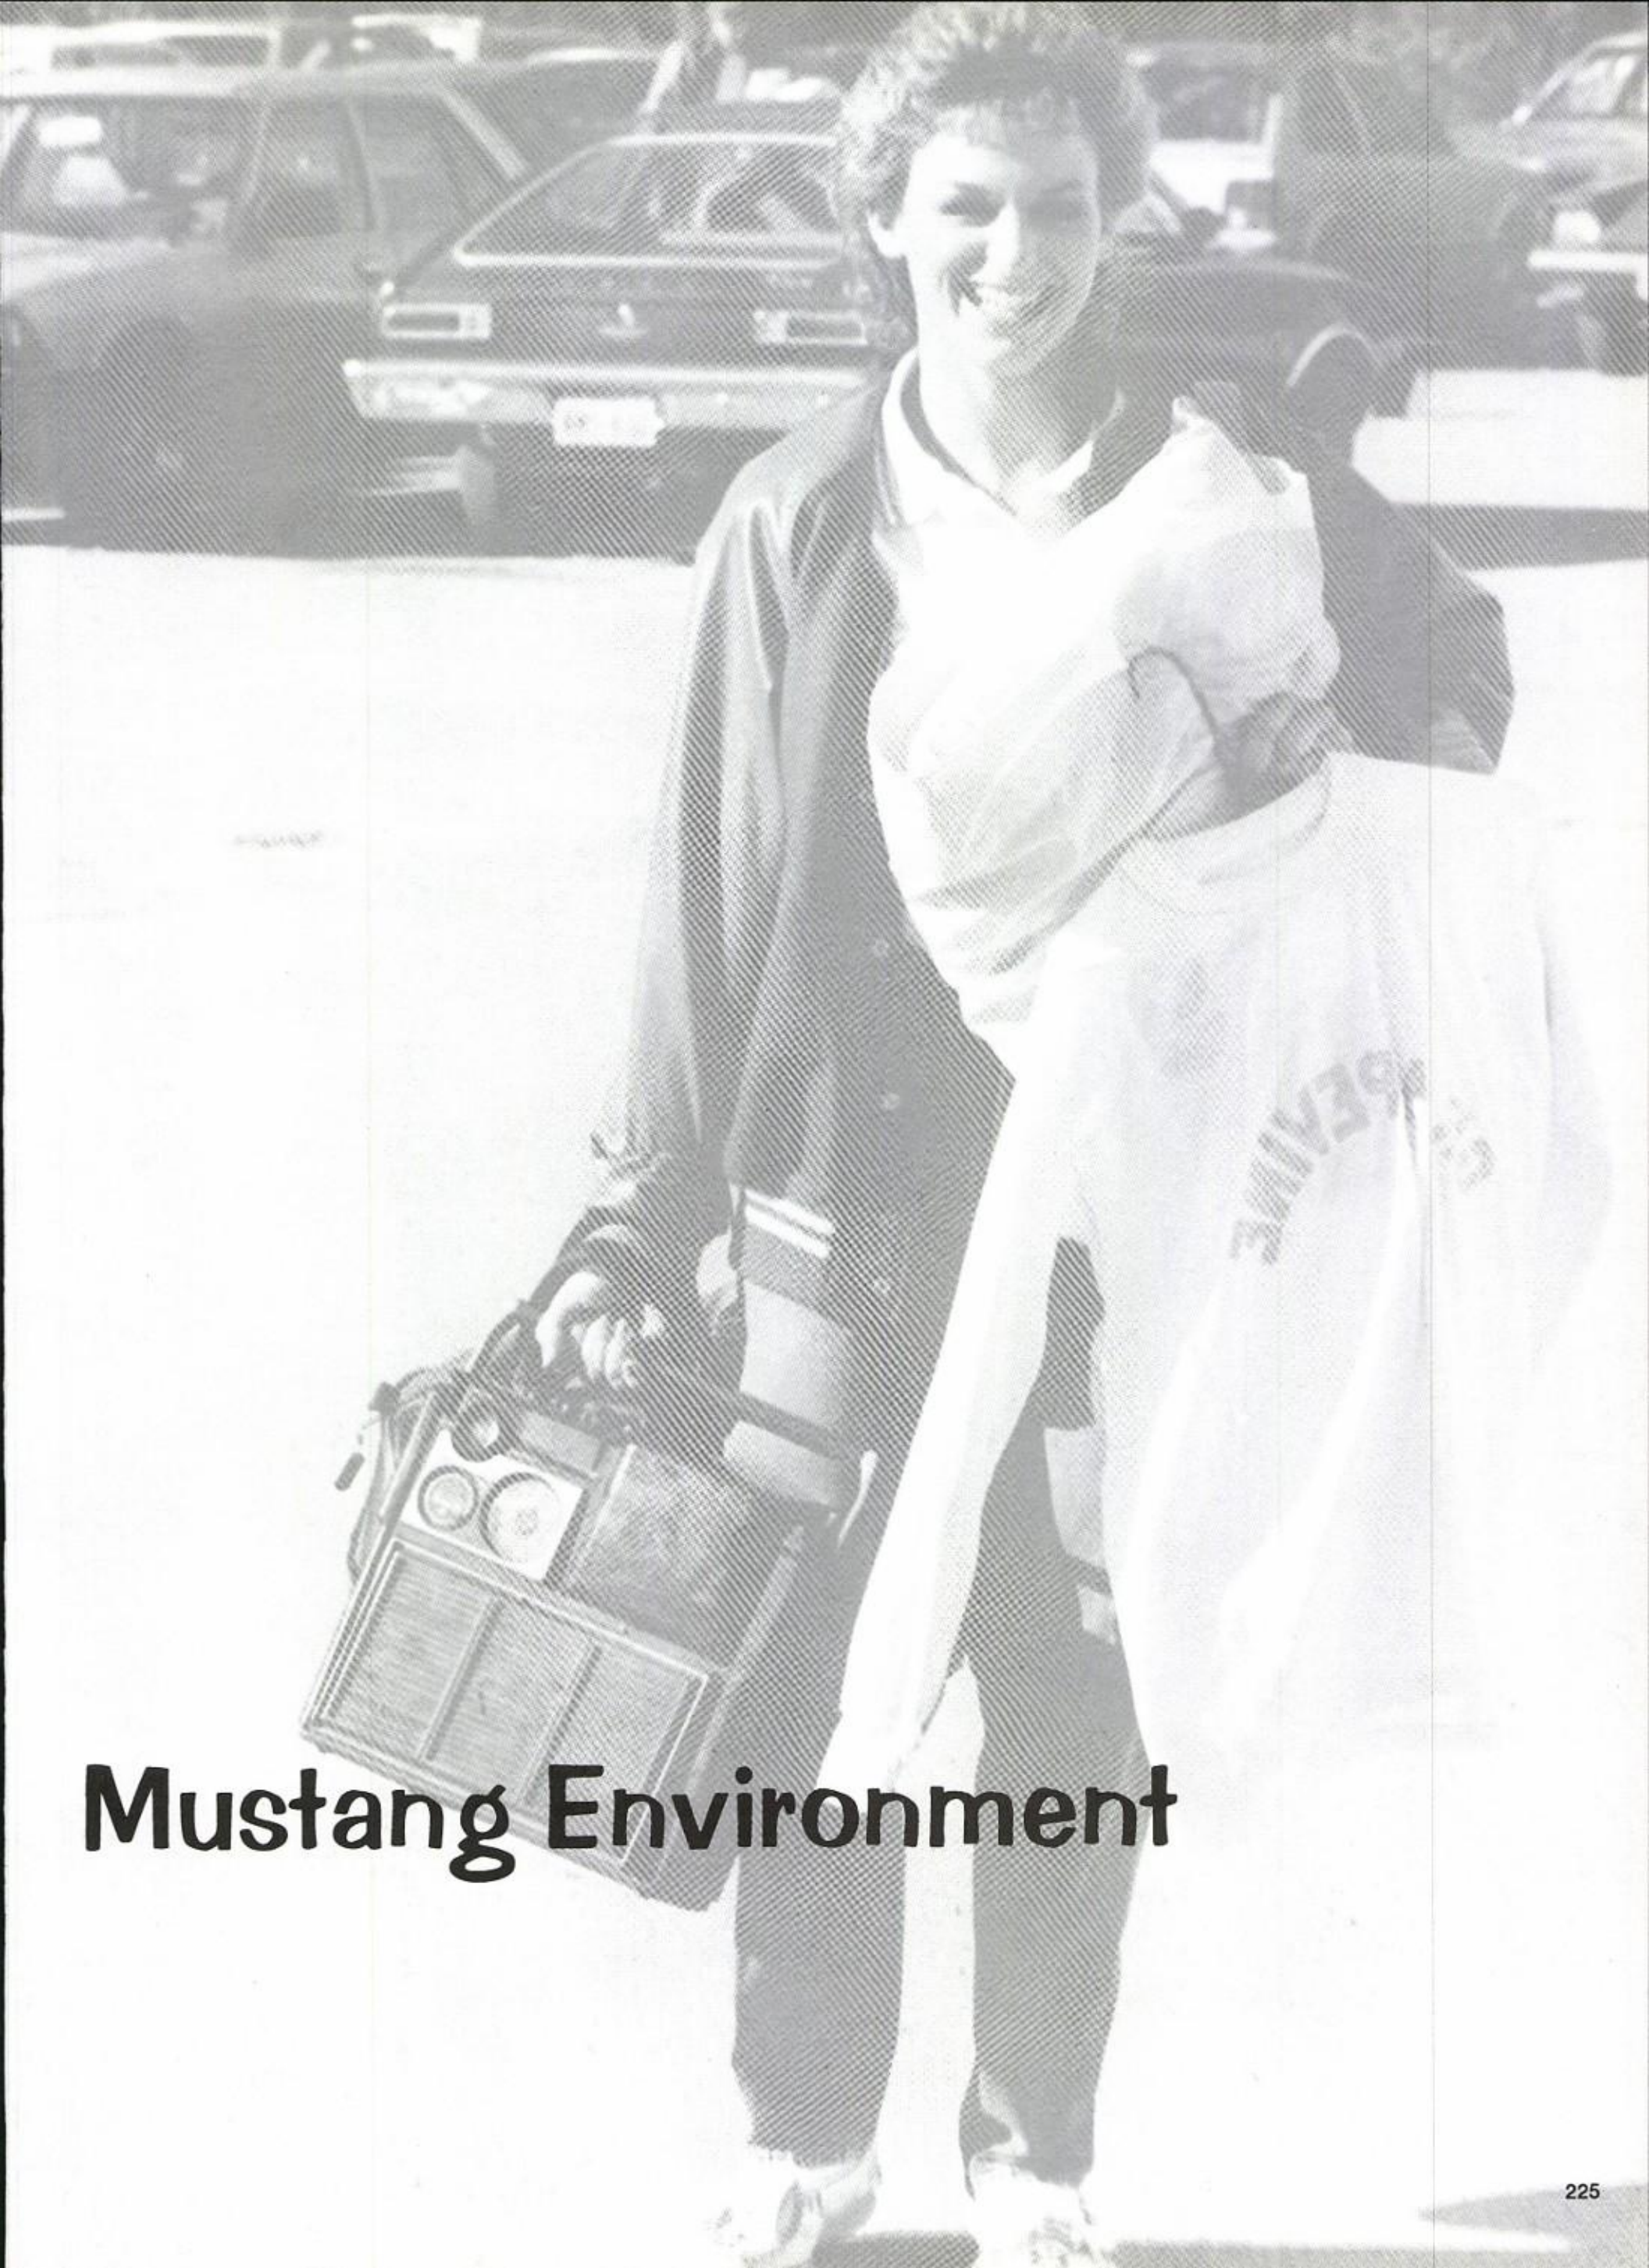

Dear ones, don't be afraid of commitment. Don't be afraid to care.

It is with greatest affection and felicitations that I salute you.

Ramona

'Greater Tuna' nets zone 1st place

How big was it? David Alford and Stuart Pisseco listen skeptically to Tammy Behring's fish story.

"Greater Tuna": it is not a fish; it is our drama department's claim to fame.

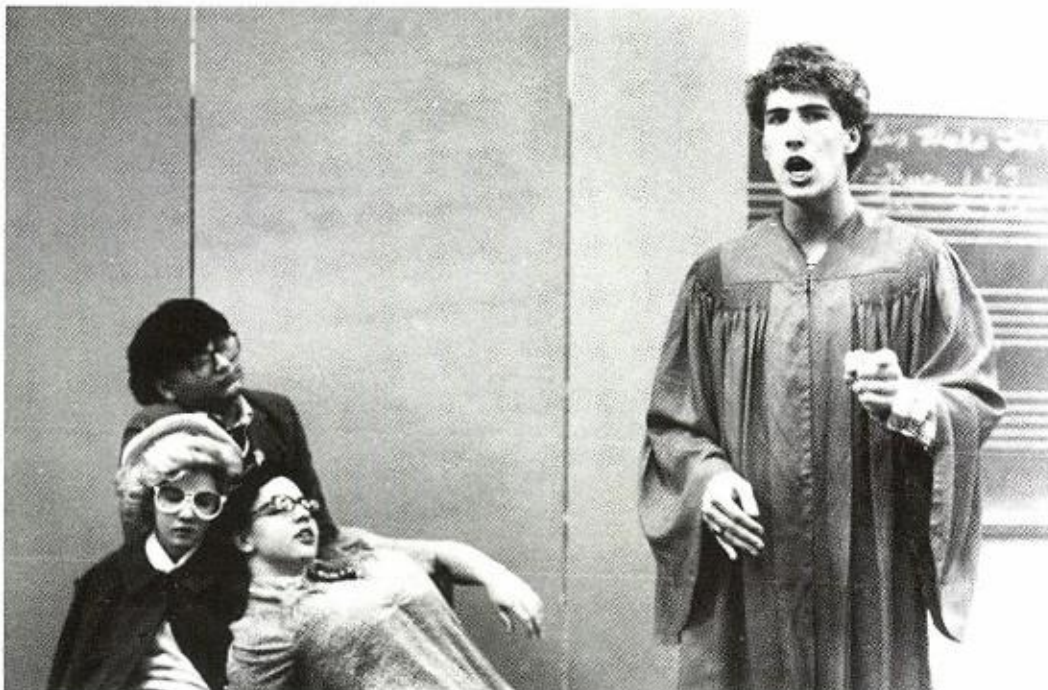

"Greater Tuna," a one-act play written by Jaston Williams, gave the drama team a first place finish at UIL district competition and an alternate position at regionals.

By watching these actors perform, you would think everything came with ease; however, the road to their success was marred by a fifty dollar fee for play rights. Also, written permission from the publisher, Samuel French, was needed. Add to that some afterschool and Saturday practices since December, and you would think these actors would have quit a long time ago.

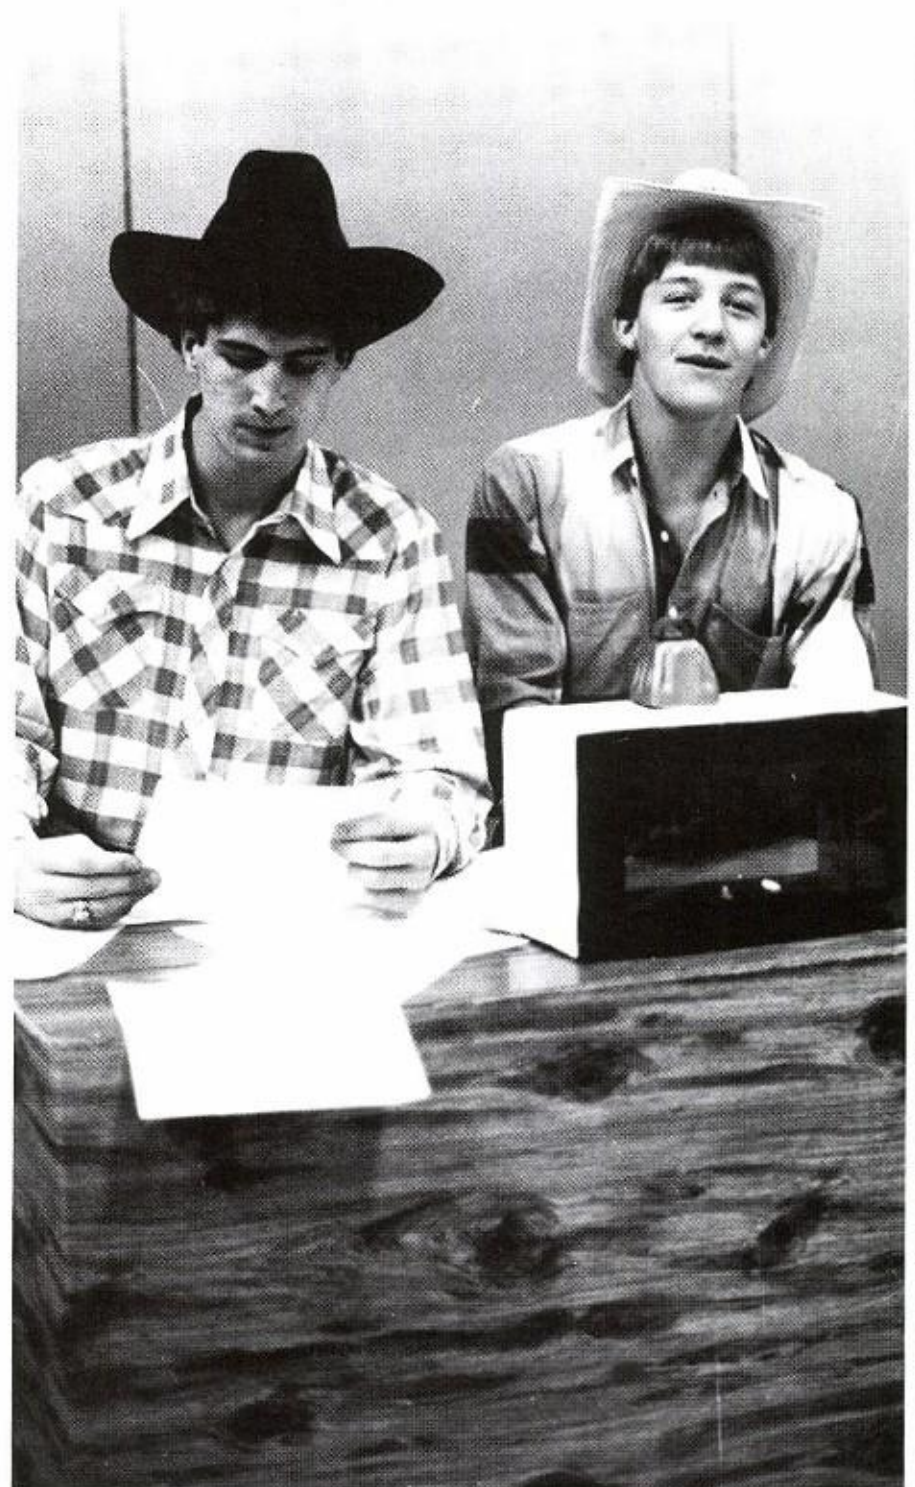

"Greater Tuna" is a satire on the life in a small west Texas town. A murder is committed by a juvenile delinquent, but everybody thinks the victim died of a heart attack.

Throughout the entire race, the one-act players were in high gear. When the last lap came and the checkered flag went down, these actors took the winner's circle.

One page with Mike and Jennings

Life's like a big vacation to Vegas. Yep, that's the way we feel. Sometimes you just have to conform and be boring. It's like being in a restaurant and listening to somebody playing a piano, and like you turn around to see who that lounge singer is, and it's your dad. It's kind of like aspirin and salt mixed together in a lime sherbert; a mesh of taste sensations that remind you of eating a bag of french fries with a headache. That's kind of like what school is. Sometimes we feel like Sisyphus, rolling that rock up a big hill. Then again, it's like people just can't relate to that.

It's like having your teeth knocked out with a ball peen hammer and all the dentists have gone to Palm Springs, and you have to have pictures taken the next day.

Some days we feel like Rolf Brekken. That's it; just Rolf Brekken. It's like we both know this guy out in California. He sold door mats made out of octopi and he starved. Guess it's a pretty bad business to go into. Some days we feel like we have no face and we hope we don't get pulled over because the pictures on our licenses won't match.

I guess all we can say is good luck to whatever you go on to in life and someday maybe you'll figure out what we were on when we wrote this.

LOVE Mike AND Jennings

Chrome polish found sometimes tarnished

Shifting gears has not failed to travel the glittered path of the 1985 prom scene. After weeks and weeks of preparation, of renting a limousine to arrive Hollywood style, buying a dress with all the frills of a superstar, and ordering flowers to be decorated much like a corps cadet, who would have thought that the long awaited gala affair would finally come. Yet behind the scenes, committees rushed gathering pictures, preparing slides, searching for music, and overall running themselves ragged down to the last seconds before the doors opened. And what for? Yes, the night of all nights, THE NIGHT, prom night, "Short sweet and to the point," one small night out of 365 made special by the hearts of seniors everywhere. There is no doubt that the 1985 prom is the best this school will probably ever see, "typical of our senior class." Though the slide show, the dinner, and the weather may not have cooperated, as well as planned, there were still smiles of happiness and joys of friendship. That is why prom was created, to have one night to celebrate friendship brought about by many years of bad and good. Somewhere we have forgotten this. Maybe in 'shifting gears,' but the seniors of 1985, as they fade away, leaving room for the next generation making the same quest for happiness, know that their happiness lies in the last four years. "It was great — a blast!" Perhaps we spend too much time looking for happiness, and neglect to see that it is right in front of us. It is always there, somewhere. We just need to open our eyes and find it. Good luck to all who follow. We have found ours, and we think others will find the same.

Mr. Fail passes the test

by Scott Selzer

"I hope I've established a trend of integrity and morality and dignity for the staff and the students and thereby lasting support of the community for the school district," said Mr. Bob Fail, GCISD Superintendent of School.

Mr. Fail will retire at the end of the school year, and his reflections of the past six years offer insight into a man who has had a good time doing a job he enjoyed.

"In the beginning I was concerned that I could not make the decisions without being seriously affected emotionally," he said. "I tried to get all the information and make a decision and rest on it. I didn't worry about it after that. This has worked 95% of the time."

The obligations of a superintendent are enormous. But Mr. Fail shrugs at the prospect of hard work. "A lot has to do with judgment. The best advice ever received was 'If it is not broken, don't fix it.' I've tried to adhere to that philosophy as much as possible."

Mr. Fail has quite seriously been accused of being a father figure for the district. "That's not bad," he said. "It's my style, not everyone's. I function best under that type of relationship."

Mr. Fail is very proud of his tenure. "I think I'm very proud. I wouldn't change a thing if I had to do it over. I'm very grateful that I've had the opportunity to influence education."

Mr. Fail is also very proud of the changes that have taken place throughout his stay. "There has been great improvement in the curriculum. The elementary schools have departmentalized. There has been a trend toward higher test scores, especially in the math area. Music, band, and choir programs have all greatly improved. And of course, we can't forget the improvement in our athletic programs."

"I would say that the improvement in the schools is primarily because of the great population growth in the area. The kids are coming from families that expect a child to be serious about his studies. The influence of the parents has put us in a position to always try to get better than we are."

Mr. Fail plans to move to West Texas where he is not quite sure what he will do. "It probably won't have anything to do with schools," he admitted. But from his experience as superintendent, he offers this advice to students, "Have a positive attitude toward the task at hand. Give your most and it will pay off in the long run."

A vital part of survival, the coffee machine serves a basic necessity for all who ail. For faculty, this is the stuff of life. This coffee machine is not your ordinary coffee machine, this particular one has survived the Perot/House Bill 72 holocaust, box-lunches, all-you-can-eat chicken, failing slips (in triplicate), and the class of 1985. Another example of this school's vast amounts of unsung heroes remaining day-to-day with little or no attention.

A student's best friend. Face it, if your teacher did not get her/his caffeine fix we would all be a little more obnoxious.

A small price to pay for instant happiness. However we the student body felt that this sign is discriminatory because it does not include student involvement in the partaking of this "wonder substance."

EVIDENCE. Mrs. Duffy gets caught in the act again. (uh, this would not have happened if she would have just kept up her 'protection money'.)

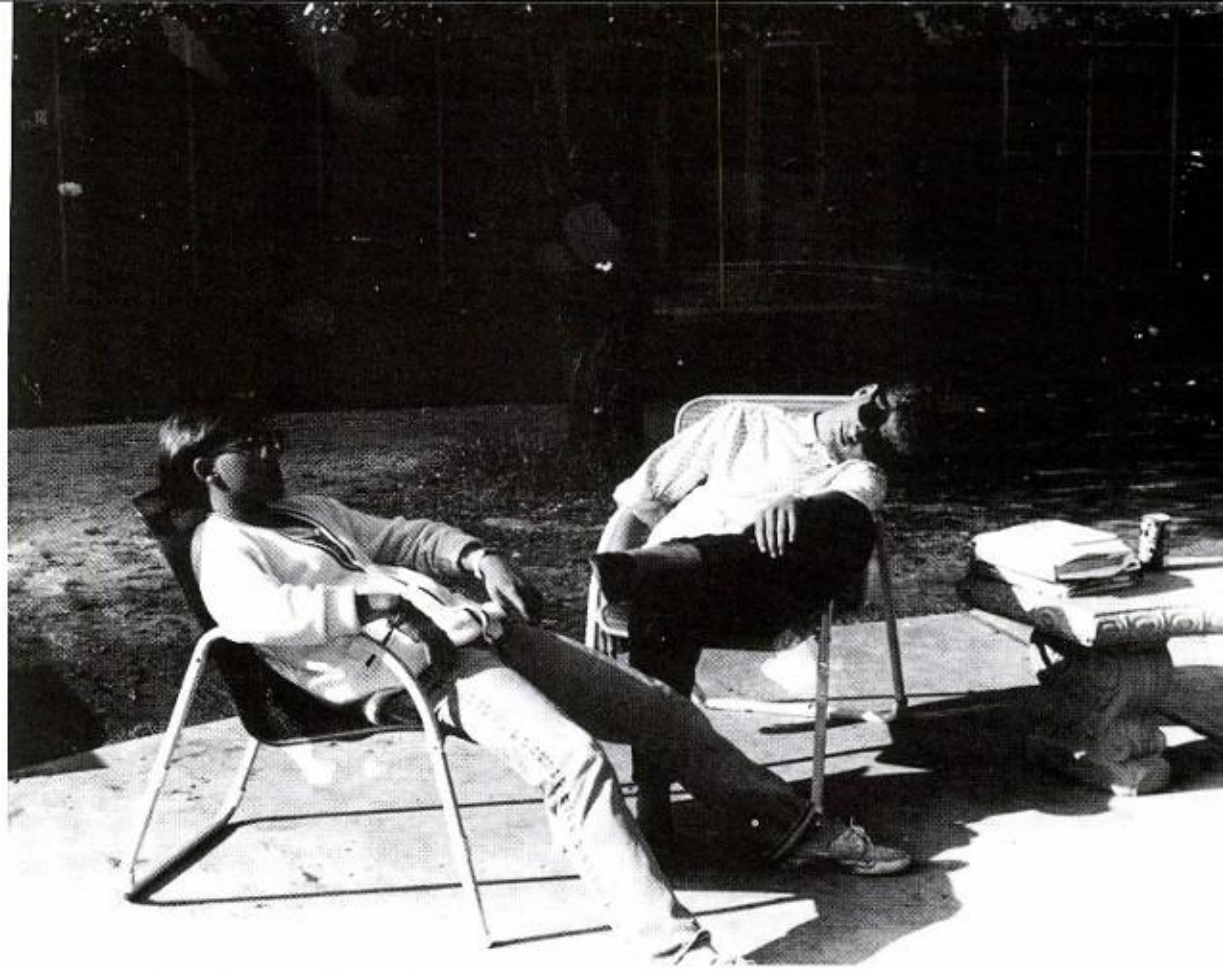

A student who wishes to remain anonymous demonstrates "how to get in the faculty lounge" by using unimportant ties with school officials.

Gift of the gods

One of the few, but nevertheless exciting, accomplishments of the student council this year was the introduction of the "Knotty Oak" country club style deck chairs.

Students assumed that these lawn luxuries were gifts of the gods serving as appeasement for their failing slips and lack of field trips.

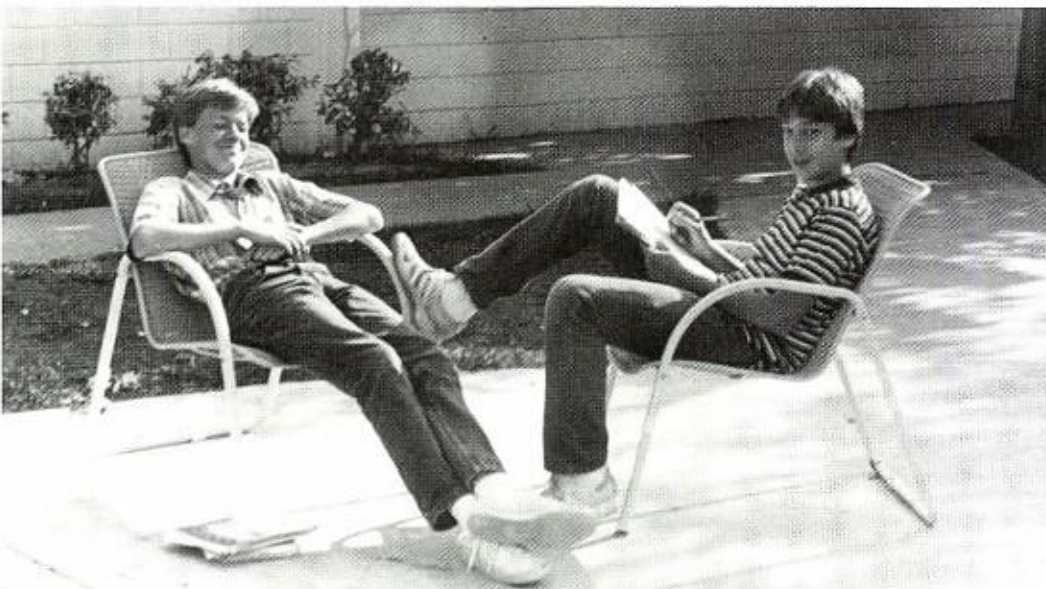

However, the new craze in lunch time "scoping" spots were furnished by your humble servants, the student council. Who?

Sun lawn chairs suntan. Bret Ridgeway and Doug Flanders catch some rays.

What was number four? Early morning "study" groups form in the commons, utilizing the new chairs.

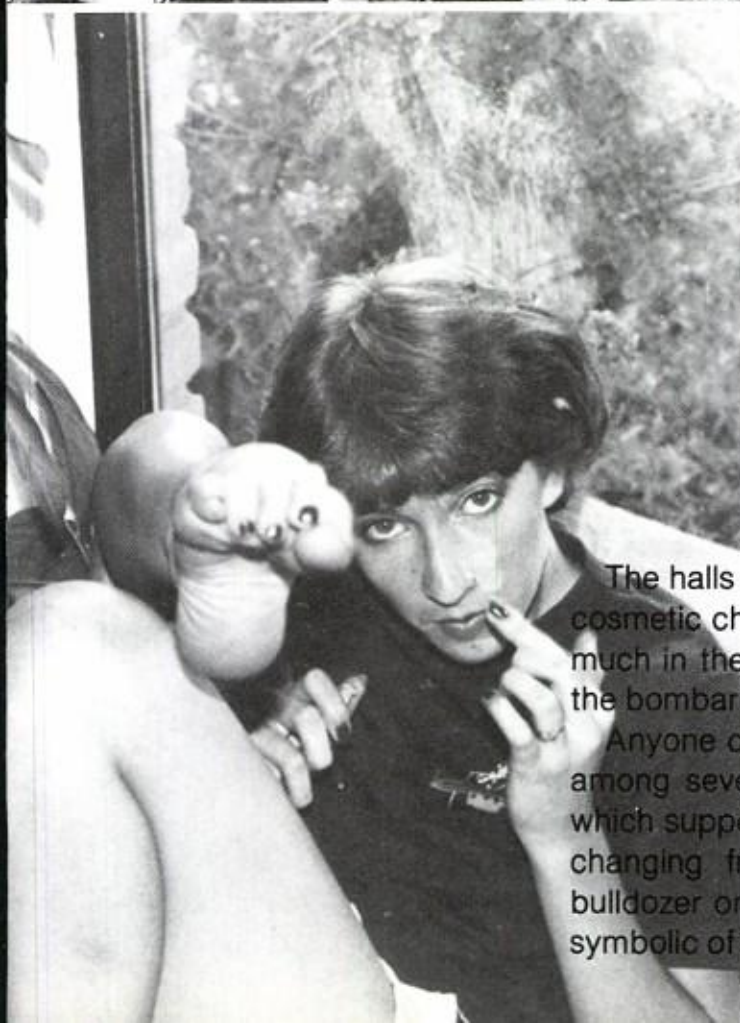

"Hey neatol!" Yes, even freshmen may enjoy the new luxuries (if no upperclassmen are around.)

"You have the right to ..." Officer Bob escorts an imposter from the premises.

A friend he has whose face will never change

The halls of GHS saw many changes take place this year. Many cosmetic changes got underway, and the parking lot dilemma was much in the public eye. However, one thing stood strong against the bombardment of change: friendship.

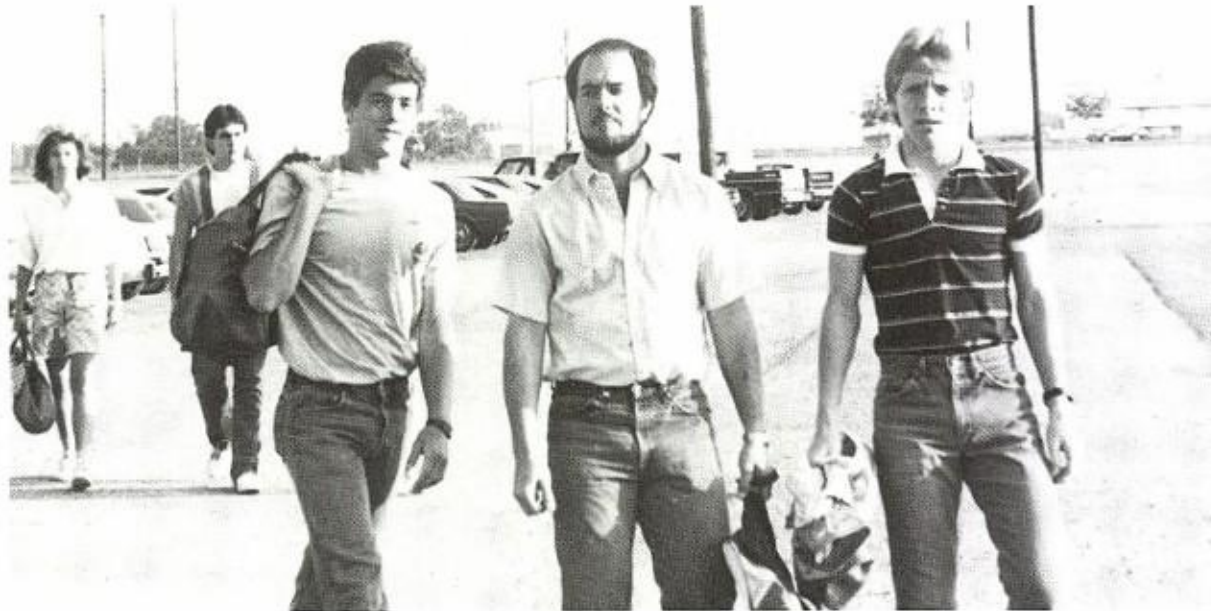

Anyone could look down the halls and see a personal bondage among several different groups. The friendships were the rocks which supported the individuals during these trying times. The unchanging friendships were a symbol of something which no bulldozer or house bill could ever remove. These friendships were symbolic of GHS' enduring tradition.

Last train out. Students load up for a short journey.

Trying to be patient! The bus drivers wait on the late students.

Off to school they go! Randy Humphery, Brian McPherson, and Ricky McCandless choose the best way to go.

Going out way? Shannon Leuck, and Gwen Guess hitch a ride.

Alternative Parking

Grapevine High School is expanding rapidly. For the students' benefit, the board decided to add more space to provide for the ever increasing student population. However, the consequences the students must endure during the construction are untimely and inconvenient. With three weeks remaining, the students had to park at the stadium and catch a shuttle bus to school. Most students cooperated, though other students found themselves walking or riding bikes. Always keeping things under control, Mr. Jacoby continues to be pleased with the student body at G.H.S.

Ride the bus! Bonnie Koopman expresses her feelings.

When the "cat's" away . . .

There's nothing quite like the joy of having a sub'. Teacher is sick, and it is time to persecute and play, a day of busy work and rebellion.

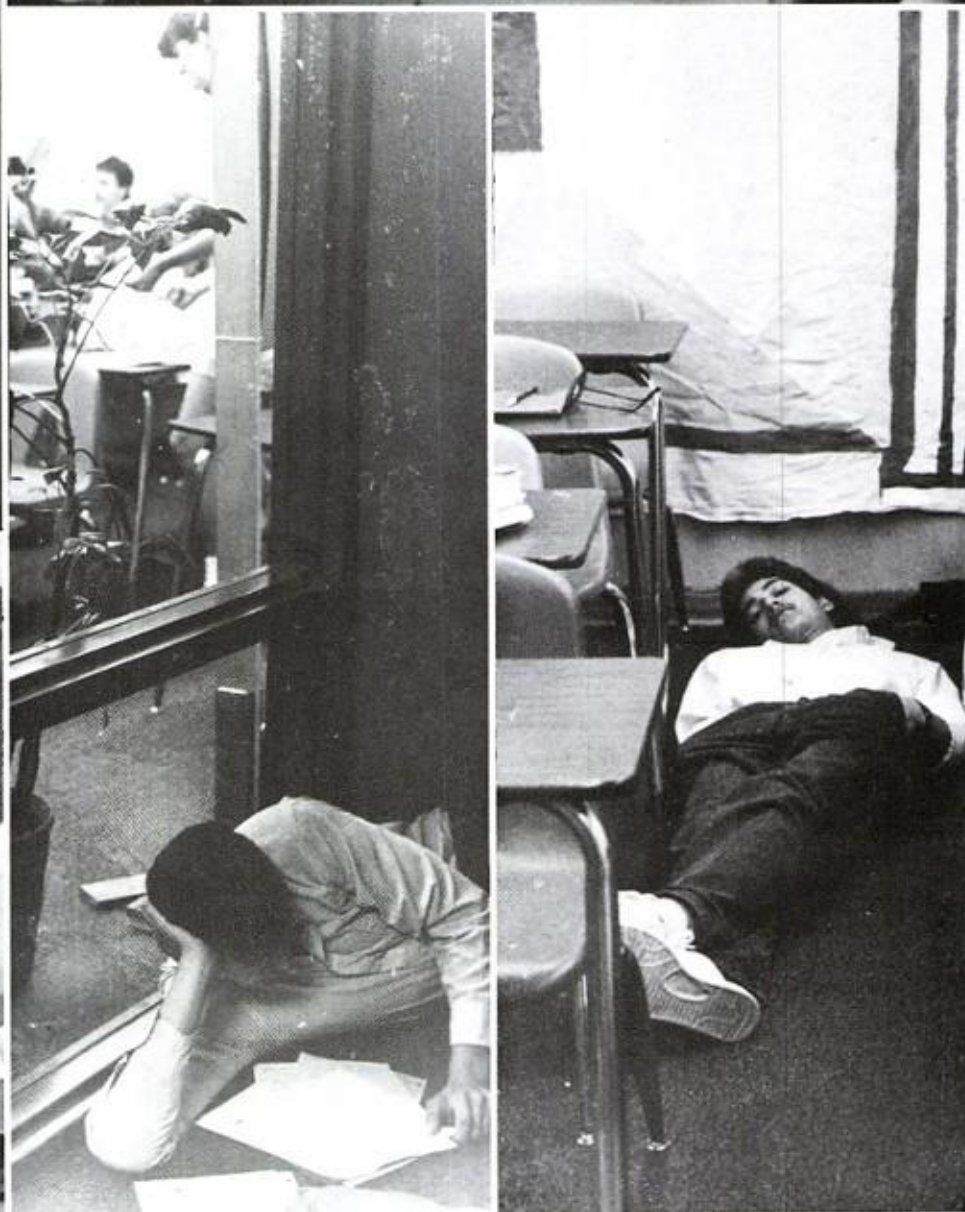

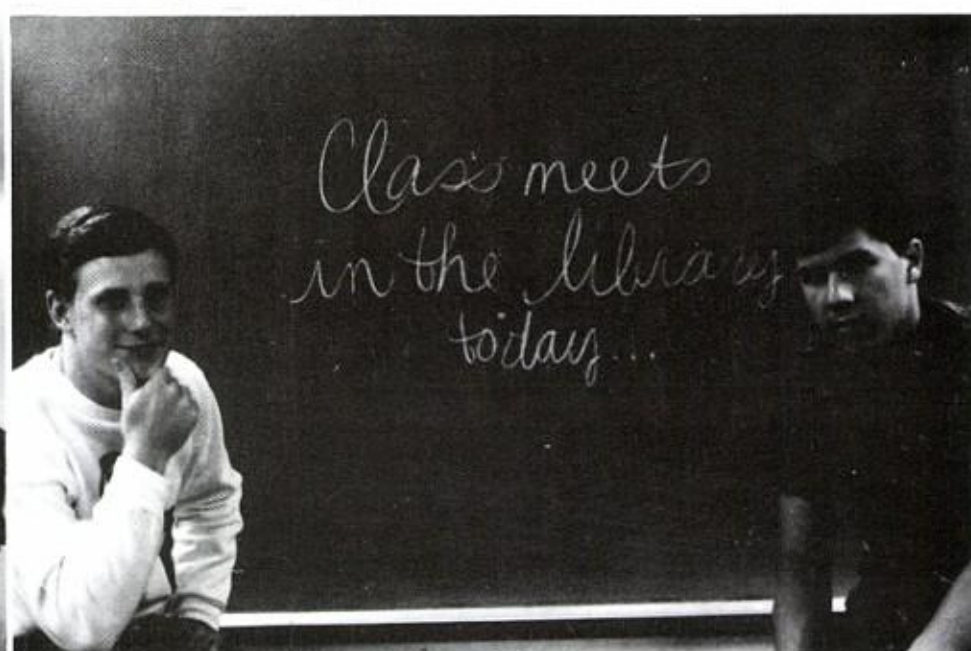

Of course what if the sub' takes ill and she never returns? Then of course the mice will play . . . and play they did.

Mrs. LeBeau's Latin and Senior English classes indulged in such luxuries as croquet, napping, sun-bathing, all three lunches, and "5th period release."

Some authorities questioned the whereabouts and identity of the mysterious "Sub'."

No one could recall her name (she hadn't written it on the board), and she "went to the bathroom," "went to the library," "received a couple of phone calls," "got sick," "got mad," and various other things.

But all good things must end, as the "cat" and 55-minutes of uninterrupted class time returned Monday.

Here's the maypole, where's the daisy chain!

Under, over, under, over ... Romans weave in and out as they decorate the maypole.

All wrapped and no place to go. Romans uncover ancient mummy.

Daisy chain this ain't. Brian Shoemaker, Atilla Penzes, and Liz Kennedy stand ready to decorate.

Voilà! The finished project. Lee Davis makes quite the picturesque maypole.

With the first of May, spring fever was definitely in the air. Very large particles of this contagious disease diffused rapidly throughout the drama department.

Local Romans were sent into states of delirium. Tearing themselves away from their translations, the Romans found need to celebrate the age old tradition of trimming the maypole. Since G.H.S. was not equipped for such festivities, necessary substitutions had to be made.

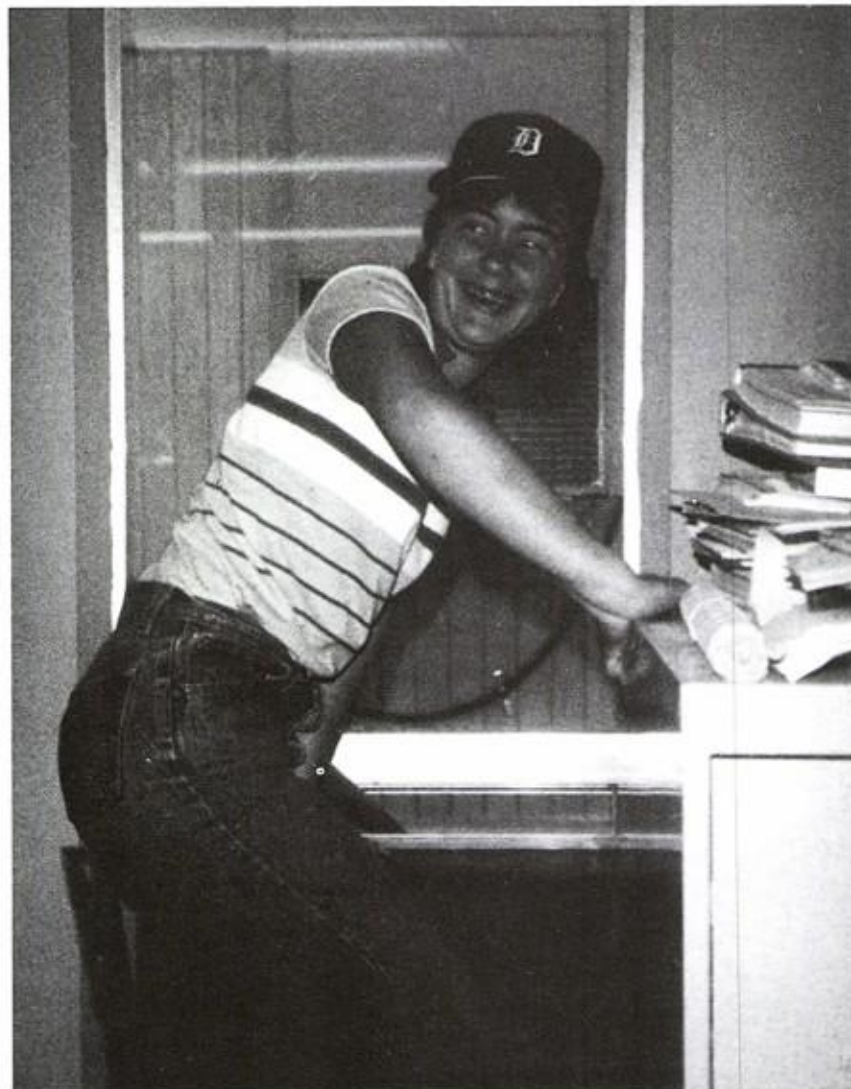

Lee Davis stood in for the maypole, and toilet paper was used rather than garlands of flowers. The effort was worthwhile. An ancient ritual was preserved for coming generations.

Escape from Economics

April 29, and twenty one days left of school. Seniors are climbing the walls, or rather, the windows. Have you ever had one of those days when you just cannot stay awake during economics?

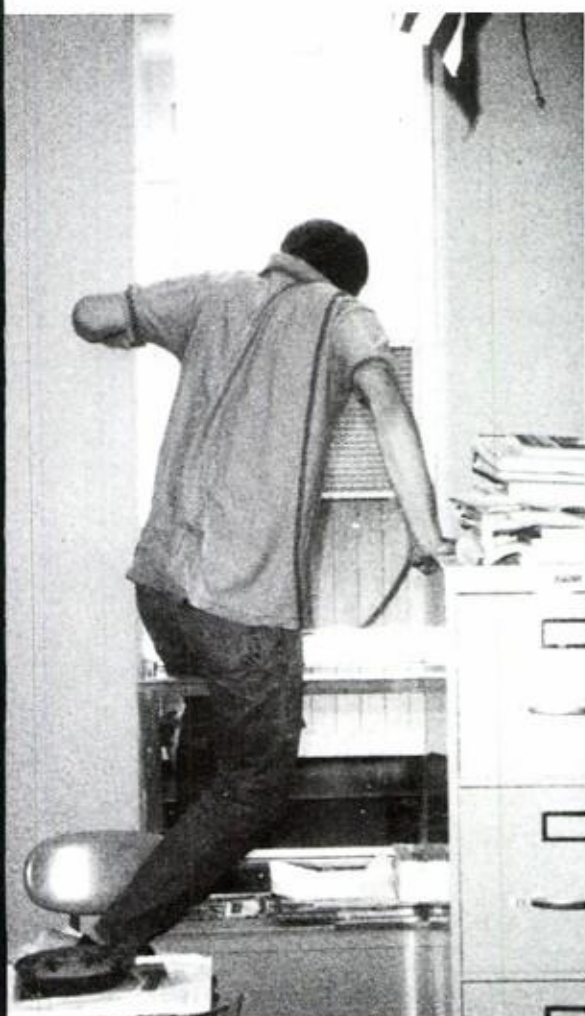

Mrs. Farris's fifth period class decided that they could not bear to stay within the four walls of a classroom any longer. With clever ingenuity and athletic expertise, four members of Grapevine's class of 1985 decided to take matters into their own hands.

Facing the constant threat of discovery and danger of annihilation by the ominous window, crusaders, Jennifer Jameson, Liz Kennedy, Tracey Odem, and Dwight West only suffered one mishap, when J.J. experienced the dreaded "face smash". Securing their victory, our fearless adventurers raced through the hallways to freedom. Unfortunately our brave voyagers were foiled in their efforts by the return of our absent instructor.

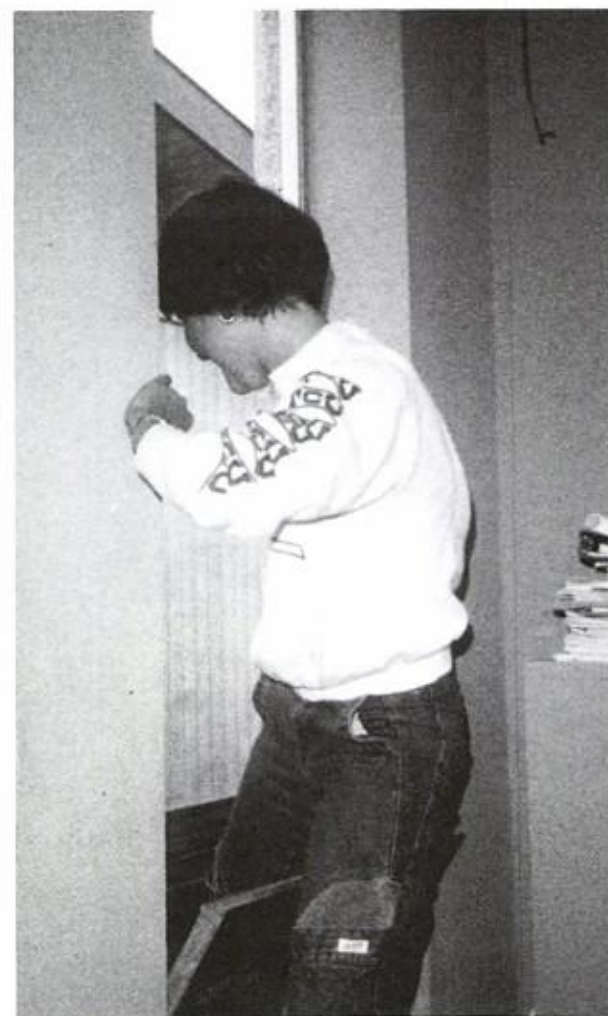

Is she coming? Liz checks to make sure Mrs. Farris is still out of the room.

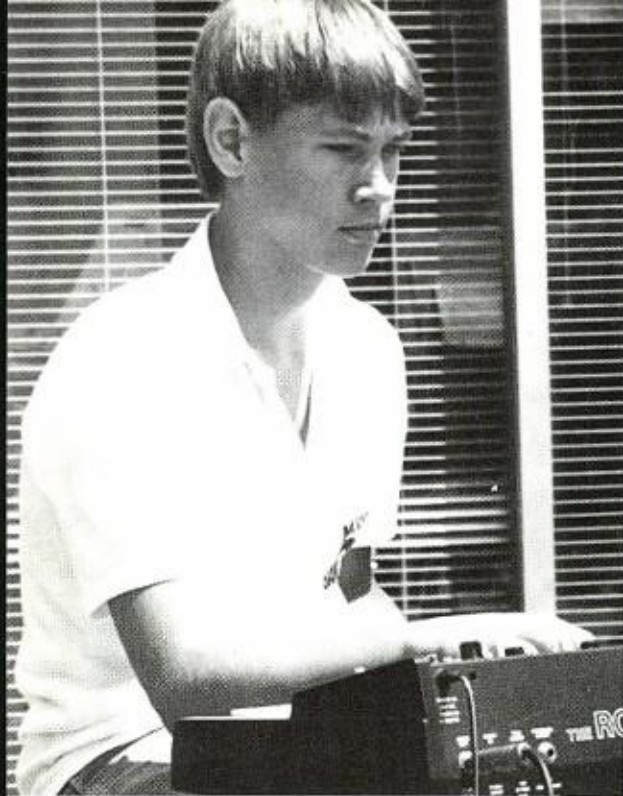

Do you think you're going to fit? Dwight West attempts to fit his ungainly body through.

Slip right through. Tracey Odem has no problem getting through the window unlike Dwight.

Is this our graceful Homecoming Queen? J.J. tries to get out without ripping her jeans.

I'll beam you up, Captain Kirk. Jeff Koehn awaits the signal for his show.

Afternoon in the Park

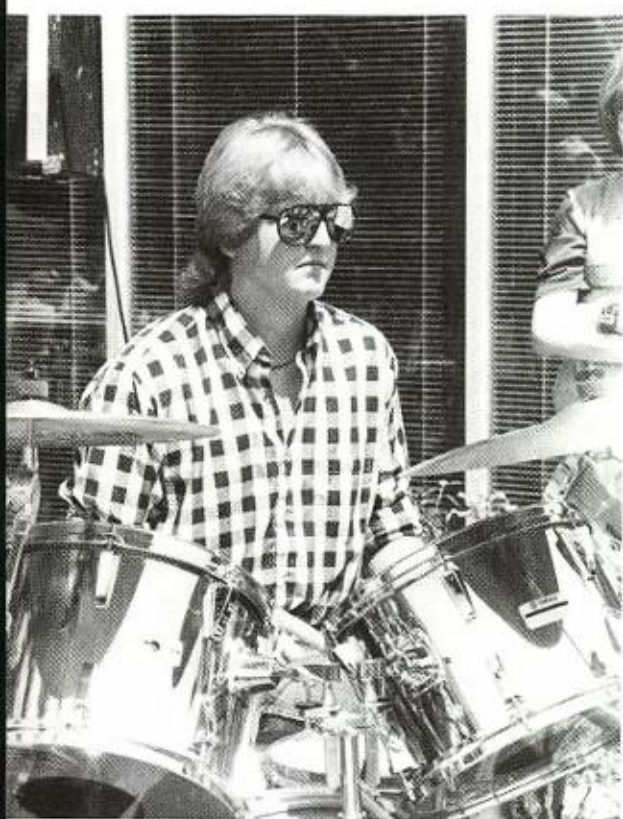

And a one and a two and a . . . Mr. Stevenson directs a favorite tune for Miss Frank.

The artistic performance of GHS's very own jazz band on Friday, May 3, was received with sincere enthusiasm by a responsive audience.

Miss Carolyn Frank was honored when the jazz band dedicated the song "Big Band Swing" to her. Said Miss Frank, "I'm very, very complimented. GHS is very fortunate to have such a fine jazz band."

The jazz band, directed by Mr. Stevenson, gave their exciting performance during all three lunch periods in the commons because Mr. Jacoby felt it was "a good opportunity to see what a great job our jazz band is doing."

Beyond the control of . . .

Rules are meant to be broken. House Bill 72 and Ross Perot set out to stiffen school policies across Texas. They hit hard in the high schools, especially here at Grapevine.

We were bombarded with the 55-minutes of uninterrupted class time, longer school days, unexcused absence policies, 8-hour athletic rules, and other evils. It took away many field trips, assemblies, early dismissal, senior college days, and the seniors' week-off. Goblin Day, Homecoming, exam half-days, and senior release were among the threatened and altered.

A loophole was found among the trifles, three elements overcame what the state has so strictly imposed.

Our first escape was found in a simple telephone call. A call that dismissed us from first and second period. Of course the simple call received by the police department was a bomb threat.

The police department, fire department, and bomb squad came to entertain us as we stood in the cold at an "explode safe" distance from the school.

Only a week later, TP & L blessed us with a power failure. The senior English class continued, since only staplers and fire drills upset Mrs. LeBeau. She was not phased by the lack of lighting as she read on from the Canterbury Tales. Mr. Jacoby peeked in the door to seek Mrs. LeBeau's feelings about going home, and she came through for us all! We all scattered to various eating places as GHS spited ol' Ross and the House Bill for the second time.

Of the three forces in which we found refuge from school, the strongest is the third — Mother Nature. She gave us three days of inclement weather and unscheduled holidays. Mother Nature extended the Christmas holidays a day with a belated attempt at a "White Christmas." She then gave us a four day weekend in the form of a winter storm. We got ice, snow, and 155 consecutive hours of below freezing temperatures. You never fool with Mother Nature, even if you're Mr. Bob Fail.

Russia, eat your heart out! Julie Anderson and Karen Martine Stand by for launch.

Parties prove popular pastime

Surprises are contagious, at least surprise parties are . . . this year there was an epidemic of them. At these parties we saw "Purple Rain," "The Natural," went roller skating, and played Sunday afternoon football, went to "The Flamingo Kid," but when ever did make it to Cheddars . . . Some were more surprised than others, while some weren't surprised at all, and some proved impossible to even try to surprise.

Students Time Machine to Turn-of-the-Century

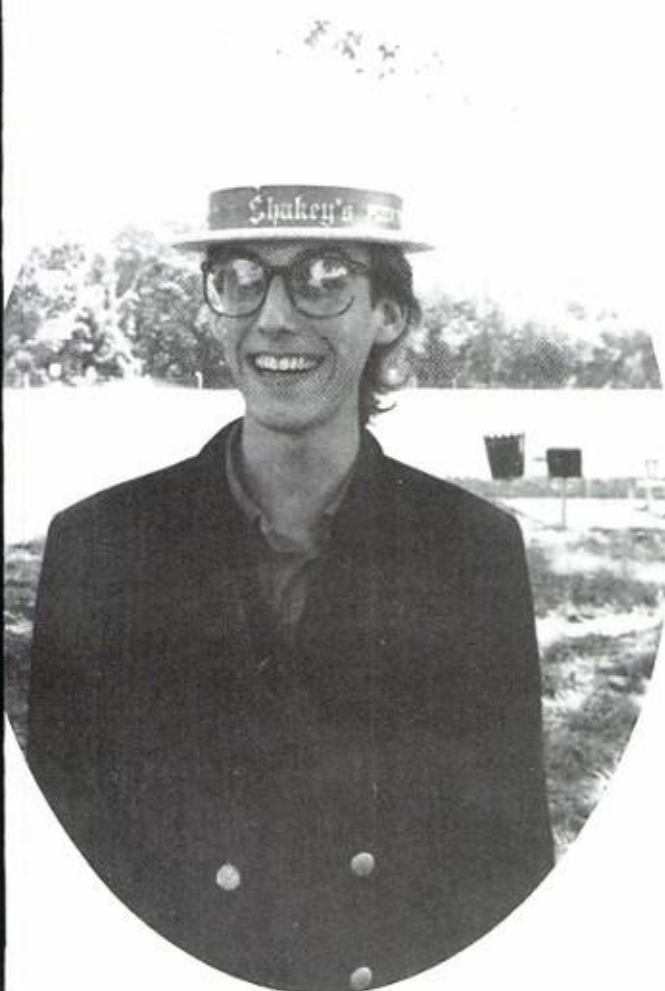

Mrs. LeBeau has always been known for the frolics organized by her Latin and English classes. Numerous are the Roman orgies and Medieval feasts, but this time her 4th period honors English class put on a frolic to end all frolics, "the Victorian picnic."

They managed to escape the campus at approximately 11:30 a.m. on May 16 on an unofficial fieldtrip to Parr park. Donned in the appropriate turn-of-the-century garb, the group spent a most delightful hour playing croquet, flying kites, swinging, and of course dining on appropriate picnic sustenance.

Dickens himself would've enjoyed the fried chicken, finger sandwiches, lemonade, potato salad, trifle, and the most magnificent cherry cheesecake flambé minus the flambé.

The creativity of the students resulted in a wide variety of costumes. Present at the picnic were city urchins, a member of parliament, members of the royal family, a schoolgirl, and of course, the Shakey's pizza man.

The group was forced to return to reality by 5th period, but in that one hour of escapism, needless to say, fun was had by all.

What Kind Of Year Was It . . .

The changing looks, attitudes, and appearances reflected the changes in our surroundings, from the first of the year to the very end. Special events are sure to remind us of the '84-'85 school year. The smiling faces and teary eyes bid an ambivalent farewell to our friends and teachers, who made each of us better in their own special way.

GHS helps to save the children

At GHS, a wide variety of changes can be found. But the least expected is the concern shown by the students for the starving in Africa.

From buying "We Are The World" albums and tapes, to buying the t-shirts, bumper stickers, and buttons proclaiming concern, a true desire to help is surfacing. Some students, the Lady Mustangs namely, have even banded together to form our own mini-relief campaign.

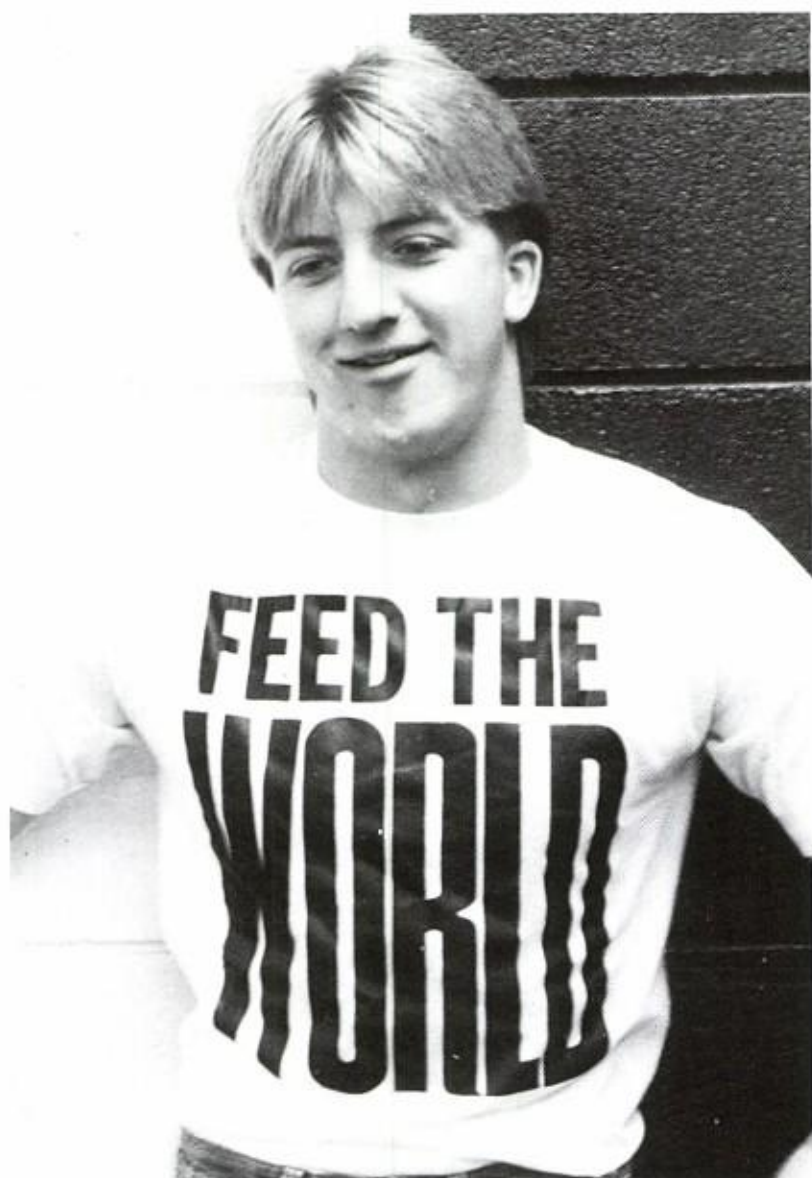

By any definition, these activities show a real compassion that seems not only to have no sign of slowing but, rather, to grow daily.

Blood drive fuels SC project

The Wadley blood drive has become an annual tradition at GHS (this being its 4th year). Due to the "no pass, no give blood" rules put upon us by H. Ross, we failed to reach our goal. However, we did come up with 108 pints, and few donors didn't pull through the ordeal. Sporting buttons all day that said, "Rock 'n' Roll up your sleeve," the students who gave life could be identified not only by their buttons, but by their green faces.

The House Bill of 72 ground the faculty just as bad as the students. The new as well as the old teachers are having to adjust to new rules and more work. Plus they have the extra job of adjusting students from old ways to new. The faculty of 1984-85 is doing a great job of changing gears.
